Service stations get green light to hike gas prices

Cost of Living Council reacts to threats by angry dealers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Cost of Living Council (CLC), reacting to threats by angry gasoline dealers, Friday relaxed its controversial ceiling price rule and allowed more service stations to immediately boost selling prices by as much as 2.5 cents per gallon.

The new pricing formula, which also should increase the cost to consumers of home heating oil by 1 to 2 cents a gallon, was designed to give gasoline dealers an economic break by allowing them to pass on a bigger share of their increased costs in the form of higher customer prices.

Inflation expanding

But the higher cost of operating the family car will give another push to the cost of living at a time when the nation's inflation rate is accelerating at a near-record rate.

The adjustment "is designed to minimize the increase while permitting a fair return to small petroleum retailers," the council said.

"It is anticipated that the range of gasoline price increases could be between 1 and 2.5 cents per gallon, "depending on individual retailer situations," the council said.

Effective now

Independent dealers, who make up about 90 per cent of the nation's service station operators, can put the new price formula into effect at once. Stations owned by refiners must wait until Monday.

The council said competition may be strong enough in some areas to keep selling prices below those permitted under the ceiling formula.

Under Phase IV regulations, the CLC is committed to a periodic revision of the ceiling formula but the first adjustment came less than a month after the rules governing the oil industry were adopted. Last Monday, President Nixon told the council to relax the rule by the end of this week, indicating that boycott threats of dealers around the country were having an effect.

The new formula gives dealers a larger markup than under the previous rule and thus should provide a "cushion" against future cost increases, the council said.

Charles Owens, director of the CLC's energy division, said the council had "gone from a balanced approach to one that is biased in favor of the independent dealer, the small businessman."

Owens also said the mathematics had been simplified and that dealers would have no trouble in computing their new ceiling prices.

The ceiling is figured by taking the selling price on May 15, 1973, and adding in the increased product cost incurred between May 15 and Sept. 28.

For example, if a dealer was selling regular gas for 38 cents a gallon on May 15, and the wholesale cost per gallon rose another two cents in the next four months, the new ceiling price would be 40 cents a gallon.

The old formula required dealers to add the wholesale cost as of Aug. 1 to the markup being charged last Jan. 10 but not less than 7 cents a gallon for markup.

Justice group responds to Agnew's charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Justice Department Friday accused Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers of making "patently ridiculous" charges that the Department is trying to force Agnew from office through leaks to the press.

The department said it would respond fully in court to all of the Allegations which were made in an affadavit filed by Agnew's lawyers in Baltimore Friday in a move to stop the government from pursuing the grand jury investigation of the vice president.

"It is imperative, however, that in the interim these deplorable allegations concening the conduct and motivation of the department of Justice not to go unchallenged," the department said in a statement.

The Department said the affidavit filed Friday accused it of conducting "a steady campaign of statements to the press" to try to prejudice grand jury hearings.

"To suggest further, as the lawyers for the vice president have, that the Justice Department investigation is a plot to 'drive the vice president from office' is patently ridiculous," the statement said.

"The investigation is based on evidence which is being marshalled in as expeditious and responsible a manner as possible," it added. "The Department of Justice will continue to discharge its duties to enforce the laws of this land and will not be diverted from that duty by unsubstantiated charges."

NEWS BRIEFS . . .

Chrysler workers sign pact

DETROIT (UPI) —The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. Friday formally signed a new three-year contract that union leaders called the most significant in UAW history.

The contract covers 121,800 unionized employes across the United States and Canada, but not 5,700 engineering technicians who rejected the settlement earlier this week.

"This settlement is the most significant in our history," UAW president Leonard Woodcock said. "It contains many breakthroughs."

Getaway car can't get away

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A balky getaway car led two would-be robbers to declare their holdup inoperative Friday.

They pulled into a Jack-inthe-Box hamburger stand and one of the men told clerk Cordia Downs, 18, "Give me all your money, and if you think I'm kidding, in about two minutes I'll show you I'm not."

Miss Downs handed him a fistful of $1 bills. He got back in the car. The auto's engine stalled and would not start again.

The holdup man returned to the counter and gave back the money.

4 hostages freed by Arabs

VIENNA (UPI) —Two Arab guerrillas who commandeered a Moscow-to-Vienna train Friday released four hostages— three Soviet Jewish emigrants bound for Israel and a customs official—13 hours later in return for an Austrian pledge to cut off transit facilities for emigrants bound for the Jewish state.

The Arabs, who had held their captives in a bus at the Vienna airport, boarded a Cessna light plane. Their destination was unknown.

Radio executive dies in shooting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A radio station account executive wounded by a mental patient who tried to assassinate a talkshow personality while on the air died Friday at San Francisco General Hospital.

Police said Benjamin Munson, 47, father of five and a resident of San Rafael, Calif., had suffered four bullet wounds in the chest and one in the arm. Munson underwent emergency surgery Thursday after the incident.

Lawrence Kwong, 25, a patient at a residential psychiatric treatment center, fired three shots with a .22-caliber pistol at Jim Dunbar, 42, who was in his KGO broadcast booth. Bullet-proof glass protected Dunbar, who was not hurt.

As Kwong left the building, police said, he encountered Munson and opened fire. The assailant then fled down a street pursued by several men. He then stopped, placed the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Kwong died at an emergency hospital.

Nixon obeys court order, releases names of campaign contributors

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Bowing to a court order, President Nixon's campaign committe made public Friday secret lists of contributors who poured nearly $20 million into his record, breaking $59.2 million re-election effort before a full disclosure law went into effect in April, 1972.

The list included huge contributions from ambassadors, industrialists and at least one prominent Democrat, and acknowledged $425,000 in illegal donations from six corporations that were later returned.

Common Cause victory

The release of the list was a victory for Common Cause, the public interest lobby that had sued the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP) for full disclosure of the sources of Nixon's campaign contributions.

The list covered the period from Jan. 1, 1971, through April 6, 1972, and was released pursuant to an order by U.S. District Judge Joseph S. Waddy last July 24 in the Common Cause suit.

The General Accounting Office had reported last August that post-April 7 contributions totaled $39.3 million, which would bring entire donations to the re-election campaign to $59.2 million.

400 page report

Filed with the House of Representatives, the 400-page CRP report listed $18.4 million in contributions during the pre-April 7 period; $716,000 from the trust fund of Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer; $653,000 in "deposited contributions originally received in cash," and $127,000 in miscellaneous receipts and refunds, for a total of $19.9 million.

The leading contributor was Chicago insurance magnate W. Clement Stone, who along with his wife donated $2 million to the Nixon campaign. Altogether, 94 persons gave $40,000 or more.

Listed for three contributions totaling $200,000 were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Guest of King George, Va. Guest was ambassador to Ireland under President Lyndon B. Johhnson and was a delegate to three Democratic national conventions.

Among the major pre-April 7 contributors were Arthur K. Watson, board chairman of IBM and former ambassador to France, $300,000; John Humes, ambassador to Austria, $100,000; Shelby Cullum Davis, ambassador to Switzerland, $100,000, and Walter H. Annenberg, ambassador to the Court of St. James's in London, $250,000.

Other major contributors included Pittsburgh banker Richard Mellon Scaife, $1 million; sculptor John H. Safer of Bethesda, Md., $250,000; Leonard K. Firestone of Los Angeles, $100,000; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mulcahy, Bronxville, N.Y., $568,559, and Detroit industrialist Max Fisher and wife, $125,000.

Four members of the Rockefeller family —Nelson, John D. III, Laurence and their sister, Abby Mauze —donated a total of $200,000. Entertainer Bob Hope was listed for $50,000, while Jules Stein, board chairman of the Music Corporation of America, donated $117,822.

Many on the pre-April 7 list had made additional contributions which already have been reported.

Officials 'under the gun' from PUC

Valley faces energy cutbacks, restrictions

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

Whether Christmas trees will twinkle with sparkling lights this December or plastic jungles of neon lighting will become dark is only a small part of an energy crisis that is surprising citizens despite recent warnings of environmentalists.

The problems with energy sources hit home in many families this week with the announcement that the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) plans, possibly as soon as October, to place strict regulations on utilities, thus regulating many power uses now taken for granted.

In Los Angeles Friday, the Department of Water and Power (DWP), which is regulated by the PUC, proposed possible electric power limitations this fall that would include darkened sports stadiums, a ban on Christmas lighting, limits on power to businesses and possible residential blackouts.

The PUC has given utility companies 20 days to come up with a plan covering energy conservation, agreements for mutual assistance and mandatory curtailment of electric service.

'Edison Co. will have to share oil supply'

Local electric and gas company officials said they have enough power to supply area needs this fall but both are ruled under the mandates of the PUC.

Vince Martin, division manager of Southern California Edison Co., said the utility doesn't have the authority to impose limitations on power usage but the PUC does.

Martin explained that the present power crisis stems from a world shortage of oil. "If the DWP runs out of oil, then the Edison Co. will have to share its supply," he said. We will have no other choice."

Martin said the peak demand on local power systems is during the month of August. He said the use of electric kilowat hours is increased during the winter months but the demand on the system doesn't go up. Air conditioning is the summer culprit.

The electric company official said his firm has made appeals through the news media this past year offering advice to customers on how to curtail power usage. He said 100,000 of the 2½ million customers asked for the material.

In addition, persons in the company work with major commercial and industrial power users in the community to encourage the conservation of power.

Restrictions to affect everyone in California

Martin said to date these energy conservation suggestions have been implemented by major users on a voluntary basis.

If the PUC follows a plan outlined this week, restrictions will be mandatory statewide and will affect all California residents.

Martin said the local Edison company offices has already put into action a energy conservation plan which has eliminated every other light fixture in the building and only security lighting at night.

He said that in the near future persons wanting to construct new buildings will have to go before a PUC allocation board to get approval of the new power hookup similar to city planning commissions.

He admits that his firm is "under the gun" with the PUC mandate that will be implemented, if not this fall, then by next summer when the power usage is the most critical.

F. B. Wilson, district manager of Southern California Gas Co. in Pomona, said his firm is working in several major areas to try to solve some of the current energy problems, including an international search to for oil supplies.

Wilson said his firm is trying to develp new sources of crude oil. The two principal low sulfur crude oil sources supplying the West Coast are the Cook

Inlet in Alaska and Indonesia.

The PUC this week approved a rate increase to Southern California Gas Co., to relfect new expenses incurred by its affiliate, Pacific Lighting Service Co., in exploring and developing new gas supplies.

Brown, Snider spend $263,280

38th district race— a costly campaign

California's 38th District race was among the costliest congressional election campaign in the nation last year, according to Common Cause, the nationwide citizens' lobby group.

In a report released this week, Common Cause said the District's two major candidates—Rep. George Brown, the eventual winner, and his Republican opponent, Ontario Mayor Howard Snider—reported combined spending of $263,280 in the primary and general election campaigns.

However, that amount does not include money the candidates may have spent prior to April 7, 1972, when the camapaign finance disclosure law went into effect.

Brown field as a candidate in January 1972, and Snider followed suit two months later.

Brown, who won the election with 56 per cent of the vote, listed expenditures at $154.743. Snider said he spent $108.537.

These figures are well above the average spent in districts, such as the 38th, where there was no incumbent. The winners' average spending, the report states, was $104,064, and $75,766 for the losers.

Only 19 other congressional campaigns exceeded the amount spent in the 38th District. The largest sum was $514,112—expended in Massachussetts, where Rep. Paul Cronin defeated his Democratic challenger and Vietnam veteran, John Kerry.

Organized labor was the largest interest group donating to Brown last year. He reported receiving about $23,000 in contributions from political groups affiliated with labor.

Both Brown and Snider reported receiving campaign donations from outside the state.

Of the 25 costliest campaigns listed in the report, five were in California.

The report is part of Common Cause's efforts on behalf of proposals for public financing of political campaigns.

Long talks loom in attempt to settle strikes by teachers

By United Press International

Representatives of Detroit teachers and the Detroit school board Friday settled down to a weekend negotiating marathon in hopes of ending a strike which has kept some 270,000 students out of school for nearly a month.

But impatient Detroit public school pupils, vexed by the strike, have opened their own school, with an 11-year-old teaching the "ABC's" to younger students.

No end was in sight to a two-week old strike by lay teachers against eight Roman Catholic high schools in the New York boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens.

Six schools in strike-bound McArthur, Ohio, remained open, but attendance was light. McArthur School Supt. Kenneth Christopher, who fired 87 striking teachers, has rejected an offer for federal mediation of the contract dispute which has kept teachers on picket lines since Sept. 21.

School board negotiators in Detroit expressed hope that the teachers strike against the nation's fourth largest school system could be ended by Saturday.

State Mediator Edmond Phillips said both sides have cooperated in an effort to settle the strike.

"We're still trying to resolve very many issues that have to be resolved but the parties are working very hard. They're very cooperative," he said.

While teachers have manned picket lines, Charise Jenkins, 11, Genine Bigham, 9, and Veronica Thomas, 10, left with nothing to do since the strike, have opened their own school. Children, ages 3 to 7, flock to the school to learn reading, writing and arithmetic. The three "teachers" are aided by 10-year-old Arthur Wilson, the school's "principal."

Elementary schools in Yorktown, N.Y., and Harrison, N.Y., serving a total of about 8,000 students, were on modified schedules due to teachers strikes.

M. Moreland, Charlie Chan 'butler,' dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Mantan Moreland, the bug-eyed comedian who played the black chauffeur "Birmingham Brown" in the Charlie Chan movies, died Friday at the age of 72.

Moreland, whose total of 310 screen appearances included 45 of the Chan films, had suffered several strokes recently. He was admitted to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital last week.

Moreland specialized in what he called his "indefinite" routine which he performed in the Chan films with the late Benny Carter.

One would begin a sentence, the other would interrupt and the exchanges would lead into mental brick walls. Nothing made sense to the viewer, but it did to them.

Moreland's trademarks were his pop-eyed expression —"like he just sat on a wet flounder,'' one critic said—and his line, "Feets, do your stuff."

Born in Monroe, La., Moreland ran away with a circus at age 14, later joining a comedy vaudeville act.

Boxer Joe Louis got Moreland his first film role, "Spirit of St. Louis," Subsequently he worked in the "Frankie Darro'' movie series for Monogram and then moved on to the Chan detective whodunits with Sidney Toler and Roland Winters.

Memorial services will be held Wednesday.

North, South Viet edge close to war

SAIGON (UPI) —The phantom Vietnam peace edged closer to admitted war Thursday, both on the battlefields and in the Saigon conference rooms.

A top South Vietnamese official said he was "sure" the United States would reenter the fighting if the Communists "continue their military activities at the current intensity."

The government launched an operation by 350 of its toughest American-trained troops in an attempt to recapture Plei Djering, a Central Highlands base 230 miles north of Saigon overrun by the Communists last weekend. The Communists called the operation "landgrabbing."

A government - supported "people's demonstration" against the Communists near their Saigon Tan Son Nhut airport headquarters was scheduled for Friday morning. It was sure to inflame propaganda attacks on the government.

South Vietnamese officials serving on the Communist-government Joint Military Team (JMT) supposedly negotiating peace walked out of Thursday's meeting to protest the overruuning of Plei Djering.

Women molested

Jail official says hostages attacked

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) —The head of the city jail said Friday physical examinations of 14 women held hostage for six hours by seven inmates indicated several of them were sexually assaulted.

"We made an investigation of the women as a routine matter and did find assaults, possible rapes," said Edward Tripp, city welfare director. "We have strong evidence that the women were molested. The women didn't make any statement, but the matron who also was held hostage said she did see cases of assault."

Tripp said the matter has been turned over to the circuit attorney's office. He said warrants charging attempted escape will be applied for, and rape charges may be pressed.

The seven men barricaded the door to a section of the women's cellblock with metal cots shortly before midnight Thursday. They demanded to speak with Tripp and a newsman so they could air their grievances about jail conditions.

Tripp agreed to try to meet the demands but promised amnesty only if the hostages — one prison matron and 13 women inmates—were released unharmed. The inmates eventually surrendered under those terms.

However, Tripp said later "We are fairly certain the men did not carry out the trust put in them. They will not be granted amnesty if the evidence proves the women had been assaulted."

Norma Crane, actress, dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Norma Crane, who played in Broadway productions, in movies and on television, died of cancer Friday at Beverly Glen Hospital. She was 42.

Her last movie was "Fiddler on The Roof," in which she played the part of Goldie. She made her movie debut several years ago in "Tea and Sympathy."

Humphrey raps selection plan

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said Friday the method of selecting candidates for national office needs to be reformed.

Humphrey said a regional presidential primary, proposed earlier this week at the Southern Governors' Conference by Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, has merit and might be an answer.

Humphrey, who conducted two national campaigns for president in 1968 and 1972, said by the time a candidate has campaigned in all the states that have primaries, "the people get tired of you, you get tired of yourself, and most of all you just get tired.

Officials give view of crisis in energy

Under the authorized plan, the company will submit specific projects to the PUC for approval. Later, the company will request increases for the approved project by letter.

Wilson said alternative sources of energy include a new method which is "cryogencis," the science of supercold.

In essence, the techniques is to take natural gas and liquefy it at a temperature of 260 degrees below fahrenheit. Since liquefied methane occupies a space only 1-1600th of that occupied by menthane in the vapor state, it becomes economincally feasible to ship it in massive sea-going tankers.

Untapped coal

Another alternative is energy through the gasification of coal. Wilson said the greatest reserves of fuel in this country are in the massive and largely untapped deposits of coal in the Western states. Nuclear sources is another alternative.

He said the gas company has no immediate local crises in gas supplies to customers but the firm is also under the PUC regulations.

Dr. John Cobb, of the Claremont School of Theology who is active in the ecology movement, said that any solutions to the present energy crises are only temporary.

Large world problem

Dr. Dobb said people think the problem is temporary but it isn't. He hopes people will gain a broader perspective of the total problems facing the world including over population, food storages and the unsolvable problem of wood shortages. He said cutting down our forests will not solve the wood shortage.

The theologian said solutions could be found to many of the existing problems if society would look at the total problem instead of isolated ones like the present power shortage. He said this just increases the pressure to build more atomic plants.

He said attitude and life styles must change and there must be good public leadership, not crash programs and temporary solutions.

Kosygin arrives for Tito talks

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived on the Northern Adriatic island of Brioni Friday for a meeting with President Tito, a government spokesman said.

Tito was at the quay to welcome Kosygin and his party when they sailed in aboard a yacht from Pula, the nearest mainland port to Brioni, the Yugoslav leader's secluded retreat.

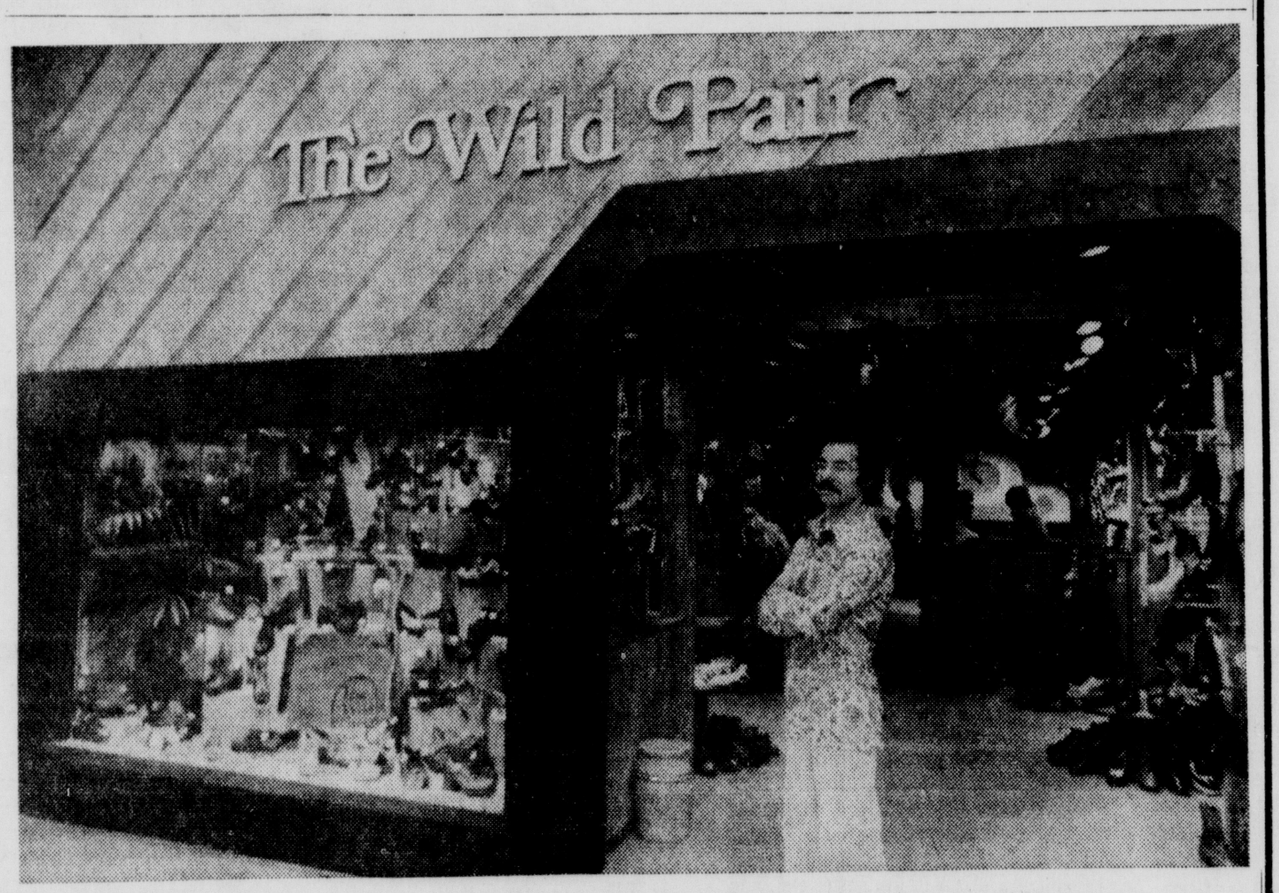
Vandals behead many figures at wax museum

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Someone hid in the Hollywood Wax Museum overnight and decapitated or mutilated the likenesses of 27 persons, police discovered Wednesday.

Those damaged included W.C. Fields, Raquel Welch, Barbra Streisand, Mae West, Jean Harlow, bandit Joaquin Murrieta, Susan Hayward and Sonny and Cher.



PLAZA OPENING — Ron Wood, assistant manager of "The Wild Pair," greeted shoppers as the store celebrated its opening at Montclair Plaza. The store carries footwear, bags and belts.

Death penalty means killing person: Moretti

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti said Friday he believes that for a criminal facing execution the manner by which death is administered "doesn't mean that much."

"You're still kidding somebody," Moretti said.

At a news conference, he was asked his reaction to Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposal that "more humane" methods of execution be investigated. The governor suggested a lethal tranquilizer might be one alternative.

"I suspect that for a man who knows his life is going to be snuffed out, the manner or method really doesn't mean that much," Moretti said.

Moretti, a foe of capital punishment, also said if elected governor he wouldn't grant blanket clemency to Death Row convicts. He said he would study each case individually before making a decision.

Another gubernatorial contender, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, said recently if elected he would grant blanket clemency.

1973 looks like a vintage year for grape harvesting in the West End

By ED PRATHER
P-B Staff Writer

CUCAMONGA — The wine grape harvest is in full swing in the vineyards of the West End and of San Bernardino County according to officials, it will be a very good year.

"We have a real good vi..tage this year. The crop is excellent," explained Philo Biane of Brookside Winery.

According to Biane, the unusually cool weather during August and September this year has helped the local grape crop.

"Cool weather is good for the grapes grown in this area. They are fine for dry winemaking," he said.

The cooler than normal weather slows the maturing of fruit, however, and has slightly delayed the harvest.

"Crush wise we've just completed the white and are starting on the dark," said Biane, who predicted that Brookside alone will produce between 4.5 and 5 million gallons of wine this year.

For the entire West End, Warren Burr of the San Bernardino County Department of Agriculture predicted a crop of about 50,000 tons of grapes this year, up slightly over last year.

"The harvest is now in full swing, although the grapes have not reached full maturity," said Burr.

Most of the grapes grown in the West End are sold directly to local wineries, although several thousand tons are shipped out of state to the midwest and Rocky Mountain states.

The largest demand is for Zinfandel grapes, a dark variety which is the area's premium crop. The Zinfandels are used to make a dry red table wine and the grapes bring growers more than $200 a ton. Other dark varities grown in the West End are sold for about $130 a ton, while white varities bring about $100 a ton.

The harvest season is expected to last through the end of October and possibly into November this year. As of now, only about 25 per cent of the crop has been picked.

West End vineyards cover about 13,000 acres. About 500 acres were put back into production this year in a reclamation effort. According to local officials, however, most of the old vinyards cannot be rejuvenated if they have been neglected longer than one or two years.

The California Department of Human Resources Development has reported that the labor force for the grape harvest is short about 200 persons at present, although the shortage is not threatening the crop.

"Last year about 800 pickers were used in the harvest," said Vince Jeluso of the state employment office. "We still need about 200 people."

Pickers, said Jeluso, earn anywhere from $2 to $3 an hour for a 6 or 7 hour day. Most of the labor are local residents although some people do come to the valley especially for the grape harvest.

"There are about 500 people working in the vineyards right now," he said.

HARVEST TEST

John Sneed of Upland, a sugar tester for Brookside Winery, takes a sample of grapes picked in West End vineyards. The grape harvest is now about 25 per cent complete and is expected to last through the end of October.

P.D. studied, dismissed burglar-slaying theory

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Pomona Police Department Sgt. John Ellenbecker testified Friday that investigators ultimately abandoned the theory that 19-year-old Cheryl P. Brown had been murdered by a burglar.

Ellenbecker appeared as a prosecution witness in the second murder trial here of Lee Donald Lakey, a 22-year-old bus boy charged with strangling the young woman who had just moved into an apartment near his residence at 759 E. San Francisco Ave.

The theory that Miss Brown was slain by an intruder was advanced during Lakey's first trial here. That hearing ended in a mistrial when the jurors could not agree on a verdict. The policeman was questioned again Friday about that theory by defense attorney Joseph A. Dolan.

Ellenbecker said that investigators abandoned the theory because they didn't find enough evidence to support it. The basis for the theory was the discovery that a screen had been removed from a window of Miss Brown's apartment.

Dolan also won from Ellenbecker the admission that police do not know what it was that the slayer used to garrot the young woman the first night she was to have spent in her new apartment.

But Ellenbecker testified that neither Miss Brown's brassiere nor any electrical cords or wires found in the apartment showed evidence of having been used to garrot her.

The victim's body was discovered by her 21-year-old sister who went to the apartment to find out why Cheryl hadn't arrived at their mother's home when planned. The young woman's clothing had been disarranged, apparently by the slayer, leading police to believe she had been the victim of a rape-slayer.

Test deadline near for Chino High students

CHINO — Monday is the deadline for Chino High School students to register for the American College Testing Program (ACT) to be given Oct. 20 at Chaffey High School.

The Oct. 20 test is the first of five national test dates on which the ACT assessment will be offered for students planning to attend college.

The student fee remains $6.50 even though the program has been expanded to include additional information. Completion of the test takes approximately 3½ hours.

The other test dates with registration periods in parenthesis are Dec. 8 (through Nov. 12); Feb. 23, 1974 (Nov. 5-Jan. 28); April 27, 1974 (Jan. 21-April 1) and June 15, 1974 (March 25-May 20).

It is recommended that students take the test which consists of four standardized series on English, math, social studies and natural sciences in the junior or early senior year.

Tougher license test ahead for motorcycle riders here

POMONA — Motorcycle riders in the Pomona Valley and throughout the state will face more intensive license testing in the future as the result of a new program announced this week by Robert C. Cozens, state director of motor vehicles.

Under the program the five examiners at the Pomona office, along with examiners around the state, will undergo special training to better evaluate motorcycling skills.

'There are presently more than 600,000 motorcycles registered for on-highway use in California," Cozens said. "About 120,000 riders are licensed every years. This proliferation of riders makes it mandatory that our licensing procedures be scrutinized and tightened where necessary."

California has been issuing special licenses for motorcyclists since 1968, but DMV examiners have never had the opportunity before to evaluate riding skills in depth.

"Motorcycle safety demands that the driver possess critical skills above those of the average automobile driver," Cozens stated. "And only an examiner who is thoroughly familiar with these skills can evaluate the cyclist to insure that he does, indeed, possess them."

In addition to providing training for examining personnel, the program will enable special motorcycle testing equipment to be installed at selected field offices throughout the state. The testing equipment will include pylongs, stanchions and paint striping.

Chinoan will compete today in hand-milking competition

POMONA Pete Vander Zwan, 16305 Euclid Ave., Chino, winner of a hand-milking contest in his city's community fair early this year, will be among the competitors at the Los Angeles County Fair today at 4 p.m. in the Southern California eliminations for the world championship hand-milking contest later this year.

The contest is open only to professional dairy people or people who have been in dairy production during the past three years.

Manuel Dutro of Stockton is reigning world champion after producing almost 20 pounds of milk in a three-minute contest.

Milkers are allowed to wear the uniforms of their companies. Three cows are provided and each milker has a minute on each animal.

Democrat Club against Reagan tax initiative

The Eleanor Roosevelt Democratic Club voted unanimously at a recent meeting to oppose Proposition 1, the Reagan tax initiative, on the November 1974 ballot said Mrs. Leisa Bronson, club president.

The club will work actively with other organizations opposing the constitutional amendment such as the League of Women Voters, California Teachers Association and the American Association of University Women. The club represents the Pomona Valley.

"The public should be informed," Mrs. Bronson said, "that the measure will not lower taxes. Instead, it will inevitably mean an increase in property taxes, as well as cuts in programs of vital importance to the less fortunate segment of our society."

The club also voted unanimously to help secure signatures to qualify for a place on next June's ballot the campaign reform initiative being sponsored by Common Cause, the citizen's lobby.

Gregory has been a member of the club since 1966 and previously served as first and second vice president, and as program chairman. He is a partner in the firm of Kearney, Ballman and Gregory.

Other officers installed were Benton S. Gaskell, first vice president; Robert C. Gustaveson, second vice president; John Michael Arrambide, secretary; and Fred Scrimes treasurer.

POMONA — The Pomona Moose Lodge receied the "best informed" trophy at the California-Nevada Moose Association's 40th annual convention held recently in Sacramento.

Fellowship degrees were bestowed on Robert M. Lawson and Donald L. Savoie for their outstanding service to the local lodge.

U.S. isolated on issues at IMF meeting

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The United States found itself isolated on issue after issue at the International Monetary Fund (IMF) session that ended its annual meeting Friday.

If the experience bothered U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, leader of the American delegation here, he did not show it. U.S. officials said that, even after the decline in the overseas value of the dollar, the United States is still so dominant in world economics that it can act as a majority of one.

"Some people came with the hope that this meeting would produce a blueprint for monetary reform," Johannes Witteveen, IMF managing director said. "This was never my hope. But I have no doubt that this important objective can be reached in months ahead. The sense of urgency shown this week must be sustained."

The meeting produced no visible progress toward resolution of the deep differences blocking reform, most of them between Washington and the rest of the world.

But the nations did agree to work out these differences by next July 31, a deadline greeted with wide private skepticism by many delegations.

Witteveen noted two hopeful signs in international finance, that the soaring inflation in commodity prices "may have passed its peak and that the U.S. balance of payments deficit, a serious impediment to monetary reform, may be righting itself."

"We are still only in the middle of the negotiating process," Witteveen said.

IMF governors passed a resolution drawn up earlier asking the nations to reach reform "as soon as possible."

The American also said that though the United States publicly seemed to be isolated during the meeting on several issues, Washington in fact had lots of "invisible support" among delegates.

On almost every major issue raised here, the United States has been either alone or close to it. For instance:

—The United States opposes building special advantages for underdeveloped nations into world monetary reform. Japan says it has not made up its mind on the issue but Europe, Africa, Asia and Latin America almost unanimously favor linking reform and aid.

—The United States, admitting it was in no hurry to get reform because it wanted its balance of payments in surplus first, said it is satisfied with the present system of floating exchange rates and opposes returning to fixed rates before the entire reform package is adopted. Other major nations, plus IMF officials, consider floating rates inflationary and destabilizing and want them ended as soon as possible.

—The United States wants firm rules that would make adjustment in exchange rates almost automatic for any nation whose reserves went too high or too low. But it wants new rules on currency convertibility to be fairly flexible. The other nations argue the opposite —flexible rules on adjustments, rigid requirements on convertibility.

Washington also incurred third-world anger here because it is one year in arrears on its payments to the International Development Association (IDA), a World Bank branch that gives low-interest loans to the poorest nations.

Europe has accused the United States for months of slowing up monetary reform. European officials said the United States, because of its strength and central position in any monetary system, can go at its own pace and there is not much Europe can do about it.

No-fault insurance to debut

DETROIT (UPI) —No-fault automobile insurance will be mandatory for all Michigan motorists Monday after a last-ditch attempt by a group of state trial lawyers to get a court order delaying the law's effective date failed.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Horace Gilmore refused to grant a preliminary injunction sought by the Michigan trial lawyers association, a group of 21 law firms opposed to he innovative insurance reform.

"If preliminary injunction were issued the entire automobile reparations system of the state of Michigan would be thrown into utter chaos," Gilmore said.

Gilmore agreed to conduct a full hearing on the constitutionality of the no-fault law on Nov. 19.

Under the new law, auto insurance become mandatory for all state drivers, including the estimated 600,000 motorists who did not have insurance earlier this year.

Failure to obtain insurance could result in a $500 fine, one year in jail and a loss of drivers license and plates.

The new law is a radical change from previous systems for collecting money for injuries or damages suffered in auto accidents. Under no-fault, the individuals insurance company must pay him for his injuries and damages within 30 days.

Under the old state law, the individual who was not at fault in an accident was forced to file a lawsuit against the other driver and his insurance company, and often took as long as two to four years to settle.

Gilmore said the MTLA filed its suit too late to get a full hearing on no-fault's constitutionality before it went into effect.

"If the injunction is granted it would turn the whole system into a voluntary system and defeat the purpose of the bill," Gilmore said.

Yellowstone's grizzly down in the dumps

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The grizzly bear population in Yellowstone National Park may be faced with extinction because of a new government policy to shut down garbage dumps inside the park, an animal protection group has charged.

The Fund for Animals Inc., a privately financed organization, alleged that the National Park Service has attempted to suppress a study which "refutes entirely the present National Park Service program and predicts dire consequences for the grizzly if it is continued."

Dr. John Craighead, an authority on grizzly bears from the University of Montana who helped head up the study, confirmed to UPI that it was submitted to the government in July and that it projects a "pretty dim" future for North America's largest land mammal.

A Park Service spokesman, while not denying existence of the report, said he had no direct knowledge of it. He also said the latest survey indicates the grizzly bear population in Yellowstone National Park is "very healthy" and that the population apparently increased this year for the first time in several years.

The Park Service policy attacked by the report involves the decision to close down garbage dumps in Yellowstone and to remove, and eventually kill, any bear which persists in returning to campsites. Craighead and his brother, Dr. Frank Craighead, had recommended a 10-year phase-out of the dumps in order to wean the bears away from a source of food to which they had been accustomed during the past century.

How spending goes in tax limit fight

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Supporters of Gov. Ronald Reagan's Nov. 6 tax limitation ballot measure have put nearly $800,000 behind their effort and are outspending the opposition roughly 25-to-1, campaign finance reports indicate.

In simultaneous reports to the public and the secretary of state, Reagan's campaign organizations—Californians for Lower Taxes—reported $676,651 in contributions and expenditures of $793,899.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the group spent between $357,000 and $380,000 since the measure qualified fo ra special statewide election, with the remainder used to assure it a ballot spot.

Opponnts of the plan—Californians Against Prop. 1—reported raising $40,210 and spending $31,607, Brown said.

The lower taxes group said their largest single contributor was the Fluor Corp. of Los Angeles, which donated $25,000.

Retired oil industrialist Henry Salvatori of Los Angeles gave $3,000 and dog food maker Jack D. Wrather Jr. of Beverly Hills donated $5,000.

The group's statement said 23,462 donors were not classified as "major coontributors." They were listed as having given $358,077 for an average of $15.26 apiece.

Other major contributors in support of the proposition included Earl M. Jorgenson Co., of Los Angeles, $10,000; Beverly Lincoln-Mercury Inc., of Beverly Hills, $5,000; Ray P. Crocker of Los Angeles, $5,000; Southern Pacific, $5,000, Greyhound Lines West, $3,000; and Grant Oil Tool Co. of Los Angeles, $3,000.

Major expenditures by the group included $101,198 for advertising, mailing and consultation paid to Larson, Bateman Inc., of Santa Barbara; $60,000 for telephoning and phone banks paid to the Krupp Organization of Los Angeles; and $39,622 for polling and consultation to Decision Making Informatin, Santa Ana.

Included in the contributions was a $100,000 loan from Community Bank of Los Angeles, a spokesman said.

The opposing campain committee reported receiving contributions from only two sources, Brown said, the California Teachers Association which gave $40,000 and the China Lake Education Association which chipped in $210.

Michael Deaver, campaign coordinator for the Reagan initiative, said in a prepared statement, "We are delighted by the continuing grass-roots support the tax reduction program is receiving from the people of California."

Both groups were praised by Brown for having filed "detailed reports which appear to fully comply with legal requirements.

"I am pleased thet the voters will have a clear picture of the financial interest on both sides of this measure long before they go to the polls," he said in a statement.

Police capture two escapees

ARVIN (UPI) —Two men who escaped from a minimum security unit at the California Correctional Institution at Tehachapi were captured by Arvin police Wednesday.

Officer Dave Floriano said he spotted Delbert D. Smart, 39, and Edward L. Henry, 39, hiding in an alley about midnight.

Police said the pair apparently had walked down out of the Tehachapi mountains on a sheep trail after fleeing from the prison on foot Tuesday.

Smart was serving time for robbery and rape and Henry was serving a term for possession of narcotics for sale.

Police said the men were still wearing their prison clothing when they were apprehendvl.

Police object to listing of home phones

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The City Personnel Department has to come up with a new means of listing city employes seeking to participate in car pools.

Police officers objected to listing of their addresses on computer printouts posted in some city buildings recently.

George Deal, president of the Los Angeles Police Protective League, said it has been a longstanding Police Department policy to keep the addresses and home phone numbers of its officers confidential.

A personnel analyst said the list did not specify the departments in which the employes worked. He said, however, the department would work with police officials to establish a better means of listing policemen who want to participate in the car pool program.

Garey students get opportunity

By LUAN HARDCASTLE
Garey High School

Garey High School is on the go again with a community careers program, a new idea to introduce students to career opportunities. Students will either do volunteer work in a career of their choice for credit, or work for pay and no credit at an existing job.

The program is to run on Monday and Friday schedules. Each student has his choice of a career which determines what schedule he will be on. Thus, half of the students will be on campus Monday thru Thursday and the other half Tuesday thru Friday.

The one day the student is off campus, he is working in the community with his selected career. Teachers follow the same four day schedule, putting in a fifth full working day in the career program.

Some of the most popular careers chosen by the students include: law and law enforcement, medical assistance, nursing, stewardess, mechanics, dental assistance, forestry, secretarial work, and oceanography.

In order to implement the program, students will be asked to select a career and register for it through the scramble system on Wednesday, Oct. 3.

All 10th thru 12th grade on the Monday scheduled will scramble in the gym. Those on Friday's schedule will register in the cafeteria at the same time. There will be a special time schedule that day.

AFS student at PHS likes desert, sports

By KEN SWART
Pomona High School

Automobiles, make-up, after school activities, airplanes, and the desert all have combined to make Christine Boogaerts a very bewildered yet excited young lady.

Christine, our American Field Service exchange student here at Pomona High, is from Wilsele, a Dutch section of Belgium. She is now living here in Pomona with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weis, Peggy, a senior at PHS, and Bob, a junior. "They've been very nice," Christine says about her American family. "But she (Peggy's Mom) is always worrying about me."

CHRISTINE BOOGAERTS

Christine's most immediate reaction to PHS was that, "The students are so much more open here than in Belgium.' Back in Wilsele, Christine went to an all-girl Catholic school, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. She is visibly surprised at the atmosphere here at PHS. "In my school." Christine explains, "There was only one girl who drove a car; about 50 girls rode motorbikes as I did. And the rest all used bicycles."

Many cars

"Everybody here has his own car," she says with wonder. In Belgium, cars are unusual. Those families who have cars very rarely have more than one.

"There's much more discipline in our schools," Christine adds. "If a girl came to school with make-up on her face or eyes, she was made to go home and wash it off."

Are there any school activities or sports for the girls in Belgium? "No," says Chrsitine positively, "We don't have anything like that."

Christine is involved, however, with quite a few community clubs. She has her own Cub Scout group, and loves working with the small boys. She is also in a Judo club, and is "sports leader" in her own youth group.

After five years of studying English, Christine almost speaks like a native, and claims that no problems with communication have arisen. English and French are both studied in Belgium as foreign languages.

Christine adds that classes are assigned to students, and unlike here, she remains with the same class of students for the entire twelve years. There is no such thing as a "midterm" graduate.

Uniforms were required at Paridaens, the Belgium school from which she was graduated. Make-up in not allowed at school, nor are stockings or high-heeled shoes.

Christine is further amazed at the number of people who have jobs. "I didn't know a single girl in Belgium who had a job," Christine says.

The one thing that Christine really enjoys talking about is the nationally eaten food in Belgium. Christine says that hot dogs are as popular in America as French fries are in Belgium. She explains further that these large French fries are bought in stands, as our hot dogs and hamburgers are, and that most people eat the French fries with mayonnaise or tartar sauce.

Christine has made the Belgium-style French fries for her American family, and Peggy says they're very good. Peggy does recommend, however, that mayonnaise or tartar sauce be used rather than catsup.

Since she has been here, Christine has visited the mountains, the desert and the beach. She insists that the desert was the most exciting place. "It's really something special," Christine exclaims happily, "Because there are no deserts anywhere in Europe." Christine is looking forward to a trip to Disneyland, and she and Peggy (her "American sister") plan to spend a week in San Francisco.

Having already been graduated from her Belgium school, Christine plans to become a gymnastics teacher. Gymnastics are very popular in Belgium, and classes are taught regularly in schools.

Christine is very athletic, and holds a green belt in Judo. She is also a ballet dancer, enjoys swimming, and has skied in Switzerland.

Because she is so interested in sports, Christine is enrolled in two P.E. classes here at PHS: racquet sports and dance. She is also learning Latin and drama, and has an honor's English course.

Christint has recently joined the Tennis Club on campus, and is naturally interested in the AFS club.

White House scene of dinner bash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon danced. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew smiled and looked carefree. And Mrs. F. Donald Nixon said she did not mind being wiretapped by the Secret Service. It all happened during a Thursday night dinner party at the White House.

To top it all off, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was bragging about the crown his overworked White House staff gave him as a farewell gift after he was sworn in as a cabinet officer.

Somewhere lost in the shuffle was Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand for whom the President and Mrs. Nixon hosted the dinner dance.

The President's sister-in-law was unaccompanied by her husband who was not feeling well enough to attend the White House dinner party.

Asked about reports that the President tapped their phones, Mrs. Nixon, who resides in Newport Beach, Calif., said she didn't mind, adding, "I have no comment. We love our wonderful brother. He is the most fantastic man and the greatest leader the country has ever had we dearly love him."

Agnew was showing none of the strain of the past few days and wore a perpetual smile on his face. Asked how he felt about Speaker Carl Albert's rejection of a House inquiry into allegations the Vice President participated in a kickback scheme, Agnew said, "I don't regard the decision as being permanent."

Instead of the usual musicale in the East Room, there was dancing in the Grand Hallway. Although the President never dances on such occasions, he broke his own tradition, and took his wife Pat on the floor to encourage other guests to dance. After twirling to "The Sound of Music," the Nixon's headed for the private family elevator.

The most happy fellow of the evening was Kissinger, the swinging bachelor, who quipped that he would have hostesses for his diplomatic parties "on a rotating basis."

Nixon backs end electoral vote proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A proposal to abolish the Electoral College and let the people decide who is elected President has won support from the Nixon administration.

But at a Senate hearing Thursday, assistant attorney general Robert G. Dixon Jr. warned that a proposed emergency provision allowing Congress to decide the outcome of a multi-candidate race would undercut the "independence of the presidency."

The proposal before the Senate consitutional amendments subcommittee would change the Constitution to allow the popular vote, instead of the Electoral College tally, to elect the President and Vice President.

Part of the proposal would allow Congress to select the President if none of the candidates gets 40 per cent of the vote. Each member of congress would have one vote.

Dixon said such a provision could "place the President under obligation to those members of Congress who voted for him." Any contingency proposal, he added, must "maintain the independence of the presidency."

"...We should hesitate before turning the selection of the President over to Congress, even on a contingent basis," he said.

Dixon said a runoff election has more merit.

He said a state-by-state proportional plan of computing the electoral vote seemed "statistically fairer on its face" than a simple nationwide tally. The proportional plan, which President Nixon supported when the House debated the issue in 1969, would give each candidate a share of each state's electoral vote in proportion to his percentage of the state's popular vote.

USC, Oklahoma battle in 'Coliseum Bowl'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It all depends of which way you look at it to determine how big tonight's battle between USC and Oklahoma, last year's top-ranked college football teams, really is.

For Oklahoma, it is the big trip of the year. The Sooners, who are inelgible for any bowl games for two seasons, are treating tonight's game at the Coliseum as their 'bowl' contest of 1973.

But Trojan coach John McKay is trying his best to downgrade the game.

"We want to win," says the silver-haired USC mentor, "but we've got to beat Oregon State more than Oklahoma. Our goal is the Rose Bowl."

No matter what McKay said, more than 80,000 fans including at least 18,000 from Oklahoma will be on hand for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Many Trojan fans are concerned about their team, feeling the opening two victories over Arkansas (17-0) and Georgia Tech (23-6) weren't enough.

But McKay is proud of his team's defense in not allowing a touchdown and is quick to point out how graduation losses have hurt his national championship team, especially on blocking.

LOCAL-NATIONAL
Sports

For instance, Heisman Trophy favorite Anthony Davis has been held to 167 yards in 48 carries.

"Davis is not getting the blocking he got last year so he's not getting the yardage," McKay explained.

For that reason, Ganesha High product Dean Lingenfelter will be in the starting lineup tonight at tight end ahead of Jim Obradovich.

"So far Lingenfelter has been the better blocker," McKay added.

The Trojans will be led as usual by junior quarterback Pat Haden and his Bishop Amat buddy, end John McKay Jr., plus Lynn Swann, who is regarded as USC's top athlete.

On defense, safety Artimus Parker is the big man after he picked off three passes last week at Georgia Tech to set a Trojan career record with 15.

But Parker probably won't get much of an opportunity tonight. Oklahoma stays mainly on the ground with its Wishbone offense.

The Sooners rolled up 480 yards on the ground in their opening 42-14 whipping of Baylor with three players quarterback Steve Davis, halfback Joe Washington and fullback Waymon Clark all gaining more than a 100.

"They run the fastest Wishbone I have ever seen" McKay said about his Big Eight opponents.

Washington, a sophomore, is considered more than an adequate replacement for the graduated Greg Pruitt. "He was absolutely phenomenal," said Texas coach Darrell Royal after the Baylor performance. "He has the best acceleration I've seen."

Barry Switzer is the rookie coach of the Sooners after serving as an assistant under the departed Chuck Fairbanks for six years. He has the task of keeping a winning tradition. OU has lost only two of its last 27 games.

As usual, Switzer has kind remarks about the Trojans. "Whew! What's there to say. They have a super, super team. For us to win we'll have to play a perfect game."

Bearcats fall to Temple City ...grudingly

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

TEMPLE CITY — The Amazing Green Upset Machine will have to wait a while longer for its next big catch.

Bonita High, coming off a 14-0 stunning of arch-rival Claremont a week ago, came within seven points of the biggest killing of all Friday night.

Temple City, a squad that figures to make history every time it takes the field, didn't put the lid on its 45th straight victory until mid-way through the fourth quarter when quarterback Rich Johnston took an eight-yard keeper over to complete the scoring in a 27-20 victory over the Bearcats.

Before Johnston's heroics, it was the efforts of running back Rick Brown that kept the defending 2-A champs in the game.

An unofficial tally gave Brown 155 yards rushing en route to three touchdowns— his final score coming on a 15-yard dash.

Richard Ortega, the man who provided most of the fireworks a week ago, gained 156 yards on the ground, and broke off a pair of spectacular touchdown runs reminiscent of the Bonita attack of a few years back.

With his team down 14-6 in the third-quarter, Ortega took a handoff from quarterback Harold Drake and ran 59 yards with it for a TD. Late in the quarter, Ortega again stunned the Ram defense with a 55-yarder.

Moments later, Drake carried the ball over for the two-point conversion and a tie score.

In the first quarter, Ortega got the Bearcats a 6-0 lead with a 15-yard run.

Bonita held the lead until well into the second period when Brown pulled off the first of his trio touchdowns.

After halftime, the Rams scored quickly on a long drive on the first possession of the second half. Johnston ran the ball 57 yards on one carry during the drive.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Bearcats fumbled a Temple City punt on their eight-yard line, but then held on four downs to maintain the close final margin.

Bob Rees, Bonita running and defensive back, sustained a knee injury during the first half and was removed from the stadium at halftime in an ambulance.

The extent of Rees' injury was not immediately diagnosed.

Wolfpack calls on its defense

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

But as it turned out, the Wolfpack didn't need much of an offense against Glendora in the second and final non-league game of the 1973 high school football season.

Two big plays and a little bit of stubbornness by the Claremont defense gave the Wolfpack its first victory of the young campaign.

Defensive back-quarterback Kent Stalwick picked off a Glendora pass and ran it back 55 yards to set up the 'Pack's first touchdown, and then Dan Thomas sprinted 76 yards on a punt return to score the winning touchdown as Claremont nipped Glendora, 13-7.

On the Tartans' first series of plays in the second half, Glendora quarterback Harold Hopkins dropped back and launched a wobbly pass which was intercepted by Stalwick on the Claremont 44-yard line. He broke through the scattered Glendora offense (now the defense) and legged it out down to the Tartan one-yard line, where he was bumped out of bounds.

On the next play, Kent cashed in on his defensive gem with a quarterback sneak from the one yard out with 9:09 remaining in the third quarter.

Both teams were halted on their next set of downs, and after Glendora was forced to punt on its second set of downs Thomas became the hero.

He fielded Tom Reck's boot on the Claremont 24-yard line, busted to the left side of the field, raced down the sidelines and found daylight at midfield to complete his 76-yard jaunt. Dean Erickson added the extra point after missing after the first touchdown, and Claremont led, 13-7.

Glendora threatened to score in the late stages of the game when the Tartans moved from the Claremont 40-yard line down to the 'Pack's one with 50 seconds remaining in the game.

An illegal procedure penalty against Glendora moved the ball back to the six, and halfback Craig Sapp picked up a yard on the next play.

With only 30 seconds remaining, Hopkins went to the air. His first pass was deflected by the on-rushing Claremont defensive line, and his second—under a hard rush—fluttered into the end zone and was knocked down by lineback Joe Hillstock.

And that was all Claremont needed.

Glendora took the lead in the second quarter when Sapp capped a 54-yard drive with a one-yard plunge. Jim McCadden added the extra point to provide for the Tartans' 7-0 halftime edge.

That doesn't mean Claremont never came close, though.

The 'Pack, who only gained 27 yards on the ground and 21 yards in the air all night, took the kickoff after the Glendora touchdown, started a drive on its own 41-yard line, and rambled down to the Glendora two-yard line.

But on a third-and-one situation from the two, Stalwick was dropped for a five-yard loss. An incomplete pass on the next play turned the ball over to the Tartans.

Idle Mets lead in East by 1½

By United Press International

Montreal edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in the hectic National League East pennant race Friday.

The loss dropped the Pirates 1½ games behind the idle New York Mets while the Expos moved to within three games of the lead. The Mets-Cubs game was rained out and the two teams will play season ending doubleheaders today and Sunday.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 on the two-hit pitching of Mike Thompson and Diego Segui. Joe Morgan hit his 26th home run in a losing cause as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3 in 14 innings.

Ganesha celebrates trip by shutting out Oxnard

By BILL CLARK
Oxnard Press Courier

OXNARD — A band of hard running Giants from Ganesha High of Pomona, who had never played here before, arrived safely at Oxnard-Houser Field Friday night and immediately fell in love with the Greensword.

Oxnard wasn't so fortunate, coming up on a short end of a 27-0 battle with the polished, experienced Giants who are now 2-0 on the season in tune-up for a shot at the San Antonio League crown.

It wasn't exactly the Giants's safe arrival as much as their running, a game that stung the Yellowjackets and new coach Pete Clark, prompting Clark to charge somebody with removing the detour sign he had set up a along the Ventura Freeway.

"I figured if they didn't show up in time, we might be awarded a forfeit," said sneaking Pete, still doing an admirable job considering a great lack of talent.

What Oxnard couldn't cope with in suffering its second loss in as many starts, were the long distance breakaways of Ganehsa back Jeff Lambert, soph Ron Jacques and cool quarterback Tracey Cowger.

Jacques scooted off the same spot, broke a pair of tackles, and went 55 yards with the second TD with 2:30 left in the half.

A fumbled pitch out turned out to be a grievious error for Oxnard deep in their on territory in the third period. Calvin Mitchell scooping it up from nine yards out for the TD.

Cowger had completed Ganesha's only pass in its only attempt all night for one yard, proved it was not a factor in the victory by cutting back over the middle for 20 yards to score with a keeper in the final period.

Lambert rushed for 55 yards in five carries while Cowger gained 17 yards on five totes. Kevin Braxton netted 75 yards on eight carries. Jim Maniaci rushed for 64 yards on 14 carries and Jacques gained 92 yards on four carries.

The Ganesha defense held Oxnard to 85 yards rushing and 83 yards passing for a total of 168 yards.

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — If it had been a bullfight, the matador would have been killed. After the officials had tossed 250 yards worth of red flags, Montclair parlayed three touchdowns by Filbert Gonzales to a 27-19 win over Ontario Friday at Chaffey High.

The Cavaliers and Jaguars spent the evening battling their own errors and a seemingly endless string of infractions, but it was the inspired running of Gonzales and a big night from quarterback Brett Jetton which decided the outcome. In addition to three TDs, Gonzales, wound up the action with over 100 yards rushing while Jetton connected on 9 of 16 tosses for 180 yards and one TD.

Gonzales 30-yard return of the Jaguars opening kickoff got the Cavaliers in business at the Ontario 48, and from there Montclair marched in seven plays, Gonzales powering into the end zone from one yard out. Rick Tomas' PAT was true and Montclair drew first blood, 7-0.

Ontario, after an uneventful first quarter, tied things up midway through the second. Joe Jefferson took a David Warren pitchout and swept right end for a 53-yard TD run. Steve Bell booted the conversion and the score evened at 7-7.

Montclair went on top again with a score late in the first half. Taking the kickoff after Jefferson's TD, the Cavaliers got a key 33-yard scamper from fullback Jack Surby, which placed the ball on the Ontario four. Montclair punched it in in three plays, Gonzales carrying the final yard to place the Cavaliers ahead 13-7.

Ontario came out of the locker room in the second half and looked like they meant business as they took the kickoff and drove 67 yards to pay dirt. Marty Verdusco raced over from the 12, and the blocked PAT left the score knotted again at 13-all.

A 50-yard TD pass, Brett Jetton to Larry Milton, got the Cavaliers ahead to stay in the third quarter. Jetton found Milton behind his defender and lofted it in, Milton using his speed to go the distance. Tomas PAT was good and Montclair led 20-13.

Mounties win third in row

By MIKE RAWLINSON

WILMINGTON — In a game decided on mistakes, Mt San Antonio College emerged Friday night with its third victory in a row, 21-12, over big and rugged L. A. Harbor.

The Mounties outslugged the winless Seahawks in almost every department. The outcome was decided, however, on who made the fewest mistakes. And MSAC won it here, but barely.

A total of 18 penalties were called during the course of the evening's activities, but Harbor was on the long end in yardage lost, 99 yards on nine penalties. The Mounties were guilty on nine also, but they avoided the mistakes in crucial situations, and were penalized "only" 61 yards.

When the officials weren't calling penalties, Mountie quarterback Steve Myer filled the warm night air with passes. Myer, a sophomore who led the nation's community college passers a year ago, reverted to 1972 form by completing 15 of 26 for 221 yards and two touchdowns. It wrecked the Hawks.

Flanker John McIntyre caught six for 181 yards and two touchdowns. The first one came on the fifth play of the game, when Myer hit him at the 20 yard line and he ran it in on a play which covered 66 yards. Tom MacKenzie, who has made 11 out of 11 extra points, booted the Mounties into a 7-0 lead.

Harbor came right back late in the period to score on a two yard run by Dave Garasic, which culminated a 48-yard drive. But the point after try was wide right.

Myer used just three plays—all passes—to get the Mounties six more points. This time he hit McIntyre in the near-corner of the end zone from the 27, and that was all MSAC would need, after MacKenzie's boot.

Tailback John Huston returned Harbor's punt 45 yards, to set up the Mounties at the Hawks' 35. And then, it took only three plays with tailback Teddy Farmer carrying the ball for gains of 15, 16 and 4 yards for a touchdown. MacKenzie made it 21-6 with his third extra point of the night.

Farmer, a sophomore, who gained more than 300 yards last year, is closing in on those totals. Friday he carried 17 times for 80 yards to run his rushing total to 301 in three games.

Harbor put the final points up on the board in a desperation drive late in the final period. Quarterback Gary Cragin, the third Hawk QB of the night, engineered the drive that started at the Harbor 46. Cragin finally punched it in from the one yard line with 24 seconds left to play.

UCLA has yet to win in Mich.

EAST LANSING, Mich.—UCLA takes the field this morning (10:30 PDT) for its game with Michigan State rated from 10 to 13 points better than the Spartans.

The Bruins have never won a football game in the state of Michigan. The Uclans lost to the Spartans in 1965 at East Lansing (13-3), and three times to Michigan at Ann Arbor, 42-13 in 1956, 29-6 in 1961, and 38-0 in 1971.

That gives UCLA teams a total of 22 points scored in four games in Michigan against 122 points by the opposition. Hopefully, the spell will be broken today.

Mark Harmon will start at quarterback with the brilliant John Sciarra in reserve. Sciarra leads the Bruins in total offense with an average of 88.5 yards per game to Harmon's 27 yards.

Heat, wind bother cycle hopefuls

ONTARIO — Paul Smart stepped into his garage, immediately peeled his leather suit down to his waist, grabbed a towel to wipe his sweating face, picked up a cup of ice water, sat down, and took a deep breath.

He had just taken about a dozen laps around the Ontario Motor Speedway's 3.5 mile road course under 95 degree heat and a brisk easterly wind.

That's the kind of day it was on the opening day for the Third Annual Champion Spark Plug Motorcycle Classics.

Smart, the defending Classics champion in the Expert division, was one of more than 100 riders who took to the Ontario course Friday afternoon for the first day of practice.

The practice session gave the Expert, Junior and Novice riders a chance to feel out the OMS road course and also test their machines under the California heat.

There was only one main casualty of the day when John Hateley of Van Nuys took a tumble in sixth turn of the 20-turn course after his engine had locked up on him.

Dave Smith, following Hateley in close pursuit, tangled with the fallen machine—sending Hateley to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland for x-rays and treatment.

He was released a few hours later suffering from multiple abrasions, particularly of the right elbow, arm and hip. Smith was treated at the track first aid station and released.

Gary Scott, currently ranked as the No. 2 rider in the nation, also took a spill during the morning session, but did not require treatment.

The top speed for the day, as clocked by American Motorcycle Association timers, was a two minute and nine second lap by Gary Nixon on a Kawasaki. His average speed for the lap was 89.134 miles per hour. Yvon DuHamel, fresh off a victory at Charlotte on a Kawasaki, turned in the next fastest lap of two minutes and ten seconds.

The track will open this morning at 8:30 for one hour of practice. Then starting at 10 a.m., eight five-lap qualifying races will get underway with the Experts taking the track first.

Each division will have two qualifying races, with all the qualifying due to end at about 12:45.

At 2 p.m. a 76-mile Novice race will be held, with a 125-mile Expert-Junior Combined Lightweight race to follow at 3:30 p.m.

CLASSIC NOTES: Newly crowned AMA champion Kenny Roberts was on the track in the early afternoon carrying the No. 1 plate on his motorcycle. Just sporting for brief filming purposes, Kenny will actually wear his No. 80 during the races. He'll be able to wear the No. 1 plate for real next year . . .

Jim Coughlin, Bell Helmet representative, announced a company prize for the top dirt and road race riders for the season. Roberts has clinched the dirt track title with 1097 points to Scott's 713. He closely trails Gary Nixon in points accumulated on road circuits. Nixon leads with 639 points, a mere 13 more than Roberts, and they will decide the issue Sunday in the Expert race, the final road event of the season.

Pomona neglects pass again in dropping 25-8 decision

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

FONTANA — The Pomona Red Devils, who open play in the San Antonio League next week against Montclair, might have to develop a passing fancy for the game if they are to go anywhere this year.

This was evident once again Friday night as the visiting Pomona crew dropped a 25-8 decision to a tough Fontana Steeler 11.

The loss was the second of the pre-season for coach Mike Clifton's squad and the Red Devils, who possess last season's all-SAL quarterback in Steve Taylor, couldn't get any kind of offensive attack going against Fohi, as Pomona stuck mostly to the ground in the opening half.

In the first 24 minutes, Fontana ran up a 12-0 lead, but the game wasn't really that close, as Pomona could only manage two first downs. With Taylor completing only one of this three attempted aerials.

One of the main troubles for Taylor was the lack of time to throw the ball, as his offensive line protection was not the kind necessary to develop a strong passing game. But the line was not able to open up consistent holes for running backs Garry Honest or Jim Price either.

The main problem for Pomona was a Steeler running back named Terry Henderson who shocked the visitors early in the first period by scrampering 27 yards to a Fohi touchdown, the first time the hosts had the ball.

This TD was set up by a bad snap from Pomona center Delfino Serna on a punt ttempt, as Fontana recovered the ball on the 27-yard line.

It was 19-0 before Pomona was able to get on the score board, and it did that by having no Red Devil touch the ball. The Fontana center returned the earlier favor by snapping the ball over the head of the Steeler punter and through the end zone for a safety—the first points llowed this season by Fohi.

Pomona did get a touchdown in the fourth quarter as Price barreled over from the nine on a well executed draw play. In fact, this play, using Honest and Price, was the most successful for Pomona all night.

Henderson was by far the star in the game as his late 62-yard scoring run gave the hard running senior 216 yards in 26 carries. Pomona was led by Price, who netted 63 yards in 10 carries while Honest had 58 in 13.

Taylor was only four for 11, gaining 29 yards as he was dropped four times for losses of 26 yards. Back-up quarterback John Souza completed two of his eight attempts for 28 yards.

Alta Loma's Juggernaut stuns Scots

By SCOTT POINDEXTER

UPLAND — The Alta Loma Braves are picking up steam and rolling like a juggernaut. The Braves demolished the Upland Highlanders 40-7, Friday night at Upland.

Six different Alta Loma players scored touchdowns, and the Braves' defense would have had a shutout except for an offensive fumble. Upland was held to only 93 total yards.

Alta Loma ran for 269 yards and had 119 yards in the air. Kula Kuresa ran for 136 yards and caught one pass for 24. Jamie Broecker, Brave QB, passed for two touchdowns and 112 yards.

Dan Chalfant opened the scoring in the first quarter by hauling in a Broecker pass for 34 yards. The kick was blocked giving Alta Loma a 6-0 lead.

The Braves started the second period with a 62 yard drive culminating in a one-yard plunge by Kuresa. On a fake kick, Broecker ran in for a two point conversion.

Split end Ted Pedvin was the next player to get in the scorebook for Alta Loma, catching a Broecker pass in the flat for a six yard tally. Broecker finally kicked an extra point to give the Braves a 21-0 halftime lead.

At the half, Alta Loma had 246 total yard to 51 for Upland. Of the 51 yards, Mark White had rushed for 31 and quarterback Jim Christensen had the other 20.

Steve Robinson opened the fourth quarter with the Braves' fifth touchdown of the night, by hitting over left tackle for three yards. By this time, Alta Loma had a comfortable 34-0 edge.

Upland's lone score came when defensive cornerback Corey Chapman picked up a losse ball on the Braves 27 and took it in. Dean Kawasaki kicked the extra point, and it appeared that the Braves were almost going to match last weeks score of 35-6 over Montclair.

Twins cinch third place, down Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)—Righthander Dan Fife hurled a six-hitter and Steve Brye cracked a two-run homer Friday night as the Minnesota Twins clinched of third place in the American League West by dumping the California Angels 7-1.

Although he walked six batters, Fife yielded only an unearned run in the fourth inning as he went the distance for the first time in his major league career.

The Twins made Fife's job easier by scoring five times in the third inning, twice more in the fifth in eliminating the Angels from finishing any higher than fourth.

Brye's sixth homer of the year started the third inning explosion off loser Rudi May. May, a winner of only one of his last 12 decisions, was touched for all five runs in the third. May's record fell to 7-17.

Saints beat Nobles

San Dimas recovered from an opening drive that fizzled, scored quickly anyway and then went on to a 20-0 win over visiting Nogales Friday night.

In other games, Webb dominated Ontario Christian in a 28-8 game, and Royal Oak rolled over Monte Vista 22-6.

Perez Shoemaker took Nogales' kickoff on his own 22 and returned it 23 yards to the 45. The Saints then marched 50 yards in seven plays only to lose the ball on the Nogales five when Jeff Horton fumbled.

But the Nobles fumbled two plays later and the Saints took over again on the Nobles' 20. A running play lost a yard and then quarterback Dave Maloof passed 21 yards to John Brahs for the score. The Saints fumbled again late in the period on the Nogales 20, but there was no more scoring until the final quarter although the Nobles held following a 64 yard pass play from Maloof to Kent Williams in the third period.

Running from the tailback position, Shoemaker scooted 70 yards for a touchdown. Following a pass interception and 30-yard return by Tim Brown, the Saints scored on a nine yard pass from Maloof to Brahs to finish the scoring.

The Saints, now 2-0, play Royal Oak at Charter Oak High next Friday.

Quarterback Clyde Christenson completed 15 of 21 passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns as the Romans of Royal Oak beat Monte Vista. Rick Hall carried 12 times for 50 yards.

Fullback Kurt Zischke and tailback John Baer led Webb's Gauls over OCHS. Each scored a pair of touchdowns as the Gauls outgained the Knights 256 to 137. Ontario was held to only 19 yards total in the first half.

Webb is now 1-0 while OCHS is 1-1. The Gauls host Esperanza of Anaheim at 3 p.m. next Friday.

Citrus sinks in polo match

AZUSA — Citrus college dropped its second Mission Conference water polo match Friday, 15-9 to Southwestern.

The Owls were led by John Hobson's three goals. Three other Owls, Jim Currier, Bob Gladell and Bob Schneider tallied two each.

Citrus will host an invitational tourney today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bronco poloists rout Oxy, 8-5

POMONA — Rob Morell and Bruce Cleeland scored two goals each to pace Cal Poly to an 8-5 water polo win over Occidental.

It marked the Broncos first win of the season. Poly visits Pomona College this morning for a 10 a.m. match.

KWOW offers football scores

Dodgers top Padres, 5-2 on 15 hits

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night marked Walter Alston's rehiring for a 21st season with a 5-2 win over the San Diego Padres.

Tommy John, with seventh inning relief help from Charlie Hough, got the victory to put his record at 16-7 and bring him lifetime win No. 111.

John and Hough spaced 13 hits while the Dodgers picked up 15 off three Padre hurlers, one of them a home run by Vaughn Joshua in the fifth inning. Mike Corkins, 5-8, was the loser.

The Dodgers got a run in the third on singles by Dave Lopes and Joshua and Tom Paciorek's infield out. Joshua hammered out his second home of the year in the fifth inning to make it 2-0 before the Padres countered with a tally in the bottom of the fifth on singles by Dave Roberts, Nate Colbert and Fred Kendall.

Successive singles by Bill Russell, Rookie Jerry Royster and pinch-hitter Willie Davis increased the Dodger lead to 5-1 in the seventh inning.

Doubles by Ivan Murrell and Leron Lee in the eighth narrowed the score to 3-2, but in the ninth Paciorek popped a double behind first base to score Lopes and Joshua to assure the victory.

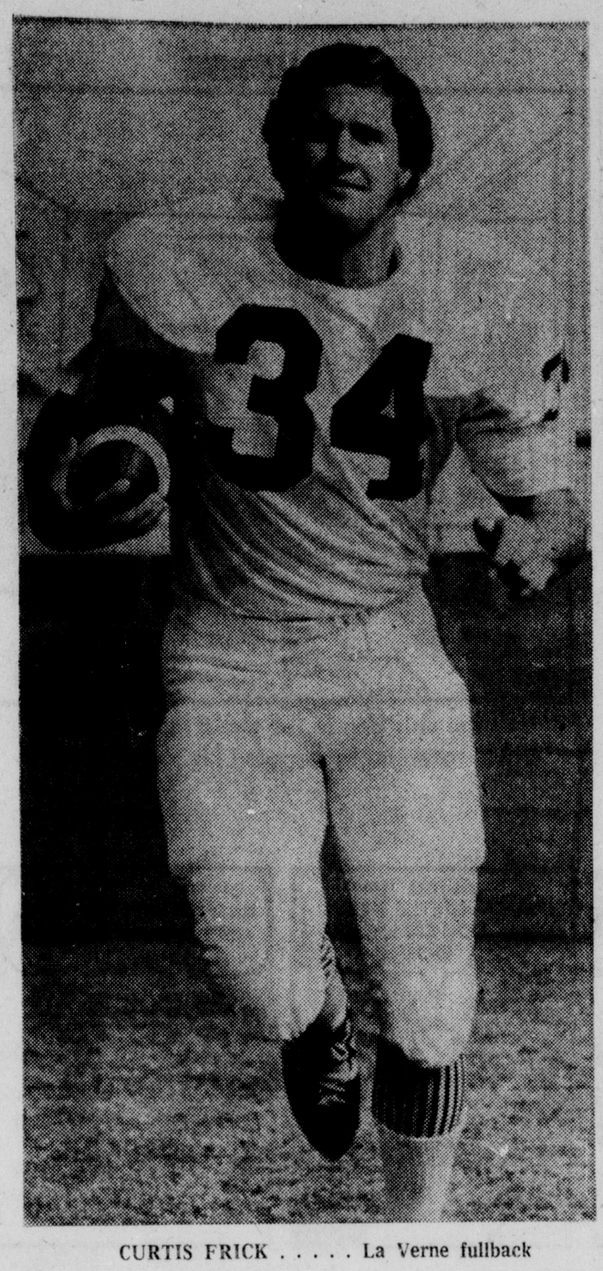
RED SCHOENDIENST, second in consecutive tenure among major league



CURTIS FRICK . . . . . La Verne fullback

CMC Stags host Whittier today

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — The limping Stags of Claremont-Mudd take on powerful Whittier at 1:30 p.m. today in the first of three games involving SCIAC teams to be played locally.

Two non-conference tilts are slated tonight. La Verne hosts USIU at Bonita High's field and Pomona-Pitzer takes on Azusa Pacific at Alumni Field, both at 7:30 p.m.

Star halfback Billy Nash, who rushed for 69 yards in 15 carries against San Diego last week, has a badly bruised leg. He is one of several C-M players shaken up in the bruising battle.

Quarterback Jaime Opatrny was able to complete only two of 10 passes for just 14 yards and had one intercepted in the opener, but coach John Zinda has confidence in the 6-1, 195 pound soph.

"Opatrny looks like he can throw the ball well if he's given some protection," said Zinda.

Whittier, the defending conference champion, has switched from an offensive minded team to a defense oriented squad. In defeating Azusa Pacific (16-6) and La Verne (20-7), the Poets intercepted seven passes and recovered five fumbles.

Head coach John Godfrey admitted he saw signs of a revitalized running game in beating La Verne. Junior fullback Jim Root, 5-11, 210 pounds, gained 100 yards in 16 carries against the Leopards.

Quarterback Jim MacDonald leads conference passers with 23 completions in 46 attempts for 300 yards and two touchdowns. He has had one intercepted in two games.

While Whittier and Redlands have each played (and won) two games, the local schools have only played one each.

The Leopards, strictly a ground team last year, tried to go to the air against the Poets with a spectacular lack of success.

Quarterback Marty Mercurio completed only nine of 27 passes for 64 yards and had five intercepted. This caused Ortmayer to remark, "Our players forgot what color jerseys we were wearing."

USIU, a 9-6 winner over Southern Utah, had the NAIA National Lineman of the Week in 6-5, 240 pound Lem Burnham who was in on 20 tackles and sacked the quarterback three times. "His performance was the best I've seen in 19 years of coaching," said Don Turner, the Westerners' new head coach.

As if having to face Burnham, whose nickname is "Madman" isn't enough, the Leopards defense will have to contend with a 6-1, 210 pound fullback whose real name is Sampson Horne.

Meanwhile, frustrated Pomona-Pitzer will try to do better than a tie against tough APC. Although the Sagehens managed only a 14-14 tie with Whitman last week, their statistics were impressive.

Walt Ambord's team rates first among SCIAC teams with 309 yards total offense per game. The 'Hens passed for 163 yards and ran for 146.

On defense, the Sagehens are second having allowed 111 yards rushing and 170 passing for a total of 281 yards. Most of the passing yardage by Whitman came on two long "bombs" of 60 and 40 yards.

Quarterback Larry Cenotto got off to another good start by completing 15 of 25 passes for 146 yards and a touchdown. Cenotto added another 23 yards rushing and leads in total offense with 169 yards.

But John Tully and Jim Farmer of the Cougars are even more impressive than the P-P duo of Cenotto and Tony Soter (84 yards on 15 carries.)

Against Occidental last Saturday, Tully completed 10 of 13 passes for 101 yards and a touchdown. In two games, he has 27 completions in 40 attempts for 377 yards.

Farmer, 6-1, 195 pounds and a transfer from UCLA, carried the ball 13 times for 110 yards against Oxy. His two-game total is 228 yards on 30 carries for a 7.6 average per carry.

The Cougars have won the last two years by scores of 26-0 and 48-14.

Poly tests new offense

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Valley sports fans can look for a few surprising changes tonight when Cal Poly hosts Cal State Los Angeles at Kellogg Field in the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Some astonishing offensive maneuvers could make the Broncos as explosive as the school has ever seen.

Naturally there are a lot of ifs.

In the initial three games Poly's rushing game has been far from impressive. Lettermen running backs Greg Cruz, who gained 625 yards for a 4.1 yard average, and Rick Robinson, who netted 159 yards for a 4.0 average last year, have been slow to get untracked.

In '73 Cruz has totaled only 116 yards in 33 totes for a 3.5 average while Robinson has only 42 yards on 28 rushes for a 1.5 yard average.

The surprise has come from quarterback Jim Zorn who has netted 140 yards on 31 carries for a 4.52 average.

In a move to make the Bronco offense more explosive, Anderson will sit Robinson out and go with three wide receivers and one running back.

Joe Fabian, who was the College Division Player of the Week for grabbing eight passes for 199 yards and three TD's in the 31-17 win over Sacramento State last week, now has 12 receptions for 289 yards.

Ron Tatum has caught nine passes for 168 yards and four scores. The other receivers will be Don Hairston, a defensive back with sure hands.

Cruz will be the lone runner in the backfield with Zorn.

Cruz was shaken up in Wednesday's practice but should be ready tonight.

CSLA's offense is rated as good or better than any of the three teams Poly has faced thus far in the season.

The Bronco front four of Gary Bockman, Bill Embree, Joe Echeverria and Collin Bromley will have a busy night trying to contain the running of CSLA quarterback Rick Holoubeck and running backs Larry Watkins and Buford Ransom.

The Diablos run out of an effective option-type offense. A sort of combination Houston Veer and Wishbone.

Poly's linebackers of Joe Diaz, Dave Chapman and Lonnie Mahi should be in on more than their share of plays.

Besides reading the offense and trying to stop the Diablos running game, this trio will also be doing a great deal of pass coverage. Holoubeck, besides being rated as an excellent runner, also has pinpoint accuracy from the roll-out as a passer.

The Bronco secondary of Paul Russell, Dennis Amador, Rod Hiatt and Louie Perez will have ample opportunity to display their wares.

The two teams may not be considered arch-rivals but the two coaches are just that — rivals. They both have the same last name.

CSLA enjoys a 7-4 series edge including three straight wins.

Top college teams may run up scores

By United Press International

Seven of the nation's top 10 college football teams figure to run up the score today but top-ranked Southern California and No. 9 Tennessee must be sharp to remain unbeaten.

USC hosts No. 8 Oklahoma tonight in the Los Angeles Coliseum while Tennessee is at home in Knoxville to take on arch-rival and No. 13 Auburn. Both the Trojans and the Vols are one touchdown favorites.

No. 2 Nebraska, No. 3 Ohio State, No. 4 Michigan, No. 5 Alabama, No. 6 Penn State, No. 7 Notre Dame, and No. 10 Louisiana State all figure to romp.

Nebraska takes on Wisconsin, Ohio State plays Texas Christian, Michigan hosts Navy, Alabama meets Vanderbilt, Notre Dame takes on Purdue on national television, and LSU plays Rice.

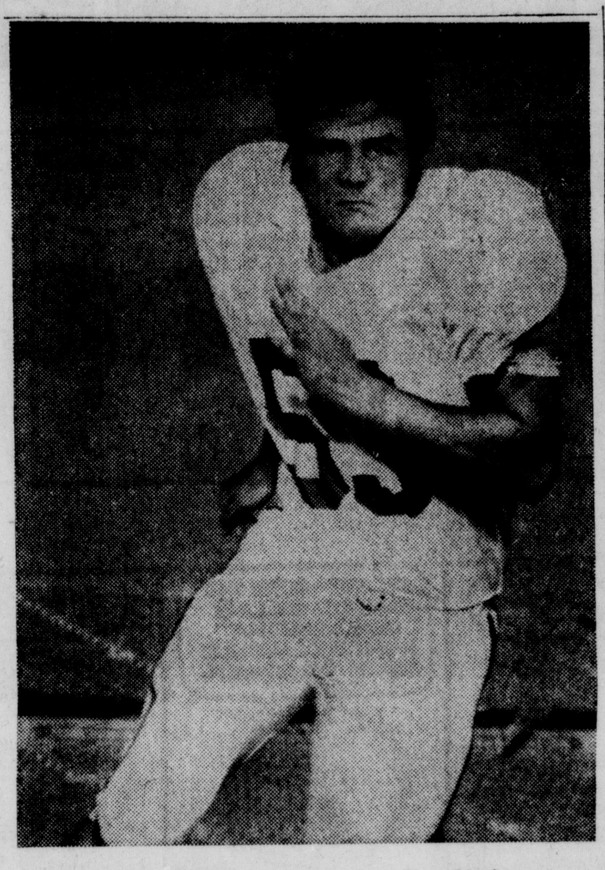
But Southern Cal's winning streak of 14 and unbeaten string of 19 are in jeopardy. Coach John McKay has watched in amazement as the Trojans struggeled to win their first two games against a young and inexperienced Arkansas team (17-0) and last week against stubborn Georgia Tech (23-6). USC's star running back, Anthony Davis, has been slow to get started this season and the overall offensive production has been far below expectations.

Oklahoma crushed Baylor 42-14 two weeks ago and the Sooners have been working hard since then for their confrontation with USC. Oklahoma's vaunted wishbone T has got McKay worried and although the Sooners have been put on two-year probation by the NCAA, they appear to have a very talented and aggressive football team.

Tennessee, 2-0 this season with hard-earned victories over Duke and Army, faces a much stiffer challenge today in Auburn, the Tigers have beaten Oregon State and Chattanooga and are looking forward to downing the Vols for the fourth straight year, it is the Southwest Conference opener for both schools.

"We are looking forward to another chance to beat Auburn, something we haven't been able to cash in on during my previous three years as head coach," said Tennessee's Bill Battle. "We need to play an error-free game against a team that is deadly at converting other teams' mistakes into scores, Auburn is an exceptionally well balanced team with a tough defense and great kicking."

Other important games include; UCLA at Michigan State, Missouri at North Carolina, North Carolina State at Georgia, Minnesota at Kansas, West Virgina at Illinois, Iowa State at Arkansas, Baylor at Colorado, Syracuse at Washington, Texas Tech at Texas, Florida at Mississippi State, and Boston College at Texas A&M and California at Army.



KEN BROWN . . . . . now at New Mexico

Former Ganesha star now a Lobo lineman

Brown, a sophomore from Ganesha High, started four games last year as a freshman for the Lobos and lettered. This season, there has never been a doubt about who the New Mexico center would be. He was a sophomore, but line coach Jerry Hardy had no qualms: "Ken has shown he can hub our offensive line. He isn't experienced yet, but he does have the ability to be an outstanding center—maybe All-Conference."

Brown came to New Mexico as a tight end, but was switched over to center in the fall of his freshman year. His quick development and his promise prompted coaches to move the starting center, Western Athletic Conference honorable mention honoree Curtis Akins, to defensive tackle last spring.

New Mexico's offensive line has their work cut out for them in the next four weeks. They whipped up on New Mexico State in the opener as Brown and the offensive line blasted open enough holes for 379 yards in rushing for the Lobos.

Garey at Ramona, 7:30 p.m.

Even thought they had to settle for a tie last weekend against Brea-Olinda the Garey Vikings have proved that they can put together an exciting and successful football team.

And the fact that Ramona lost its opener to Victor Valley, 24-14, last weekend makes the Vikings a slight favorite to claim their first victory since upsetting Claremont last year in San Antonio League play.

By some strange coincidence, Garey has a streak of its own, but its doubtful that the school will brag about it. The Vikings have a two-game tie streak going after finishing last year with a tie with Montclair and opening with a tie this season.

Charter Oak vs. Covina at Covina Stadium, 8 p.m.

Seasonal records will have no effect on the outcome of this rivalry. Althought they're not arch-rivals the closeness of the schools geographically makes this game different than others.

Both teams are hungry. Covina has lost 10 straight and has beaten the Lancers just twice in the past six years.

Charter Oak will be more hungry. They will be mean. Last week's 24-0 blanking by Royal Oak has had an effect on the team. It has on coach Wayne Fetters.

Lancers fans can look forward to the players hanging on to the ball in this game. Three of the four Charter Oak fumbles last week led to touchdowns for the opposition.

Chaffey vs. Mater Dei at Westminster, 8 p.m.

Chaffey's Tigers opened with a tight 15-14 victory over always tough Anaheim last week and it looks like their football fortunes are on the upswing. The Tigers foe this week is Mater Dei in a game slated for tonight at Westminster High.

Mater Dei, a school long on football tradition, is going through a rebuilding year this season and was held to a 7-7 tie by Santa Ana last week. Chaffey will have their hands full trying to contain Mater Dei running back Jim Garden, however, as Garden was virtually the entire offense against Santa Ana with 239 yards rushings.

Owls fight for Mission supremacy

It's only the second week of Mission Conference play, but the title may be on the line tonight at 7:30 when defending co-champions Citrus and Saddleback square-off at Citrus Stadium.

The teams battled to a tie a year ago at Saddleback and both are coming off victories last weekend. The Owls topped Palomar, 20-7, and Saddleback beat Chaffey, 35-21.

Owl coach John Strycula sees it as a game that can go either way, but Saddleback, with its No. 7 ranking on the community college grid poll, has to be the favorite.

Strycula hopes to balance his offensive attack with more passing from his quarterback son Bill. In the rushing department, tailback Doug Hopper has been good for 281 yards in two games, including 188 last week.

While Citrus and Saddleback battle for what may be the championship, Chaffey just hopes to remain in contention. The Panthers face San Bernardino at Chaffey Stadium in a 7:30 p.m. game. The loser is almost assured of being out of the title picture this year.

Handicap ends Fair racing

POMONA — Headed by the Elwood Johnston-owned entry of Balcony's Babe and Imaginative, the largest field since 1957 — 10 horses — is set to contest the $30,000-added Pomona Handicap, highlight of the closing-day program today at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The Johnston family, most successful owners in the Fair's history and already the winners of three stakes this season, will need a lucky lady or lady luck to earn the Pomona Handicap Trophy Saturday.

Balcony's Babe, fresh from an easy win in the Las Madrinas Handicap Tuesday, is the only mare in the field. Imaginative, runner-up as the heavy favorite in the Afflerbaugh Handicap last Saturday, drew the extreme outside post position and will need good fortune to gain a contending position without being forced wide on the first turn.

Heading the list of challengers in the mile and one-eighth Pomona Handicap is Elmendorf's Harbor Prince, upset winner of the Afflerbaugh. The evenly-matched field is completed by Tallyman, Sound 2nd, Forward Admiral, Rhett B., Knightlander, Olymbrose and Specialamente. With 10 starters the gross purse will be $33,150 including a winner's share of $19,650.

Fernando Toro was named on Balcony's Babe and Imaginative, but is expected to ride Imaginative. Toro has seen limited action at the Pomona oval in recent years but performed well when he was here.

Balcony's Babe won the Las Madrinas by 10 lengths. She also won her only other start at Pomona — it was three years ago — and her obvious fondness for the racing strip combined with her good current condition encouraged the Johnstons to try her against the males. The Johnstons won the 1966 Pomona Handicap with Fleet Treat, then a three-year-old filly.

Imaginative, now seven years old, was beaten almost four lengths by Harbor Prince with no apparent excuse, but he will carry one pound less in the Handicap while Harbor Prince picks up three pounds.

Alvaro Pineda again will ride Harbor Prince who was making his Pomona debut in the Afflerbaugh. The Kentucky-bred handled the turns well and was timed in 1.45 2-5.

Another seven-year-old, Tallyman, will be trying for his third win in the Pomona Handicap. He took the 1970 and '71 runnings — the race was then at a mile and one-quarter — and earned a shot at this year's renewal by taking a high-priced claiming event in 1.46 4-5 last Saturday.

L. J. Durousseau will be aboard Sound 2nd, an Argentine-bred who ran a mile in 1.34 4-5 in his best American effort. He was sixth after setting the pace in the San Joaquin Handicap, a Bay Meadows race in which Imaginative was second.

Knightlander, who lost all chance in the Afflerbaugh when he had to take up sharply on the final turn, will try again with Jerry Lambert in the saddle. The four-year-old stretch-runner was second in a pair of races, one of them the Pomona Derby, at the County Fair last year.

$2.1 million held fair price for airport site

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A Superior Court jury has set $2,112,175 as the fair market value the city of Los Angeles must pay a Palmdale couple to purchase their land on the proposed Intercontinental Airport site.

The jury also ruled the city must pay $150,000 in damages for delay in buying the 325-acre parcel.

Businessman Martin Stone and his wife, Elaine, claimed they had been denied the use of their land since 1969 when the City Council announced the intended site for the airport.

The land was expected to be condemned and bought by the city so the owners could not develop the property or sell it. But no action was taken and the owners continued to pay taxes on the land.

Jerry Fadem, attorney for the Stones, said the case was the first in which a jury awarded damages for delay in the Palmdale condemnation and the first valuation trial of any large land parcel within the proposed airport site.

Puppeteer and magician

The wizard of oohs and ahs

By ANITA MARIE LAPHAM

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) —A wizard lives here in a small, stucco house cluttered with dangling puppet heads and cobwebbed figurines.

An alchemist - artist - actor-magician, Jim Crosthwait spins fantasy almost as fast as his house spiders spin webs while his brown pet goat, Ramona, trims the foliage.

"I guess I love puppets because, unlike people, puppets are what they appear to be," he says. "A dragon has to be a dragon all the time—whether he's ferocious or chicken. He can never be Snow White.

Crosthwait has performed his puppets at art academies, universities, elementary schools and art festivals in 14 states in the Southwest and Midwest. He plans to join a theatrical group in Chicago for six weeks this fall, but will return to Memphis between engagements.

Scraggily-haired and scrawny, Crosthwait lives and works with the clutter of his craft. Books, including "Horror Library of the 1950s," "Fairytales of the World," studies by Oriental mystics and The Bible, lie strewn throughout the house.

"I want to keep a little magic in a world which is rapidly being stripped of magic," he says, fumbling with marionette strings and describing plans for a 14-foot, helium filled fat lady puppet intended to walk and talk and magically consume children.

With sleight of hand and mind, Crosthwait concocts fairy tales with tangible characters to match. His elements include putty and wood, electrical wires and lightbulbs, plastics, woods, cloth and sometimes chemical gases.

"Puppetry is kinetic (energized or moving) sculpture, only I'm the machine," he says, swinging his arms in wooden soldier fashion.

"For children, I take my art and make it entertainment. For adults, I use entertainment and make it into art. My art."

Plans for the big fat lady are still developing but dabbling with the sciences should bring results, smiles the wizard.

Thoughts

As I stared at all of this, I saw four wheels on the ground beneath them. The wheels looked as if they were made of polished amber and each wheel was constructed with a second wheel crosswise inside. They could go in any of the four directions without having to face around. The four wheels had rims and spokes, and the rims were filled with eyes around their edges. When the four living beings flew forward, the wheels moved forward with them. When they flew upwards, the wheels went up too.

Ezekiel 1:15-21

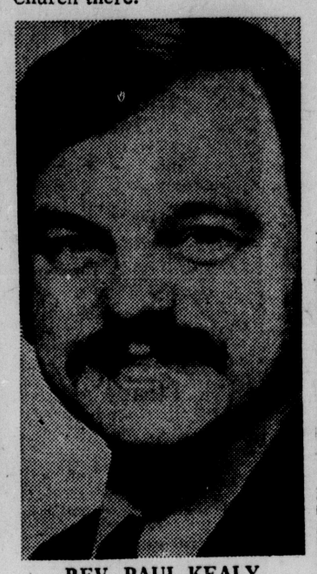
REV. A. M. ENGLE



REV. PAUL KEALY

He has also served Baptist congregations in Rialto, Yucaipa and Ontario where he served as assistant pastor. He served with Dr. Howard C. Estep of the World Prophetic Ministry for eight years.

He was ordained to the ministry in 1965.

He has been active in the San Bernardino and Riverside area with college singers from 22 churches which form the Youth Missionary Fellowship Chorale. The group gives monthly concerts at churches and youth gatherings.

He has also appeared with the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera and the Redlands Bowl Concert Association.

He and his wife, Lorene, and a daughter, Becky, live in Upland.

Mr. Bray will speak Sunday at the 11 a.m. worship service on the theme "God's Laws and Men's Rules." His 6 p.m. topic Sunday will be "Instruments of Satan."

Balk at stripping

Movie search reveals males more modest

MIAMI (UPI) —The toughest thing about making this movie, said Jack McGowan, is finding two of the main characters: A handsome male actor with straight, hairless legs and a girl with a perfect bosom.

McGowan is determined to solve the problem. Already he has assembled one of the most unusual movie-making companies ever put together and raised the money to finance its first venture.

McGowan and friends put together Union Artists Productions, Inc., which intends to film a $750,000 motion picture on a $302,000 budget with a cash outlay of only $100,000. A neat bit of organizing.

They're now casting for the zany murder mystery story, under the working title "The Artists and Models Ball Cruise Caper." Despite pointed attention on the female bosom, the movie will be rated PG, McGowan said.

The story calls for a male actor who can play both the part of a he-man cop and a female impersonator symmetrical enough to win a beauty queen contest. He's supposed to be the last desperate ploy of the feds to identify a dope smuggler who has been using beauty queens and murdering undercover narcotics agents.

"We need an experienced professional actor for the part," McGowan said. "You'd be surprised how many of the candidates have horrible legs."

Casting and producing a movie is a new experience for the 52-year old McGowan, who has been photographing and directing the camera work on major motion pictures around the world for 25 years.

"I must have looked at 30 bosoms on really good looking girls in the past week," he said. "You know, there wasn't a perfect set in the bunch."

But the biggest surprise, McGowan said, was that the girl prospects "dropped their tops without batting an eye but the men all balked at taking off their pants and showing their legs."

Union Artists Productions and its first film is the result of four years of planning by McGowan and Sandra L. Ulosevich, a movie script supervisor. They discovered that many of their union friends, who live here and are tired of traveling to find work, believed with them that a good motion picture could be produced here with local talent.

"More than 200 union technicians and 1,000 members of the Screen Actors Guild live in south Florida, but a good movie hasn't been made in Florida in many years," he said. "A lot of bad ones have and their reputation has rubbed off on us who live here even though the producers imported most of the people who did the work.

"We have the finest technicians in the world down here and we're going to prove that we can make a first class picture right here where we live," he said.

But first Union Artists must find the male lead and a perfect bosom from which to fashion a set of real looking falsies for him.

"I think I can help," said Max Wolkoff, a canny Miami publicity man who never takes himself too seriously.

So Max dreamed up the "Miss Perfect Bosom International Queen" contest, to be held at a Miami Beach hotel before the film production begins. Cash prizes and a part in the movie will be awarded the five best endowed young ladies.

HE TRIES — Mike Jones knows only success and claims he always keeps a positive attitude. Mike lost both legs in a house fire when he was six months old, but that hasn't stopped him with anything he has tried to do. He rides a motorcycle and wrestles on the school team, finishing second in the 95-pound class. He said, "I met a lot of kids who were really negative about things like this. I never could understand that." Mike here performs a maltse for which he received a standing ovation at his first school meet. The Sprague High School (Salem, Ore.,) student now wants to try water skiing.

Cali coed is Chino senior

Fabiola Salcedo, 18, of Cali, Colombia, is attending Chino High School as an International Fellowship, Inc., exchange student.

She is a member of the senior class. She is living with the Leonard Dykes Family at 15600 Pinto Way.

Miss Salcedo, who has a mother, Graciela, and six brothers and sisters at home, has completed one semester pre-med studies in Colombia. She plans to become a doctor.

She arrived in Chino Sept. 2. She is learning to speak English and enjoying being shown the sights of Southern California by her host family.

The Dykes are the parents of Margo Dykes, who spent last year as an exchange student in Lima, Peru. She now attends Chaffey College in Alta Loma.

Cultural complications

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

But in Europe the problem goes deeper. Western Europe has been swept by a vast tide of immigrant labor, probably the greatest in its history. As Turks and Yugoslavs have flooded into Germany, North Africans into France and huge numbers of others into the labor-hungry industrialized nations of western Europe, the result has been not only a new kind of labor relations problem but also sharp clashes between widely divergent cultures.

Altogether their numbers run into many millions with but one common denominator—the hope for a better way of life.

Tiny Belgium alone has an estimated 800,000 foreign workers who are indispensible to Belgium's industrial boom. Included among them are Greeks, Portuguese, Spaniards, Moroccans and Turks.

Among the 2.3 million immigrant workers in Germany are an estimated 600,000 Yugoslavs and an equal number of Turks.

The total in France is 3.5 million, of whom 750,000 come from Algeria. Included also are many blacks from West Africa. It is estimated that immigrants make up 11 per cent of France's work force.

Britain has three million foreign workers.

Switzerland's labor force is 30 per cent foreign.

Italy, traditionally a supplier of labor to western Europe, has exported an estimated two million workers to France, West Germany and Switzerland and now is running short itself, notably in low-paying menial jobs in the south.

Most of the workers flocking to the north from Mediterranean countries are unskilled and therefore work the least interesting and most menial jobs.

In France, some 370 foreign workers at the Boulogne - Billancourt plant walked off an assembly line, creating stoppages that led to the loss of more than 30,000 cars.

At the Ford plant in Cologne, West Germany, Turkish workers went on strike because 300 of their number were dismissed for being late in returning to work after their annual four weeks vacation.

But whatever the outward cause, wages, hours, status, the real cause is declared to be the assembly line.

A commission of the European Common Market in Brussels proposed after a study that assembly line operations be abolished "because it causes serious psychological damage" to workers.

Algeria has stopped immigration to France because of racial outbreaks there against Algerian workers and a number of unsolved killings.

What country needs is 300 more solons

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Several days recently the U.S. Senate was in session from 9:15 a.m. until early evening. The House, meanwhile, met from noon until mid or late afternoon.

A reporter newly assigned to Congressional coverage asked me why it was the Senate consistently worked longer hours than the House.

As of Sept. 5, the Senate had spent more than 665 hours in session this year, compared to 480 hours logged by the other body.

If the Senate passed a lot more bills he could understand it, he said. But such was not the case.

The Sept. 5 compilation showed the Senate had passed only two more measures, 412 to 410.

I pointed out to the newcomer that the House greatly outnumbered the Senate. When you've got 435 members pitching in to pass a piece of legislation, you obviously can do it quicker than if you've only got 100 members to do the same job.

"Many hands make light work," I said.

My colleague thanked me for clearing this up and hastily backed away. But I didn't stop thinking about it right then.

I kept thinking what a shame it was that the Senate had to work such long hours and how badly it needed reinforcements.

Unfortunately, under the Constitution as presently written the only way the size of the Senate can be increased is by adding more states to the union.

An effort was made to ease the workload by bringing in Alaska and Hawaii in 1959, but frankly those four extra senators, while admirably industrious, haven't enabled the Senate to pass bills much quicker than before.

There has been talk of statehood for Puerto Rico and possibly New York City, which might help some. However, a hardnosed assessment of the territorial situation casts doubt enough new states could be acquired to put the Senate on a work schedule comparable to the House.

The logical alternative, then, is a Constitutional amendment increasing the number of senators each state sends to Washington. Eight apiece should be about right.

That would give the Senate 400 members, enough to pass most bills in a single afternoon if everyone did his part.

It also would help the legislative branch regain power parity with the executive branch. For with 300 additional senators, there would be at least 275 additional presidential candidates to challenge the White House incumbent.

Project aims to reduce auto thefts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A $2 million program to beef up auto theft squads in state and local law enforcement operations was announced recently by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger.

The program, made possible by a federal grant, already has resulted in hiring 50 new California Highway Patrolmen, Younger said.

In the past, he said, auto theft was not a high priority with lawmen, but declared the new program would mean an all out effort to stop the thieves. He predicted a five per cent reduction in the number of stolen cars next year.

The attorney general said more than 130,000 vehicle thefts occur in the state each year at a loss of $100 million.

Hazing at West Point ends youth's service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Fairfax, Va., youth has charged that intensive hazing by upper classmen forced him to resign his commission at West Point, the Washington Star-News has reported.

Mark Brown, 18, claimed that while recuperating from acute dehydration this month, he was kept awake by hazers and allowed only a minimal amount of food during a three-month period.

He told the Star-News that because of the vigorous hazing he endured after being released from the military academy hospital, he suffered a relapse and was advised to leave the school for health reasons.

MARK BROWN

The Star-News quoted Lt. Col. Thomas Garigan, public information officer for West Point, as saying: "We are still a mean bunch of bastards. We never promised him a rose garden."

Garigan also told the Star-News he didn't believe Brown understood what constituted hazing and that the academy would make sure anyone "in need of chewing out" gets it.

Brown was sworn in as a cadet July 2 and underwent the academy's military indoctrination program at Lake Frederick, N.Y., near West Point.

He said that after a march from Lake Frederick to the campus and two days of parades and formations, he collapsed on Aug. 30 and was hospitalized for dehydration. According to the youth's account, he was released from the hospital on Sept. 5 and suffered the relapse six days later.

Brown returned to his suburban Washington home on Sept. 14.

He told the Star-News: "The problem with the academy is that upper classmen have become egomaniacs and once a plebe has gone through the hazing, he seems to say the next year that he is going to give what he got."

$9 million of estate goes to the dogs in court fight

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) —Seventy-three pampered dogs, pets of an oil company heiress, received $9 million Thursday as a five-year court fight over the woman's estate was settled.

The settlement, made last year and reaffirmed last month, allots $123,287 to each dog.

When all the dogs die, the remaining money will be given to the Auburn University Veterinary School for Small Animal Disease Research.

Miss Eleanor Ritchey, a Quaker State Oil Corp. heiress, died Oct. 14, 1968, and left her entire $4.5 million estate to a pack of 150 strays and show dogs.

While her two half-sisters and a half-brother, all Pennsylvania residents, fought the will in court, the estate grew to $14 million, and some of the dogs died.

The relatives were awarded $2 million to split among themselves by Broward County Circuit Judge Leroy Moe and the remaining $3 million went for taxes, attorneys and executors.

The dogs will be kept in a modern, air conditioned kennel west of Deerfield Beach, Fla., north of here, eating heartily and receiving weekly medical checkups.

Mugging of the President

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

It was comforting to observe the Secret Service seizure Wednesday of some 2,000 coffee mugs in a San Francisco gifte shoppe, shows the government is still in operation, that the hand is still on the tiller. In view of Watergate and the ensuing chaos, the public had begun to wonder who was minding the store, but the federal crackdown on illicit coffee mugs brings us all reassurance.

The coffee mugs bore a facsimile of a $3 bill and an "uncompliemntary picture" of President Nixon. (What's a complimentary picture of Nixon?) The Secret Service dragnet and said, carried out, I presume, with sirens blaring and red lights flashing, daringly broke up an international ring of coffee-mugs-with-uncomplimentary-pictures-of-Nixon smugglers. It reaffirmed the nation's confidence that the government still has a sense of duty, if not a sense of humor.

Horace Gibbs, tilght-lipped, set-jawer agent in charge of those Secret Service agents in San Francisco not assigned to busting into Watergate, said the coffee mugs violated federal laws governing "similitude" of paper money. He was not concerned by the fact that the "paper money was in fact an earthenware mug, that the U.S. has not got a $3 bill, and that the picture of Nixon was a mug shot.

As a public service, I appeal to those who have hot mugs in their possession to turn them into the local police. And bring your toothbrush.

Casual counterfeiters are also warned that attempting to cash a coffee mug in banks will arouse suspicion. Tellers have been alerted not to accept $3 bills on coffee mugs, with or without two lumps of sugar.

Mr. Gibbs is understandably enraged over what a flood of $3 bills on coffee mugs will do to the national economy. He's a Horace of a different choler.

The mugging has not sent the rest of the nation's law enforcement to the panic button. U.S. Attorney James Browning declined to prosecute. "This doesn't sound like the most serious violation I've ever heard of," he yawned. Gibbs meanwhile, was probably on a barge out in San Francisco Bay, dumping overboard crates of confiscated coffee mugs for the benefit of America and the TV cameras.

The mugs turned out to have been manufactured in Japan, ahso! Gibbs done right to confiscate them. If anyone is going to sell uncomplimentary coffee mugs of the President, it should be people who voted for him. Buy American!

So, while drugs pour into the country, the Mafia reigns unmolested, crime runs rampant in the streets and corruption in the capital, SS Agent Gibbs can sit back happily in his swivel chair, complacent in having throttled the insidious coffee-mug-with-$3-bill-and-uncomplimentary-picture-of-Nixon combine.

Time for boy 17, to live a fuller life

By JEAN ADAMS

NOT AFTER DARK: (Q): I am 17 and very interested in a girl. I've known her a year and a half and talked to her, but never dated her or anything like that.

The reason is my parents. They trust me but do not want me to be out late. I do not go to dances or parties. I do not smoke, drink or take drugs. I try never to give them cause to worry. I am always home before dark, summer or winter, and never go out after that.

I am afraid because of all this that if I tried to be friendlier with this girl she would find out and think I was pretty square. She is really wonderful and I would not want her to think unfavorably of me. What would you do? — Obedient in Ohio

(A): Ask the girl to go out with you on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon. After a couple of afternoon dates, take her by your home to meet your arents. When they see what a fine girl she is, maybe they will also see that it is time for you to start a life of your own.

It is time, you know. With this girl, or other friends, you owe it to yourself to start living a fuller life — your own life.

WHIRL GIRL: (Q): I met Kenny skating. He liked me and gave me a ring a week later. But by then I had met Jim and liked him more than Kenny. Kenny asked me for his ring back but I had on Jim's. Kenny's was at home. Kenny tripped Jim up while he was skating and Jim broke his ankle.

While Jim was in the hospital I met Wes. I really like Wes. But Jim is out now and says I have to choose between him and Wes and Kenny. I don't know what to do. — Undecided in Pennsylvania.

(A): You sound very young and very fickle and very inconsiderate of your friends. I am afraid you have, consciously or unconsciously, been trying to make them jealous of each other.

Tell Jim the truth — that you are too young to go steady with one boy but would like to be his friend if he can forgive you for being foolish. Give him his ring back. Give Kenny his ring back. If Wes has given you a ring, give it back, too.

Then try not to be foolish again.

'Things are different' in Spain

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

visit can hardly qualify one as an expert on a people and a country — but the month has certainly pointed up the poles-apart philosophies that control Spain and the United States.

It would be presumptuous to try and choose one as the "better" — but interesting to compare their differences.

It is very unpleasant to be poor in Spain. No one is starving, few are unemployed. But unlike in the United States, the professional bleeding hearts and the career social service workers have been unable to brainwash the producers into thinking poverty is an honorable estate. Very few of the so called good things of life are handed to the Spanish paupers, or welfare clients as they are termed on the other side of the Atlantic. As a result there is a tremendous self-interest drive to improve themselves; and second and third generation hand-outs don't exist. Again, I'm not saying this is the "better" way — merely the Spanish way.

Another great difference is the attitude toward youth. Americans hate to mature. No longer is the adolescent pushed out of the next as soon as he is able to fend for himself, but rather enshrined on a pedestal and worshipped as though he could do no wrong. Can you conceive of a draft dodger's protest march in Franco's Spain! Again, no effort to select one way over another, but merely to report on the differences.

In he 16th century, Spain was the greatest country in the world. Columbus discovered the New World, an Italian, but with Spanish backing. During this Golden Age Balboa would discover the Pacific Ocean, Cortez would begin his march through Mexico and Pizarro would conquer Peru. In 1898 the United States brought an end to the Spanish Empire when Spain was forced to abandon Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines.

For the last 75 years Spain has been slowly recovering. They sat out two world wars and lived through a revolu-

MADRID, Spain: A 30-day tion. This makes for a tough nation of survival-sharpened men and women.

In the United States we push a button and the elevator operates, throw a switch and we have a selection of television and radio programs, pick up a newspaper from our front porch and read of the problems our President is having with Watergate. These things we take for granted. But you will be disappointed if you expect them in Spain.

Trump lead lets in game

By Owald & James Jacoby

Four spades is a very good contract for South. Give East the ace of diamonds and West the king of clubs and he would have no trouble making five odd, but those two cards are placed just where he doesn't want them to be.

In spite of this unfortunate situation, South found a way to make his contract after West was kind enough to open a trump, rather than a club.

East took his ace and led trumps back. South won in dummy and decided to attack diamonds right away. The normal play would have been to lead the deuce and go up with his king, but South had a slightly different idea. He led dummy's jack!

If East just played low, South would still have played the king, but East covered the jack with the queen. A bad play, but the sort of bad play that even the best players are going to make nine times out of 10.

Now South held back his king. This left East on lead. He couldn't do any good by playing a club and did lead a heart to dummy's ace. A second diamond was led and now the king lost to the ace.

West led a club, but it was too late. South went up with dummy's ace; ruffed a diamond and eventually discarded his losing clubs on good diamonds.

The doctor comments

There is some help for hypoglycemics

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please write an article on hypoglycemia — low blood sugar? A friend of mine has had it for over a year and even though he is on a sugar fee, high protein diet, he feels no better. He sleeps only three or four hours a night and feels so drained of energy he can hardly move. Do you publish any material on it? Is there any hope for his recovery at all? He is ready to try anything. He cannot go on much longer feeling so bad.

Dear Reader — Yes, I have written several columns on this subject. Perhaps it would be helpful to point out that there any many other factors that cause low blood sugar (glucose) besides the diet. The blood glucose level is kept within narrow ranges by the action of the liver, which is a kind of blood glucose thermostat. Wheever the blood glucose gets too low the stores of animal starch (glycogen), or even body protein from muscles and other cells, are simply processed to form more blood glucose. That is why a person in a starvation situation doesn't collapse or die immediately from low blood sugar.

Through the action of the liver and fat cells excess amounts of blood glucose are converted to fat. If the build-up or absorption of sugar is faster than the body can process, the excess of eliminated through the kidneys. All of these mechanisms are then controlled by other glands in the body.

Whenever the liver is damaged there may be a low blood glucose level. Simply put, the liver loses its ability to release glucose into the blood. Any factor that causes liver damage can be responsible for this.

Other people have true hyperinsulinism where the pancreas regularly forms excess insulin unrelated to the food they eat. Rare individuals with disease of the adrenal glands, sometimes called Addison's disease, also have a tendency to low blood sugar.

Add to that the point that fatigue is a symptom of many things, not a diagnosis of low-blood sugar. It can be caused by anemia, tuberculosis, and a host of medical problems as well as being caused by psychological factors. Because many of the symptoms of low blood sugar are the same as those caused by anxiety reactions, many individuals with psychological problems end up being told they have low blood sugar or thinking that is their problem when they really need help in the psychological area.

You can see why I can't really tell you what to expect for your friend. If he has faithfully followed a proper diet — which may include more than avoiding sugar—then it is hard to see how his problem could be a diet related one. If he is still eating lots of starches (breads, rolls, potatoes) he should stop these and limit his carbohydrates to bulky vegetables and use tomatoes to replace citrus fruit. He could also try eating small meals at more frequent intervals.

To this I would add eliminating tobacco, coffee, alcohol, and developing a good fitness program. That could help him—unless he has some problem more complicated than simple low blood sugar related to diet.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS VICTIM — Deborah Bone, 9, has her cast autographed by Angelo Pantrell, principal of South Range School, Derry, N.H., the school she attends Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Attending school is a major undertaking for a girl who must spend three hours a day and all of the night lying in a cast. Debbie has rheumatoid arthritis, a disease of the joints that affects 250,000 children in the United States.

Debbie's only 9, but she is arthritis victim

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

DERRY, N.H. (UPI) —When three o'clock in the afternoon rolls around, 9-year-old Deborah Bone doesn't cry any more.

This year she can go to school two mornings a week—a major undertaking for a girl who must spend three hours a day and all of the night lying in a cast.

Debbie has juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, a disease of the joints which affects 250,000 children in America. Some 20 million adults suffer from the disease.

The crippling disease kept Debbie out of school in second and third grades. She was tutored for 90 minutes a day and kept up with her class, but it wasn't the same.

"Three o'clock would come and she'd cry because she had no friends. She'd see them during the summer but when school came naturally they spent their time with other people," said Debbie's mother, Mrs. Norman Bone.

One-level school

Debbie still sees a tutor, retired teacher Alice Follansbee, daily, but her life revolves around those Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the South Range School. It's a new school outside her district. Authorities arranged for a taxi to take her there because it is built on one level without stairs.

She says simply "the kids" when asked what she missed most about not going to school before. Now she is with them, "studying math, the times table —we're up to the nines."

Her mother said Debbie started limping just a few days before her first birthday. "It took us four months to pinpoint the disease," she said.

Debbie was hospitalized each year for tests, and several times spent weeks in the hospital. The worst time was 1971, when she spent 10 weeks in Robert B. Brigham Hospital in Boston, the only arthritis hospital in the United States. It has only 96 beds, but there is a large research center.

"She had an awkward gait. Her legs seemed to be going outward," Mrs. Bone said. Debbie spent six weeks in traction in the hospital, more time in casts, and came out on crutches, months before the doctors expected her treatment to be completed.

Extra loving care

The hospital gave extra care and love to the blue-eyed, blonde little girl. "An example of this is that while Debbie was in traction, so was her favorite doll, Mrs. Beasley. When Debbie had her cast made, so did Mrs. Beasley. Mrs. Beasley goes back when Debbie has to go back and they both have new casts made," Mrs. Bone said.

At first both Debbie's legs had to be in casts. Now only her left leg and right hand must be in casts at night, and for another three hours during the day.

Rheumatoid arthritis is a disease of the synovial fluid, which cushions the joints. The fluid eats away at cartilege until the bone ends rub against each other. It affects people in degrees varying from morning stiffness to complete crippling. The cause is not known, nor the cure.

Dr. J. Sydney Stillman, Debbie's doctor at Robert B. Brigham, said that although she has a serious case, her outlook is hopeful, as nearly half of all juvenile rheumatoid arthritis victims eventually have total remission of the disease.

"Her own determination has made her progress possible," he said.

Police horse power reducing crime rate

Every time members of the six-man mounted patrol move into a high-crime neighborhood, burglars disappear "almost instantly," according to Maj. Julian Spence.

Spence said the quarter-horses have chased down suspects many times by taking off through back yards, jumping hedges and fences and threading their way between houses.

He said the horses can "go anywhere a man can go—and a lot of places a man wouldn't want to go."

The mounted patrol was instituted two years ago at Piedmont Park to drive out drug pushers and control unrest. Later, it was moved to Grant Park, and the success story was repeated.

When residents of the Grant Park area began complaining of as many as nine burglaries a day, the horse patrol detoured out of the park and into the streets.

In a matter of days, the burglary rate dropped to zero.

"They know they can't carry a television set and outrun this horse," one patrolman explained.

Spence said he plans to expand the patrol and use it in other areas—parking lots at Atlanta Stadium and at the Civic Center, for example—as soon as money is available.

Lack of freedom cited by Czech playwright

VIENNA (UPI) —Czechoslovak playwright Pavel Kohout, joining the ranks of dissidents in the Soviet Union, broke a long silence today and protested what he termed a lack of freedom in his country.

Kohout, a supporter of former Czechoslovak liberal party leader Alexander Dubcek, remained in Prague after the 1968 Soviet invasion. He has been silenced ever since by the Czechoslovak Communist regime.

In an interview granted in Prague and carried by Austrian radio and television today, Kohout protested "the military coup" in Chile and the lack of freedom in Czechoslovakia.

"I am protesting against the junta in Chile," he said, "But I am also protesting against the situation in our country. I cannot remain silent because the same things happen here in our system.'

Kohout, 45, was one of the most ardent partisans of Dubcek's "socialism with a human face" that was crushed by Soviet tanks in August 1968. He happened to be in Italy during the Soviet invasion but later returned to his home country.

Nearly 70% of 200,000 jobs now restored

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nearly 70 per cent of the 200,000 jobs slashed by California manufacturers two years ago have been restored in the current spending boom, Wells Fargo Bank said Tuesday.

Harold L. Buma, vice president and manager of the bank's economics department, said many manufacturers now have a growing backlog of unfilled orders.

Buma said gains have been particularly noticeable in non-defense areas such as apparels, textiles, auto assembly, machinery, electronics, metals, furniture and lumber.

Reasons for the comeback, he said, were expansion in the domestic and international economy, the recovery in the state's aerospace-electronics industry and the boom in consumer spending and housing.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

Mitchum pleased with latest role

By DICK KLEINER

Hollywood (UPI) — It doesn't seem too long since Robert Mitchum was Hollywood's enfant terrible. The years roll along, even for film stars, and now he's one of Holywood's elder statesmen.

Gradually, he's gotten the recognition as an actor he always deserved but never received. Like the great stars of the past — Tracy, Bogart, Gable — Bob Mitchum is always in there, doing a great acting job. He'd be the last to admit it.

In common with most of those old-time greats, Mitchum is given to undue modesty, when it comes to his acting. He never likes his own things or hardly ever. One exception is his new release, ''The Friends of Eddie Coyle." This one he is enthusiastic about.

"It's the best thing I've done in a year," he says, which may sound like high praise, except it happens to be the only thing he's done in a year. Even when he's immodest, the modesty shines through.

Scripts continue to pour in to him but he's grown more selective lately.

"I use two criteria in judging what films I'll do," he says. "The first is — is it a picture that I can damage too badly? And, the second, will it be comfortable and convenient?

"I don't like doing things which involve too much work. Yet, curiously, I enjoy working — when I'm working. It's just that I hate thinking about working."

He has gotten himself trapped in some dreadful films in the past. He says he's often been working on a picture and goes off by himself, sits on a rock and asks, plaintively, "What am I doing here?"

That probably won't happen as much in the fuure. He's being more careful, more choosy and it seems to be working. As Eddie Coyle, he gives a brilliant performance, even speaks with a Boston accent. I didn't think the picture worked too well but he did.

"The Friends of Eddie Coyle" was filmed entirely in and around Boston and the locations help. Mitchum, surprisingly for one who is away from home as much as he is, says he doesn't like to travel.

"It's funny," he says. "I just don't like to travel — but I like being places. I liked being in Boston. Not that I did much there. I holed up in my motel room most of the time. One good thing was that it was cider season so I spent most of my time drinking cider and eating cheese."

He didn't go to the movies much as a diversion. In fact, not at all. He's a confirmed nonmoviegoer. He just doesn't like them.

Ragtime specialist to perform at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — Joshua Rifkin, a young musician active in the return to popularity of ragtime music, especially the intricate harmonies of Scott ("The Maple Leaf Rag") Joplin, will present a concert in UCLA's Pauley Pavilion at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 26.

A well known musicologist as well as musician, Rifkin has devoted a good deal of his career life to the study of the ragtime genre. His UCLA performance will include in its repertoire works performed on the hit recording of Joplin piano rags released by Nonesuch Records.

Ragtime first swept over America at the end of the 1890's, and its popularity seemed to increase along with the excitement engendered by a new century. Nurtured primarily by a large corps of itinerant black pianists in the American Midwest, ragtime seemed to synthesize very diverse musical forms, among them, marching band music, European-American dances such as the polka, quadrille and schottisch, sentimental songs and salon music. These were tied together with the vital syncopated rhythms indigenous to Black music in Africa, the Caribbean and the United States.

Joplin's first rag composition, "The Maple Leaf Rag," immortalized the club in Sedalia, Mo. where the best rag pianists flocked around the turn of the century. Joplin also created the "Rag Time Dance," a folk ballet, and two ragtime operas, "A Guest of Honor" and Treemonisha," neither of which enjoyed the great success of his individual ragtime pieces.

Rifkin's teachers have included David Labovitz in piano and Vincent Persichetti and Karlheinz Stockhausen in composition. He holds degrees in composition from Juilliard and Princeton, and he studied in Europe as a Fulbright scholar. Rifkin's recordings for Nonesuch have ranged from 15th to 20th Century repertoire. For Elektra, he made "The Baroque Beatles Book" and numerous arrangements for Judy Collins. A former musical director of Nonesuch, he recently joined the faculty of Brandeis University.

Scripps publishes letters of founder

CLAREMONT — Ellen Browning Scripps, founder of Scripps College, was co-founder of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain and originator of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, but her writings have never been published except in newspapers.

Now, however, Scripps College has produced "A Sampling from Travel Letters, 1881-1883, by Ellen Browning Scripps." The publication, to be distributed to members of the Scripps constituency, presents excerpts from some of the letters written by Miss Scripps from Europe and Africa.

Dorothy M. Drake, Librarian Emeritus of Denison Library at Scripps, accidentally discovered the letters years ago while doing research on travel. Through the assistance of the Detroit Evening News, she recovered 99 letters published in the News as columns. Miss Drake, assisted by a committee from the Macpherson Society of Scripps College, a group of Southern California women dedicated to furthering the interests of the Macpherson Collection of books by and about women, selected the theme, "Women," and chose excerpts from Miss Scripps' letters dealing with the lot of women in Europe and Africa.

The publication begins with a brief introduction by Scripps President Mark H. Curtis and a personal introduction to Miss Scripps by her grand-niece, Mrs. Roger Revelle, a graduate of the first Scripps College class of 1931.

Many of Miss Scripps' words, written about 100 years ago, ring true today. She wrote, "Many things strike the visitors in Europe with a sense of strangeness and oddity; none more so than the general employment of women in vocations in which in America are filled entirely by men."

"We fell in at Naples with the advance guard of the great army of tourists," she wrote. "I am ashamed to say that I am ashamed of the fraternity especially of that branch of it that I call fellow countrymen. It is not altogether because they wear their old clothes and talk loud, and are self-assertive; nor even because of their ignorance — I am too humiliatingly conscious of my own to assume the office of critic — but chiefly because they so flaunt this ignorance in the face of the world and are seemingly so little conscious of it and have no little regret for it."

Mrs. Farley O'Brien of Studio City, who sponsored the publication, dedicates it to Miss Drake who, like Miss Scripps, graduated from Knox College. Mrs. O'Brien, a Scripps alumna who served on the Scripps board of trustees from 1963-1968, has been a radio and magazine feature writer.

Football fans who prefer their game at home on TV have an opportunity to analyze the fine points of the game to a greater extent than the average man in the stands. Instant replays, in slow motion, show exactly how each player carries out his assignment.
Sophisticated fans are apt to watch the interior offensive linemen. They get little publicity or glory but they often decide whether or not a play succeeds. Watch to see if the guards pull out to lead blocking for a running play, move downfield to block for a pass receiver or fall back to protect the passer.

"I don't want anyone else to hear," one iguana seems to say as they gather to "discuss" the day's latest activities.

An affection for reptiles

Located in the foothills just north of here, the couple's spacious home and its adjoining property has become "home" for no less than 75 turtles and tortoises, 10 iguanas and a lizard.

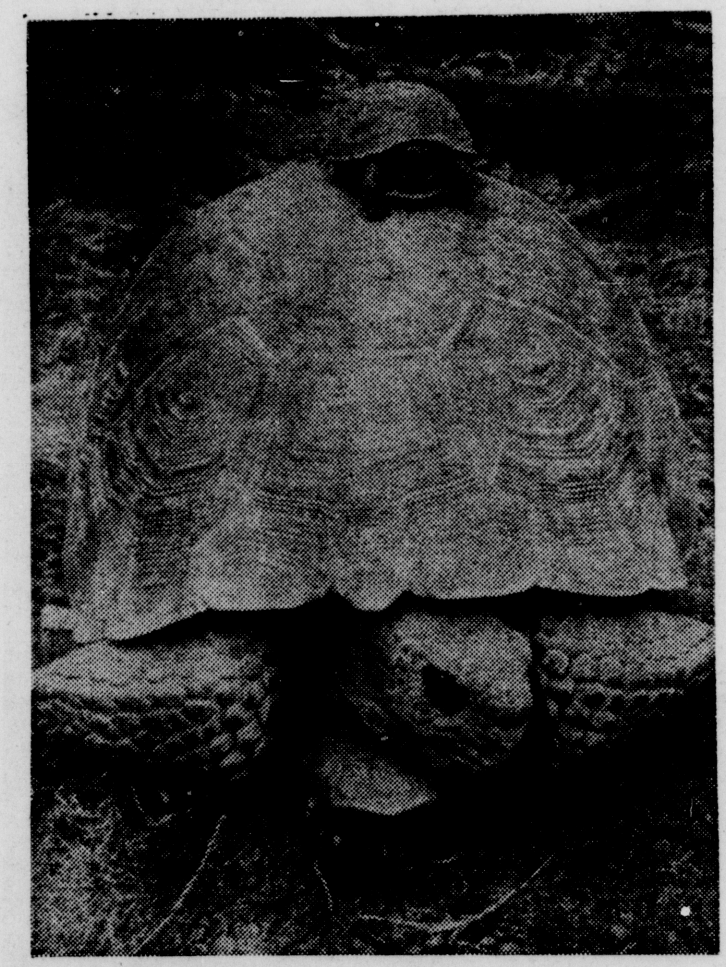
"There is something very agreeable about turtles and tortoises which can't easily be put into words," Bill said during a recent interview.

Bill and Diane began collecting their chelonina friends about five years ago. It was Diane who first suggested the idea.

"Bill got conned into it," she said. "I just thought it would be nice to have a tortoise in the yard. I've always been interested in reptiles since I was a little girl."

Of course, Bill obliged, but, as Diane said, "once we got one, another always seemed to come along."

"It always seemed that somebody had a turtle or tortoise they didn't want, and we would take them."



Whether Caroline, the box turtle on the top, will get wherever she wants to go any faster on the back of Pokey, her California desert tortoise friend, only time will tell. Pokey has been in captivity for 20 years.

They also bought them in pet shops and often stopped on highways during their travels in the East to pick up the slow, clumsy reptiles.

"The only time we'll stop and pick up a tortoise is if we see one crossing the highway," Diane said. "We feel like we are saving their lives by taking them off the roads.

"We never go into the streams or fields to get them. To do so would be a violation of conservation ideas."

The Sracks' collection ranges from domestic chelonians, such as the California desert tortoise and box turtles, to exotic leopard turtles.

The latter type orginated in Africa, and is so named because it sports the black and gold spots of a leopard. Its shell is also distinct from other turtles, featuring a high-dome shape like an igloo.

Leopard turtles are also expensive because they are very rare, Diane said. "A full-grown leopard will cost about $90," she said.

Whereas the leopard turtles and some of the box turtles are kept in glass cages in the house, most of the Srack's turtles and tortoises stay in a temporary enclosure in the backyard.

But Bill is in the process of building a permanent yard which will feature a pond for the aquatic-minded turtles and a desert-type environment for the tortoises. The yard will have a perimeter of 180 feet.

The pond, Bill said, will be deep enough (two feet) for the turtles to hibernate, but will be shallow at the outer edges of the pool so a young tutle that is not a good swimmer will not drown. The pool will also be stocked with leaves, mud and sticks like the turtles use for hibernation in their regular environments.

Desert soil from Joshua Tree National Park will be brought in to give the tortoises soil native to them. Bushes will also be planted for shade.

"We may spend about $2-$3 a week," Diane said.

Most of the reptiles are vegetarians. Besides eating the vegetation in the backyard, the animals are fed lettuce, cantaloupes, spinach and bananas, and supplemented with vitamins for added, nutritional value.

The box turtles, which are meat-eaters, live off bugs, snails and Purina dog chow, which Diane says they "really like."

One food the reptiles are never exposed to is the kind sold in pet shops. Says Diane, "It's like trying to feed humans sawdust."

In an attempt to learn more about turtles and tortoises, the Sracks joined the California Turtle and Tortoise Club shortly after they began their collection.

The club, which was formed over 11 years ago, is designed primarily to "assist in the

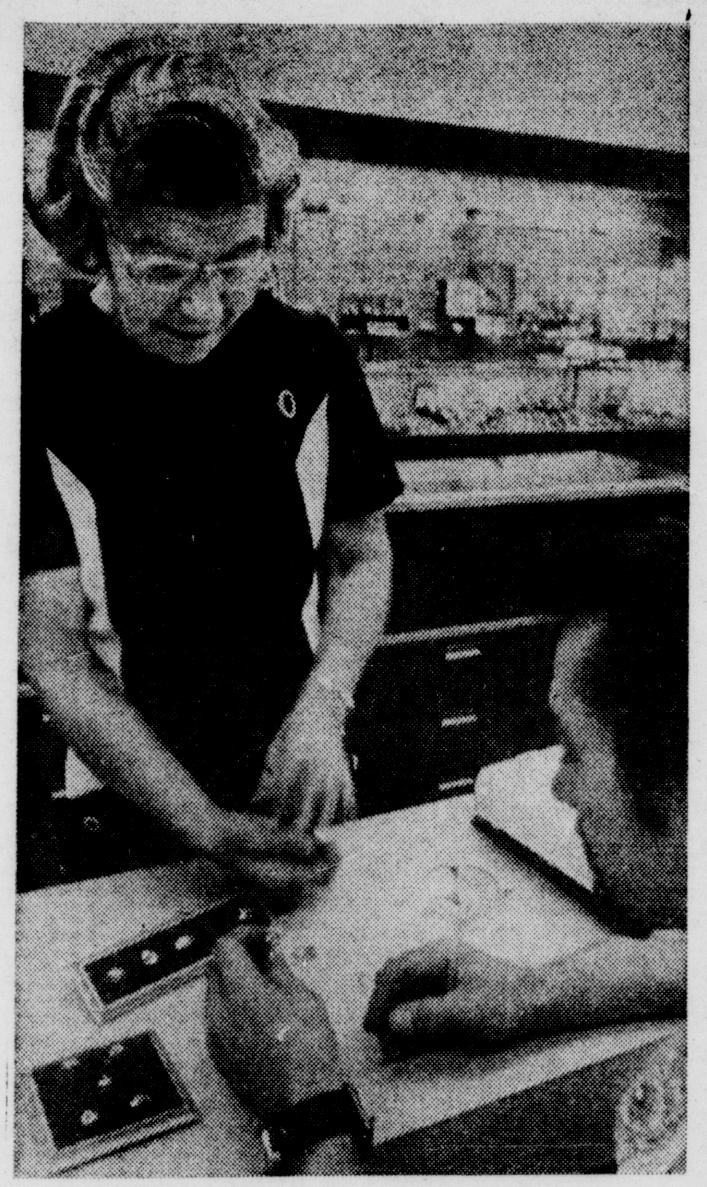
Personalized service and fine jewelry are featured at Bryant and Co., 215 Pomona Mall East. The jewelry store is Pomona's oldest.

Design-it-yourself jewelry

Local store will translate your idea

POMONA — Customers are given the chance to design their own jewelry at Bryant and Co. Jewelers, 215 Pomona Mall East, where custom-made pieces are a specialty.

"Most jewelers don't do custom designing of jewelry," stated Alan Thomas, owner and manager of Bryant's, "because it takes a great deal of time or they don't have the training and knowledge. The only way to get really good at it is to do it a long time."



Iva Uribe, a member of the Bryant's staff, helps a customer choose from a selection of diamond rings. Mrs. Uribe has been an employe at Bryant and Co. for 25 years.

Custom-designed jewelry may be made from stones that have been inherited, are loose from other settings, or are in other pieces of the customer's jewelry. Bryant's has a variety of custom settings available in the store or a customer may sketch the design he wishes made. The jewelry is then made by hand.

The service is also used by persons desiring an original, one-of-a-kind jewelry piece of their own design with a new stone.

"I think custom designing is the most interesting aspect of the jewelry business," Thomas said. "Many of the things we sell we make ourselves."

In addition to custom jewelry, Bryant and Co. carries a complete ready-made inventory, specializing in fine jewelry and gems. The store carries fine diamonds, features genuine stones and imports many of its jewelry from Europe. In stock in the jewelers is Chinese jade and opals from Australia.

A fine line of watches is also available at Bryant's from such makers as Omega, Accutron, Tissot, Bulova and Seiko.

Bryant and Co., Pomona's oldest jewelry store, boasts a staff of professionally trained jewelers. Thomas, whose father, the late Martin R. Thomas, bought Bryant and Co. in 1955 from its original owner, began working in jewelry stores owned by his father at an early age. His mother, Florence, with many years of jeweler's experience works in the store along with Iva Uribe, a 25-year employe also of Bryant and Co.

Thomas received his jeweler training at the Gemological Institute of America, Los Angeles, where people from throughout the world study appraising and gemology.

As well as selling fine jewelry, Bryant and Co. also handles the professional end of the jeweler's business by doing appraising along with designing. Fine watch and jewelry repair service is also featured.

"We give personalized service and people always come back," according to Thomas. "We grow every year —so of course, this is our best year. Our business is thriving."

Henry II—a view from the bedroom

By NICHOLAS C. POLOS

Margaret Butler's strange alchemy of history and fiction of 12th Century England, and the court of Henry II (who reigned from 1154 to 1189), has produced an exciting tapestry of Henry's sexual exploits on a one-dimensional plane.

The novel revolves around the relationship of Henry himself, to Eleanor of Aquitane, his wife, and to complete this royal triumvirate one must add Thomas Becket, Henry's archbishop and trusted friend and advisor.

Oh yes, to this colorful dramatis personae one should also add a fourth, the "faery woman" Hikenai, a pagan English whore who charms Henry, and who is in turn herself charmed by the "savage deities and primitive rites of the old Saxon gods."

This combination broadens the possibilities of the ordinary eternal triangle, and inevitably sows the seeds of tragedy and conflict not only between Henry and his archbishop, but with the royal Eleanor who is a bit of a medieval shrew herself.

Although the story takes as its historical backdrop the harsh but colorful events of medieval England and France as well as the decline of paganism and the ultimate triumph of the civilizing effects of the Normans (and the author captures this brilliantly), the author's bolts of lightning are reserved for Henry's youthful lust and sexual passion.

The title of the book is somewhat misleading. "The Lion of England" could easily be taken for a bull!

True, Eleanor the royal wife, is painted a "promiscuous conniving bitch of record," and Becket as the understanding ecclesiastical friend and advisor, my basic quarrel with the author is that in her drawing of Henry's character as "a cardboard lover," she is reflecting Ogden Nash's sentiments when the latter wrote: "Let the love-lorn lover cure insomnia; By murmuring Amo Vincit Omnia'."

Primarily, the author's sins are sins of omission rather than sins of commission. This novel is divided into 12 parts, from September 1152 up to May 1160, and in this period of time the author is silent about Henry's many important governmental reforms such as his overhaul of the country's financial system (the establishment of a central exchequer court), the revision of the "curia regis," and the many reforms in the area of judicial procedures.

Indeed many historians of this period consider the latter Henry's most significant contribution to English history.

What we have here is fictional history as seen through a married woman's eyes, something like trying to understand the American Civil War by reading Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind."

Like Thucydides she describes the intricacies of the politics of the royal court, life in the barren castles, the English countryside, and the people on the streets of the medieval cities, by putting speeches in their mouths.

However, unlike the "Great Greek," this dialogue is not Periclean; it revolves around mundane petty matters such as childbirth, the issue of profitable marriages, marital quarrels, and the raising of questionable children.

Some of the quasi-gems of marital wisdom found in this novel derive their source from the eternal conflict of what some have called holy deadlock, and they do have a glint of humor in them.

For example, when in a fit of pique, Sir Richard the baron turns to his wife Lady Maud, and says to her: "A kind husband makes a saucy wife," the reader must smile knowing that the human condition has not changed too much.

And familiar to many modern women caught in the debatable throes of the search for some form of liberation is Ysabel's plaintive cry: "Oh, you men. What you will have you will have and that which you will do we poor women must endure!"

In all fairness to the author the novel is well-researched, and the style of writing has a mellifluous flow which is captivating.

One cannot fault the author because the scenes of the story are couched in the bedrooms rather than in Froissart-like fashion on the tournament fields with fife-and-drum accompaniment.

However, my "caveat" is not without foundation. Many years ago John Aubrey wrote: "How these curiosities would be forgott, did not such idle fellowes as I am putt them downe."

If you want high-noon sexual entertainment with a brilliant but crude historical background then this book will take you back in time to a fascinating period of medieval history.

But if you desire true history may I recommend George M. Trevelyan's, "History of England."

THE OTHER ONE by Julian Green. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $6.95.

This first novel in a decade by the French-born American writer who last fall became the only foreign member of the French Academy is a story of sin and redemption.

Although set in 20th century Copenhagen it has the tone of a Medieval passion play, relentless in its progress toward a cruel salvation.

The main actors are a French youth who seduces a fey Danish girl on the eve of World War II, then leaves her so shattered that she becomes the mistress of the Germans who occupy her country.

After the war he returns, transformed from a young libertine to a grim and saintly ascetic, to seduce her away from the flesh to his stern God.

The girl, Karin, grown to a lonely and tortured woman, ostracized by her neighbors as "the German woman" for her wartime acts, is a singularly vivid character in contrast to the narrow, single-faceted Frenchman, Roger.

It is her agony and her martyrdom that make the novel so compelling, even haunting.

The style — it is a translation from Green's French — is simple, a narrative first by Roger and then by Karin, and the structure, which sandwiches their stories between an account of Karin's death, is designed to heighten the drama that led to her death.

Capt. Bligh was the hero, author's documents reveal

By Williston Wirt

The writing of this book is the result of a month recently spent on Pitcairn Island by Arthur Ball, his wife and three small children aged 4 to 9.

However, Ball had long studied the aftermath of the Mutiny on the Bounty, researching it in many libraries, and visiting personally all the various places associated with its famous crew.

(Williston Wirt is a staff member of the Pomona Public Library.)

Ball is a writer, a prominent newspaper correspondent for London papers, and a keen student of historic events which titillated his imagination. Nordhoff and Hall first documented the Bounty mutiny and its consequences in three books published between 1932 and 1934. These are the fictionized accounts which were adapted for the motion picture screen in 1935.

The picture starring Clark Gable and Charles Laughton, was such a success that after two dozen years a second movie was issued with Marlon Brando and Trevor Howard in the leading roles.

Sympathy in all these dramas centered on the underdog, Fletcher Christian, who led the mutiny. Captain Bligh was depicted as a brutal and sadistic leader, who brought upon himself the penalty of being cast adrift in mid-ocean, with little chance of survival.

Author Ball declares this to be completely in error. Bligh was the hero and Christian the villain, he says. He documents this with voluminous pages of proof which I, for one, found quite convincing. This makes up the first half of the book.

The second half recounts the tragic history of Pitcairn Island after Christian and his crew of mutineers and Tahitian camp followers landed and tried to settle down. (The name Pitcorn, incidentally, is derived from the name of the sailor who first cast eyes on its rocky outline, long before the Bounty arrived there in 1781.)

The mutineers deliberately chose this distant, out-of-the-way haven, hoping they would never be found and forced to stand for their misdeeds. For not only had they engaged in mutiny on the high seas they had thwarted the costly plan of the British Navy to transport numerous breadfruit trees from Tahiti to areas in the Carribean where it would serve to provide cheap food for the plantation slaves of British commercial tycoons.

As they landed on Pitcairn, there were nine of the Bounty's mutinous crew, (the rest had chosen to stay in Tahiti). There were also six Tahitian natives, and 12 Tahitian women.

The Tahitians, by the standards of that day, were servants, brought along to obey the orders of the white men. Since there were more males than females, a bitter dispute erupted which eventuated in murder. Before it was over, Christian and all but two of the whites, as well as all the Tahitian men, were dead.

Thus the subsequent population of the Island was fathered by two men, principally by John Adams (the name he chose to hide his identity. On the ship he was known as Alexander).

As time went on, the Pitcairn residents twice petitioned the British government to move them all to more civilized regions. In 1831 and 1836 this was attempted, but a few chose to remain, and a few chose to return to Pitcairn's isolation and poverty.

Today there are but 58 of them still on Pitcairn Island the more vigorous ones have gone to Tahiti or Australia. Those 58 who remain exist without much ambition or effort to improve their lot. They have exchanged their allegiance to the Church of England for conversion to the Seventh Day Adventist faith, with its strict Old Testament regulations as to behavior and diet.

The author also explores the heritage of murder they all share and asks "Did the people descended from these mutinous founders nurture a belief that they would never achieve real contentment on the soil of a constricting island which had been wet with blood?"

His answer is "Yes, It is only a conjecture, but even today I think there exists between the Pitcairners and their island a love-hate relationship." He concludes, "Will there be a third migration? (Their island is in the French atomic fall-out area.) If it occurs it almost certainly will be the final chapter in the Pitcairn saga."

This is a myth-debunking book. As a study of human behavior under far-fetched circumstances it is fascinating. It will prove extremely enlightening to all whose interest in the "Mutiny on the Bounty" did not end with the MGM screenings of that historic event.

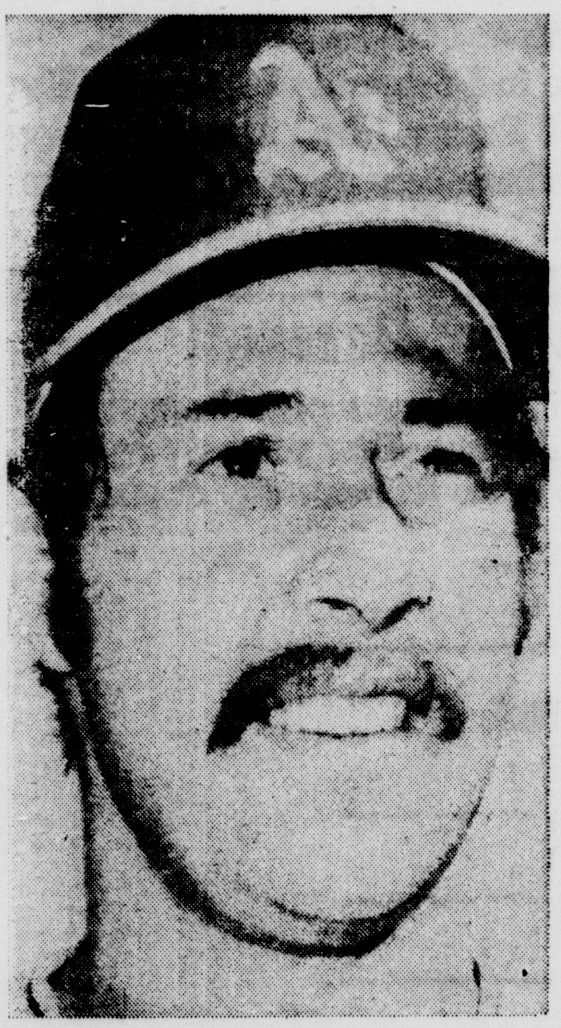
Play Ball! It's the World Series Time of Year!

The first World Series was played in 1903, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Boston Americans beat the Pittsburgh Nationals. During the series, the games were interrupted several times when fans broke through the police lines around the field.



Twenty-six year old Gene Tenace, a catcher for the Oakland Athletics, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the 1972 World Series. He is one of the few people in baseball history to hit four home runs in one series.

October is the World Series time of year. Baseball fans all over the country are waiting to watch the American League champions play the National League champions in the annual best-of-seven games series. The first team to win four games will be the new world champion. This contest marks the end of the season that began back in April. Each professional team was scheduled to play at least 162 games.

The first World Series was played in 1903 at the Huntington Avenue Baseball Grounds in Boston. In this series, the Boston Americans won when they defeated the Pittsburgh Nationals. The World Series has been played every year since then, except for 1904, when there was no contest.

The leagues take turns when it comes to the opening games of the series. The 1972 Series opened in Cincinnati, the home of the Cincinnati Reds, a National League team. This year the series is scheduled to open in an American League city.

The teams play two games in the first city, then move to the other team's park for the next two games, and also for the fifth game, if one is necessary. If more than five games are necessary, the teams go back to the opening day park.

In order to make certain that the Series gets prime TV coverage, the opening games will be played on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Then the teams will have a day off. The following three games will be played at night. If one or two more games are necessary, they will be played on the next Saturday and Sunday.

Last year's winning team was the American League's Oakland Athletics. Each member of that team received $20,705.01 prize money. The losing team was the Cincinnati Reds. Each member received $15,080.25. The 1972 Series made more money than any in baseball history, with a total of nearly four million dollars. The first series held in 1903 made $50,000.

Roberto Clemente led the Pittsburgh Pirates to a World Series title in 1971, and was elected the Most Valuable Player. To become a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, a player must have been inactive in baseball for at least five years. The Baseball Writers Association decided to bypass this rule so they could elect Clemente as soon as possible.

Super Sport: Roberto Clemente

Roberto Clemente was born in Puerto Rico. As a young boy, he hit tin cans with broomsticks to practice baseball. He started playing professional ball when he was 17. In 1945, he signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Clemente was known for "giving his all." He was often injured, but continued to play. His salary rose as high as $150,000 a year. He married and started raising a family.

Last year, an earthquake struck Managua, the capital of Nicaragua. Clemente had many friends there. He raised money for the victims and decided to fly to Managua along with a plane load of supplies. The plane went down and Clemente was killed.

Roberto Clemente had dreamed of a Sports City for the children of Puerto Rico. Already, many thousands of dollars have been raised to help make this dream come true.

CHS serious, lively

By DAVID NIMMONS
Claremont Reporter

The year is off to a flying start at CHS!!

By now, we've all pretty much gotten over our initial confusion with teachers, bells, schedules and the deluge of IBM cards, and are settling down to the more serious business of learning. But not all this year is going to be so terribly "serious", and as a matter of fact, things look like they're going to get pretty lively pretty soon!

But, before getting on to what's ahead, we've got to get caught up on what some of the Claremont students have been up to lately!

Two groups from school have been particularly active this past summer. The first consists of a group of 25 kids from the vocal music program who were invited to attend an intercultural music camp in Hawaii.

The camp, held in co-operation with Citrus College and the University of Hawaii in Honolulu, gave the participants an opportunity to study and perform the music of Hawaii, as well as other classical and contemporary music.

While in the camp, students had a chance to learn some native dances and songs, and to get to know many Hawaiian students.

The camp also included time to see many of the sights in Hawaii, and to learn about the Hawaiian culture. All the kids greatly enjoyed the camp, and many hope to participate in the program again.

Others who had a busy summer were the CHS flag twirlers. They went to a flag camp held at Loyola University this August. The girls involved in the camp were: Robin Bennet, Janet Bills, Teri Bovett, Cheryl Ford, Elaine Uribe and Joanne Tobin, who served as the head flag twirler.

During the camp, the girls participated in many competition events, and came away with an impressive list of honors: first place in class competition, fifth place in camp spirit and their "Hello cheer", second and third place for afternoon camp competition, and first place for major competition!

The team plans to perform often during the year at halftime shows and parades.

As is usual about this time of year, many of the organizations and clubs around campus are starting plans and activities for the year. Briefly, here are a few of the activities on tap:

AFS In addition to the two exchange students we have with us this year, our AFS chapter is hoping to sponsor a Claremonter overseas, under the Americans Abroad program. The student representative from CHS will be chosen through a series of interviews, after which he or she will be placed in a home abroad by the American Abroad headquarters in New York.

The program gives the student a chance to live and attend school in another country, and to serve as a representative from Claremont in other parts of the

Injured girl back at O.C. as a senior

By ROBERT JACOBS
Ontario Christian

After more than a year's absence, Jane Brinkman has returned to Ontario Christian High School to join her classmates as they begin their senior year.

Jane was forced to drop out of school when she was seriously injured in an automobile accident during the summer following her sophomore year.

Although almost 14 months as an invalid have left her in a wheelchair, she has not had any problems navigating the campus and declares, "I get a lot of help from my friends." Nor does she have any trouble adjusting to her school work.

During rehabilitation for paralysis at Rancho Los Amigos in Downey, she was able to continue her studies with the help of a tutor and received P.E. credit for physical therapy exercises.

Resuming her studies this year will enable her to graduate on schedule next spring.

By PAT BASE
Damien High Reporter

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, Damien High School opened it's doors to 180 new freshmen. The freshmen students were given an opportunity to adapt themselves to the new campus environment by meeting as a single group at the school for a freshman orientation.

Introduced to the freshmen were key members of the Damien faculty, the principal, Father Martin O'Loghlen, the dean of studies, Father Barry, the dean of discipline, Father Cronin, the guidance director, Father McCarthy, and the student body president, John Schiro.

Along with having normal faculty turnover this year, there has been expansion to the Damien curriculum necessitating new instructors. Therefore, nine new teachers including three coaches have been added to the Damien faculty.

From Bishop Amat High School comes Miss Kay Ayres to join Damien's English department. She is also handling the journalism class and the school newspaper. Also from Bishop Amat is Fr. Michael Barry who is the new dean of studies, a position he held at Bishop Amat for the past four years. He is also teaching two social studies classes. Mrs. Barbara Busse who formerly taught classes at Loyala University is teaching English and Speech.

The new head coach of the speech department is James Caforio who is also instructing some social studies classes. His previous teaching assignment was at St. Boniface Junior High School in Anaheim. A new ethics teachers, Father Phillip McGovern, is also instructing math classes this year. He, too, has had several years experience at Bishop Amat.

Two of the expansion classes are band and choir. These are taught by Steven Morgan who is beginning his first year teaching. He has just received music and English classes at the University of Redlands. Morgan is also a member of the Damien English department.

Three new coaches this year are teaching academic classes as well as holding positions on the Damien coaching staff. One is Thomas Carroll whose teaching assignments are reading and physical education. The second new member of the coaching staff is Ralph Godfrey. He is teaching physiology and P.E. The third new coach is John Prior whose teaching assignments consist of general science courses.

Coach Carroll and Coach Godfrey both came to Damien from Matre Dei High School. Coach Prior is beginning his first full year as a coach and teacher.

Father O'Loghlen, Damien's principal, foresees that this school year will be one of the most outstanding ever in academic achievements. The reasons for this are many. The Damien faculty is the most qualified and experienced in the history of the school. Also, the student to teacher ratio is at the fantastic number of only 21 to 1.

Finally, to increase this years academic achievement potential to an especially high level is the fact that parental participation has exceeded, and hopefully will continue to exceed all expectations. The only question remaining is: can the Damien students do their part?

(The California tortoise, as ell as its cousins from Texas and Florida, are protected by law in California nd cannot be bought in pet tores. Furthermore, it is illegal to take them from the desert.)

For three years, beginning in 1969, and with the blessing of the Department of Fish and Game, club members helped relocate several tortoises from the California City area, where their habitats were being destroyed by building construction. Some were even reportedly being shot.

They were moved to Joshua Tree National Monument and areas of Death Valley.

The club is also dedicated to educating man, who seems to be the creatures' worst enemy.

In this effort, the club prints and distributes instruction sheets detailing the proper care that turtles and tortoises in captivity require. Diets, the incubation of eggs, hibernation, and the care of hatching torttoises are some of the topics covered.

"You would be surprised to see what people will feed reptiles in captivity," said Bill, who is currently serving a two-year term as vice president of the club's foothill chapter. "Water turtles, for example, must eat under water, but we come across people who don't know this." (Most turtles must be fed directly in the water, otherwise they cannot swallow.)

Tortoises are also very susceptible to respiratory ailments. More tortoises die from pneumonia than any other cause.

Another means used by the club to spread awareness of chelonians is its annual California Turtle and Tortoise Show.

"If people do not want their turtles or tortoises, we will take them and give them a home, or we will give them to club members who can give them a home," Diane said.

Certainly not forgotten amidst the overwhelming number of chelonians are the iguanas, which appear to be Diane's favorites.

Like the tortoises, the iguanas are vegetarians. They are also non-poisonous. When they are young, their skin is a torquoise color, but it turns to a bright green as adults and eventually to a desert brown as they grow older.

All of the iguanas are kept in a large wooden cage on the back porch with one exception. The exception is Tyrone, who measures almost four feet from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail, and who has established territorial rights to the inside of the house where he stays.

"He is a very aggressive male," says Diane. "That's why we keep him in the house."

The oldest of the iguanas is Mrs. Iguana. She has spent most of her 15 years in captivity. Three of those years have been with the Sracks.

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

'Good news' is no news

For the information of those of you who are forever complaining that your newspaper is filled with little else than reports of crime, violence, war, scandal and corruption, I am happy to be able to point out that once, right here in Pomona, we had just the sort of good-news reporting that you claim you would much prefer. And so to add that touch of sweetness and light, that breath of freshness for which you clamor, I now go back nearly 70 years and quote you a sample of purity in news reporting at its very best.

Cherries are cheaper. '

"Thirty or forty people spent the week-end at the beach.'

"Here are some of the things that may be found in our local markets today: Grapes and cucumbers from the desert, black figs from Fresno County, cherries from Sacramento valley, also blackberries, loganberries and strawberries galore and new apricots, string beans, tomatoes, cantaloupes squash and red currants."

I could go on and on, for that Pomona Daily Review editor was a past master at giving his readers all the good news that was fit to print; but enough is enough. Now go back to today's recital of murders, muggings, corruption in high government circles and the latest on obscenity, nudity and women's liberation. Regardless of your protestations, it should be a lot more interesting than:

Adopting an old dog could mean problems

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rosie is (we have been told) half Irish setter and half Great Dane. She is six years old, very friendly but big enough to be a watchdog. Because we are elderly that is what we need. We have been offered Rosie free because her present owners want to get two smaller dogs instead of the one big one We would like to have her but she doesn't know any commands or respond to a single thing except food. My husband is afraid you can't teach an old dog new tricks Is he right? —S.O

Dear S.O.: The very fact Rosie's present owners are willing to dump her after all these years for the reasons given should be a warning. Anyone who has loved and properly cared for a dog for that many years wouldn't even consider such a switch You should also weigh the fact that if she is a heavy eater her food bill can be substantial As far as old dogs and new tricks are concerned the answer depends mostly on whether that dog has any old tricks to its credit. Apparently Rosie has never learned any.

If she has never been taught anything in her life she can't be expected to be a very apt pupil now. Also it may be that she actually is an old dog physiologically speaking; a six-year-old Great Dane is certainly getting up there. One advantage could be that she might be slowing down a bit. This could be a big advantage if you considered her a house dog. When bursting with enthusiasm and energy she could be as useful in the house as a runaway bulldozer.

If after all of this you are going to give her a go anyway at least have Rosie checked out thoroughly by the doctor to see if she's likely to be around long enough to make the challenge worth the taking.

DEAR DR. MILLER: One of our ornamental plants happens to be a flowering tobacco. Our cat Spitty seems to like it. Could chewing on it be hazardous to his health or would he have to smoke it? —KP.

Dear KP.: Spitty wouldn't have to smoke it Chewing Nicotiana tabacun the flowring tobacco plant would. be hazardous enough. If he nibbled enough it could kill him. Not surprisingly the toxic ingredient of this plant is nicotine.

Gutters can outlast it all

By MR. FIX

Gutters and downspouts have a life expectancy in direct proportion to the care you give them. Galvanized metal may last eight or 10 years without care and aluminum will survive somewhat longer.

But the care, there is no reason the metal gutters on your house shouldn't be there long after the mortgage is retired.

Aside from the long-range benefit that proper maintenance provides, there also is the very important short-range consideration — helping the gutters do their job.

Gutters and downspouts filled with dirt and debris will not carry off the water that runs down from the roof. Instead, it will overflow, drenching anyone below, washing away the earth around the foundation, accumulating around the foundation and possibly leaking into the basement.

During the winter the water will freeze, causing an extra strain on the gutters and possibly tearing them loose. The ice also may back up on the roof, under the shingles, and when it melts, leak through the roof or down into the sidewalls.

Gutters should be cleaned at least twice a year, spring and fall, and oftener if there are many trees around.

Sweep out dirt, leaves and seeds. Mud that has caked up should be scraped out. If the downspout is clogged, use a plumber's snake. A strong stream of water from a garden hose may do the trick. Flush out the gutters with the hose.

Use a strainer at the top of the downspout and clean it out often. Gutter guards — screen-like covers that go over the guter — are a debatable item.

They are fine for keeping leaves out of gutters. But smaller seeds and dirt tend to filter through and then the entire guard must be removed for a thorough cleaning. They tend to work best where debris is lightest.

Once gutters are clean, they should be inspected for rust and damage. Use a wire brush to clean up rust. Follow up with standing or a rubbing with steel wool.

Coat the bare surfaces on the inside of the gutter with asphalt roof coating. Bare metal on the outside should be painted with a rust preventive primer, then with a finish coat of house trim paint

Very tiny holes can often be blocked with nothing more than roof coating. Make sure all rusted metal is cleaned away. If the hole is too big for sealing with the asphalt, apply a patch. If you use metal, it should be the same as the material of the gutter. Coat the gutter with asphalt, apply the patch and then more asphalt, sealing all the edges.

No corners cut on this one

By HIAWATHA ESTES

This home has been planned for the builder who prefers a design in which corners have not been cut to achieve false economy in construction. Here is a home where one is assured of obtaining a maximum of comfort for his money.

Storage space galore has been provided. The private dressing room off the master bedroom has walls completely lined with wardrobes and the other bedrooms have ample size wardrobes. The two main baths have pullman lavatories with storage below. There are two linen closets. An oversized guest closet, an additional clothes closet, a telephone table, plus a water heater and furnace closet are all located in the entry and off the bedroom hall. Storage for special linens and china is adjacent to the dining ell and an extra large pantry PLUS general storage close is in the kitchen. In addition to a broom closet in the service area, there is wall space available for more storage, a freezer or a sewing table.

Although the garage has been attached to the side of the living room, for smaller lots it could be removed and attached to the front wall of the bedroom wing.

The stone used in the chimney and planter harmonizes very well with the vertical siding to enhance the appearance of this handsome, contemporary home .

This same basic exterior is also available with other floor plans, but at different price structures. These designs are illustrated in our books mentioned below.

Complete working drawings for plan 41082 can be purchased for only $11.61 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until January 30, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. New book tells all about weeds

"Weeds," published by Golden Press, is the perfect identification guide to a wide range of readers—young and mature, country and city folk, gardeners and lawn owners, hay-fever victims, agronomists, and nature lovers. In short, anyone bothered in any way by weeds—and who isn't?

What are weeds? The usual definition of a weed is a "plant out of place" but actually, in truth, pest plants are out of place only in terms of man's purposes. In nature's scheme, they often serve useful functions, e.g., some plants provide a protective covering over the ground which reduces erosion, and also acts as indicators of soil quality. Some plants such as the leaves of wintercress, pokeweed, and others, are sources of drugs, medicines and dyes. Songbirds, gamebirds and other kinds of wildlife depend to a very large extent on weed seeds for their existence. In contrast to their usefulness, however, weeds cost the American farmer an estimated five billion dollars annually in crop yield and control measures. In addition, there are millions of people who suffer from hay fever and other respiratory ailments, which are either caused or aggravated by weed pollens.

"Weeds" author Alexander C. Martin is an authority on plants used by wildlife, and on the identification of plants by seeds and fruits. Author of two other guides, "Trees" and "Flowers," Martin was for over 30 years research biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in the Department of the Interior. In addition, he has written many books in the field of natural history, including a manual on seed identification.

Containing full-color illustrations of the most common weeds, plus some of lesser consequence, "Weeds" was illustrated by Jean Zallinger, illustrator of numerous juvenile books, as well as a contributor to Encyclopedias and textbooks. Mrs. Zallinger also illustrated the science guide, "Botany."

HEART OF THE HOME — This attractive, U-shaped kitchen affords adequate space to make sure that all major work centers function well. It is effective in conjunction with breakfast or family rooms.

Most homemakers agree that the kitchen is where they invariably spend a great deal of their time. And they want it to be as modern, pleasant and convenient as possible.

Ideally, the sequence of work in the kitchen moves from storage and mixing, on to preparation, then to cooking and serving and finally back to the sink for cleanup.

Kitchen planners have these comments on each of the centers:

REFRIGERATION: Obviously built around the refrigerator, this center should be located near the door where the supplies enter and should have sufficient drawer, shelf, and counter storage to handle the numerous kitchen utensils, food-stuffs and small appliances common in today's kitchen. There should be a minimum of 15 inches of work counter at the opening side of the refrigerator.

Today's modern side-by-side refrigerator-freezer combinations can be used more efficiently with work space on both sides of the appliance, which also allows both its doors to open to their stops.

CLEAN UP: This center handles chores performed in the kitchen during preparation of daily meals and the subsequent cleanup. It is best when located between the range and refrigerator, and should have at least 24 inches of counter space on each side of the sink—whether the sink is double-or single-bowl.

In addition to the dishwasher, space should also be planned to store detergents, cleaning equipment and utensils and to dispose of trash. A low-cost highly efficient food waste disposer is recommended to take care of most "wet" garbage, while a trash compactor is an effective means of handling solid wastes such as empty milk containers, egg cartons, cereal boxes, bottles and the like. Used together, a waste disposer and compactor can help provide a neater, cleaner kitchen.

COOKING: The best location for the cooking center is near the dining room and breakfast areas. A counter at each side of the range is important for efficiency as well as safety. There should be a mimimum of 12 inches of counter at the side away from the sink, and 24 inches minimum between the sink and range. A large amount of storage also is required in this area for pots, pans, trays, utensils, dry foods and condiments.

Most kitchens will contain one or more minor work centers, so plan ahead to make them work best.

A planning and message center is an essential in today's modern kitchen. It can be as large as needed, or as small as an 8x10-inch shelf with telephone and recipe racks. If space permits, a bulletin board and intercom can be included.

An all-purpose bar is a handy addition that can be used for homework, buffet, snacks, serving and many other functions. It can be an extension of one of the kitchen counters, part of a pass-through or a shelf along one wall with added storage underneath as a useful option.

Another work center can be built around a home food freezer. A complete freezer center can be rather spacious, with storage for necessary packaging materials and utensils, plus a place to sit and work at a sink. The freezer center can be located in the kitchen, a utility room, breezeway or wherever space permits.

Cold frames indispensable for gardener

Cold frames are indispensable in all-weather gardening. They keep plants growing all winter in mild climates, and perform well in colder regions with auxiliary heat from light bulbs or buried cable.

A box is easily built of four western cedar 1x12s over a bed of gravel or wood shavings for drainage. Lumber should be preservative treated.

Diagonally cut 1x6s atop 1x12-inch side pieces hold sash at an angle for maximum use of solar heat and light, trapped when rays penetrate transparent glass or plastic roofing.

Size depends on space available and need, but using standard 3x6-foot sash is convenient. Space for starting seeds and rooting cuttings can be estimated based on standard flat sizes.

Lightning explanation

Forked lightning is a chain of brilliant zig-zag light that follows a winding path such as a river and breaks into several forks or branches.

Sheet lightning is a bright flash that lights up the sky. It is made up of flashes of chain lightning that take place beyond the horizon.

Service stations get green light to hike gas prices

Cost of Living Council reacts to threats by angry dealers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Cost of Living Council (CLC), reacting to threats by angry gasoline dealers, Friday relaxed its controversial ceiling price rule and allowed more service stations to immediately boost selling prices by as much as 2.5 cents per gallon.

The new pricing formula, which also should increase the cost to consumers of home heating oil by 1 to 2 cents a gallon, was designed to give gasoline dealers an economic break by allowing them to pass on a bigger share of their increased costs in the form of higher customer prices.

Inflation expanding

But the higher cost of operating the family car will give another push to the cost of living at a time when the nation's inflation rate is accelerating at a near-record rate.

The adjustment "is designed to minimize the increase while permitting a fair return to small petroleum retailers," the council said.

"It is anticipated that the range of gasoline price increases could be between 1 and 2.5 cents per gallon, "depending on individual retailer situations," the council said.

Effective now

Independent dealers, who make up about 90 per cent of the nation's service station operators, can put the new price formula into effect at once. Stations owned by refiners must wait until Monday.

The council said competition may be strong enough in some areas to keep selling prices below those permitted under the ceiling formula.

Under Phase IV regulations, the CLC is committed to a periodic revision of the ceiling formula but the first adjustment came less than a month after the rules governing the oil industry were adopted. Last Monday, President Nixon told the council to relax the rule by the end of this week, indicating that boycott threats of dealers around the country were having an effect.

The new formula gives dealers a larger markup than under the previous rule and thus should provide a "cushion" against future cost increases, the council said.

Charles Owens, director of the CLC's energy division, said the council had "gone from a balanced approach to one that is biased in favor of the independent dealer, the small businessman."

Owens also said the mathematics had been simplified and that dealers would have no trouble in computing their new ceiling prices.

The ceiling is figured by taking the selling price on May 15, 1973, and adding in the increased product cost incurred between May 15 and Sept. 28.

For example, if a dealer was selling regular gas for 38 cents a gallon on May 15, and the wholesale cost per gallon rose another two cents in the next four months, the new ceiling price would be 40 cents a gallon.

The old formula required dealers to add the wholesale cost as of Aug. 1 to the markup being charged last Jan. 10 but not less than 7 cents a gallon for markup.

Justice group responds to Agnew's charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Justice Department Friday accused Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers of making "patently ridiculous" charges that the Department is trying to force Agnew from office through leaks to the press.

The department said it would respond fully in court to all of the Allegations which were made in an affadavit filed by Agnew's lawyers in Baltimore Friday in a move to stop the government from pursuing the grand jury investigation of the vice president.

"It is imperative, however, that in the interim these deplorable allegations concening the conduct and motivation of the department of Justice not to go unchallenged," the department said in a statement.

The Department said the affidavit filed Friday accused it of conducting "a steady campaign of statements to the press" to try to prejudice grand jury hearings.

"To suggest further, as the lawyers for the vice president have, that the Justice Department investigation is a plot to 'drive the vice president from office' is patently ridiculous," the statement said.

"The investigation is based on evidence which is being marshalled in as expeditious and responsible a manner as possible," it added. "The Department of Justice will continue to discharge its duties to enforce the laws of this land and will not be diverted from that duty by unsubstantiated charges."

NEWS BRIEFS . . .

Chrysler workers sign pact

DETROIT (UPI) —The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. Friday formally signed a new three-year contract that union leaders called the most significant in UAW history.

The contract covers 121,800 unionized employes across the United States and Canada, but not 5,700 engineering technicians who rejected the settlement earlier this week.

"This settlement is the most significant in our history," UAW president Leonard Woodcock said. "It contains many breakthroughs."

Getaway car can't get away

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A balky getaway car led two would-be robbers to declare their holdup inoperative Friday.

They pulled into a Jack-inthe-Box hamburger stand and one of the men told clerk Cordia Downs, 18, "Give me all your money, and if you think I'm kidding, in about two minutes I'll show you I'm not."

Miss Downs handed him a fistful of $1 bills. He got back in the car. The auto's engine stalled and would not start again.

The holdup man returned to the counter and gave back the money.

When last seen, the unsuccessful desperados were pushing their getaway car down the street.

4 hostages freed by Arabs

VIENNA (UPI) —Two Arab guerrillas who commandeered a Moscow-to-Vienna train Friday released four hostages— three Soviet Jewish emigrants bound for Israel and a customs official—13 hours later in return for an Austrian pledge to cut off transit facilities for emigrants bound for the Jewish state.

The Arabs, who had held their captives in a bus at the Vienna airport, boarded a Cessna light plane. Their destination was unknown.

Radio executive dies in shooting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A radio station account executive wounded by a mental patient who tried to assassinate a talkshow personality while on the air died Friday at San Francisco General Hospital.

Police said Benjamin Munson, 47, father of five and a resident of San Rafael, Calif., had suffered four bullet wounds in the chest and one in the arm. Munson underwent emergency surgery Thursday after the incident.

Lawrence Kwong, 25, a patient at a residential psychiatric treatment center, fired three shots with a .22-caliber pistol at Jim Dunbar, 42, who was in his KGO broadcast booth. Bullet-proof glass protected Dunbar, who was not hurt.

As Kwong left the building, police said, he encountered Munson and opened fire. The assailant then fled down a street pursued by several men. He then stopped, placed the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger.

Kwong died at an emergency hospital.

Nixon obeys court order, releases names of campaign contributors

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Bowing to a court order, President Nixon's campaign committe made public Friday secret lists of contributors who poured nearly $20 million into his record-breaking $59.2 million re-election effort before a full disclosure law went into effect in April, 1972.

The list included huge contributions from ambassadors, industrialists and at least one prominent Democrat, and acknowledged $425,000 in illegal donations from six corporations that were later returned.

Common Cause victory

The release of the list was a victory for Common Cause, the public interest lobby that had sued the Committee for the Re-Election of the President (CRP) for full disclosure of the sources of Nixon's campaign contributions.

The list covered the period from Jan. 1, 1971, through April 6, 1972, and was released pursuant to an order by U.S. District Judge Joseph S. Waddy last July 24 in the Common Cause suit.

The General Accounting Office had reported last August that post-April 7 contributions totaled $39.3 million, which would bring entire donations to the re-election campaign to $59.2 million.

400 page report

Filed with the House of Representatives, the 400-page CRP report listed $18.4 million in contributions during the pre-April 7 period; $716,000 from the trust fund of Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer; $653,000 in "deposited contributions originally received in cash," and $127,000 in miscellaneous receipts and refunds, for a total of $19.9 million.

The leading contributor was Chicago insurance magnate W. Clement Stone, who along with his wife donated $2 million to the Nixon campaign. Altogether, 94 persons gave $40,000 or more.

Listed for three contributions totaling $200,000 were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Guest of King George, Va. Guest was ambassador to Ireland under President Lyndon B. Johhnson and was a delegate to three Democratic national conventions.

Among the major pre-April 7 contributors were Arthur K. Watson, board chairman of IBM and former ambassador to France, $300,000; John Humes, ambassador to Austria, $100,000; Shelby Cullum Davis, ambassador to Switzerland, $100,000, and Walter H. Annenberg, ambassador to the Court of St. James's in London, $250,000.

Other major contributors included Pittsburgh banker Richard Mellon Scaife, $1 million; sculptor John H. Safer of Bethesda, Md., $250,000; Leonard K. Firestone of Los Angeles, $100,000; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mulcahy, Bronxville, N.Y., $568,559, and Detroit industrialist Max Fisher and wife, $125,000.

Four members of the Rockefeller family —Nelson, John D. III, Laurence and their sister, Abby Mauze —donated a total of $200,000. Entertainer Bob Hope was listed for $50,000, while Jules Stein, board chairman of the Music Corporation of America, donated $117,822.

Many on the pre-April 7 list had made additional contributions which already have been reported.

Officials 'under the gun' from PUC

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

Whether Christmas trees will twinkle with sparkling lights this December or plastic jungles of neon lighting will become dark is only a small part of an energy crisis that is surprising citizens despite recent warnings of environmentalists.

The problems with energy sources hit home in many families this week with the announcement that the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) plans, possibly as soon as October, to place strict regulations on utilities, thus regulating many power uses now taken for granted.

In Los Angeles Friday, the Department of Water and Power (DWP), which is regulated by the PUC, proposed possible electric power limitations this fall that would include darkened sports stadiums, a ban on Christmas lighting, limits on power to businesses and possible residential blackouts.

The PUC has given utility companies 20 days to come up with a plan covering energy conservation, agreements for mutual assistance and mandatory curtailment of electric service.

'Edison Co. will have to share oil supply'

Local electric and gas company officials said they have enough power to supply area needs this fall but both are ruled under the mandates of the PUC.

Vince Martin, division manager of Southern California Edison Co., said the utility doesn't have the authority to impose limitations on power usage but the PUC does.

Martin explained that the present power crisis stems from a world shortage of oil. "If the DWP runs out of oil, then the Edison Co. will have to share its supply," he said. We will have no other choice."

Martin said the peak demand on local power systems is during the month of August. He said the use of electric kilowat hours is increased during the winter months but the demand on the system doesn't go up. Air conditioning is the summer culprit.

The electric company official said his firm has made appeals through the news media this past year offering advice to customers on how to curtail power usage. He said 100,000 of the 2½ million customers asked for the material.

In addition, persons in the company work with major commercial and industrial power users in the community to encourage the conservation of power.

Restrictions to affect everyone in California

Martin said to date these energy conservation suggestions have been implemented by major users on a voluntary basis.

If the PUC follows a plan outlined this week, restrictions will be mandatory statewide and will affect all California residents.

Martin said the local Edison company offices has already put into action a energy conservation plan which has eliminated every other light fixture in the building and only security lighting at night.

He said that in the near future persons wanting to construct new buildings will have to go before a PUC allocation board to get approval of the new power hookup similar to city planning commissions.

He admits that his firm is "under the gun" with the PUC mandate that will be implemented, if not this fall, then by next summer when the power usage is the most critical.

F. B. Wilson, district manager of Southern California Gas Co. in Pomona, said his firm is working in several major areas to try to solve some of the current energy problems, including an international search to for oil supplies.

Wilson said his firm is trying to develp new sources of crude oil. The two principal low sulfur crude oil sources supplying the West Coast are the Cook

Inlet in Alaska and Indonesia.

The PUC this week approved a rate increase to Southern California Gas Co., to relfect new expenses incurred by its affiliate, Pacific Lighting Service Co., in exploring and developing new gas supplies.

Brown, Snider spend $263,280

38th district race— a costly campaign

California's 38th District race was among the costliest congressional election campaign in the nation last year, according to Common Cause, the nationwide citizens' lobby group.

In a report released this week, Common Cause said the District's two major candidates—Rep. George Brown, the eventual winner, and his Republican opponent, Ontario Mayor Howard Snider—reported combined spending of $263,280 in the primary and general election campaigns.

However, that amount does not include money the candidates may have spent prior to April 7, 1972, when the camapaign finance disclosure law went into effect.

Brown field as a candidate in January 1972, and Snider followed suit two months later.

Brown, who won the election with 56 per cent of the vote, listed expenditures at $154,743. Snider said he spent $108,537.

These figures are well above the average spent in districts, such as the 38th, where there was no incumbent. The winners' average spending, the report states, was $104,064, and $75,766 for the losers.

Only 19 other congressional campaigns exceeded the amount spent in the 38th District. The largest sum was $514,112—expended in Massachussetts, where Rep. Paul Cronin defeated his Democratic challenger and Vietnam veteran, John Kerry.

Organized labor was the largest interest group donating to Brown last year. He reported receiving about $23,000 in contributions from political groups affiliated with labor.

Both Brown and Snider reported receiving campaign donations from outside the state.

Of the 25 costliest campaigns listed in the report, five were in California.

The report is part of Common Cause's efforts on behalf of proposals for public financing of political campaigns.

By United Press International

Representatives of Detroit teachers and the Detroit school board Friday settled down to a weekend negotiating marathon in hopes of ending a strike which has kept some 270,000 students out of school for nearly a month.

But impatient Detroit public school pupils, vexed by the strike, have opened their own school, with an 11-year-old teaching the "ABC's" to younger students.

No end was in sight to a two-week old strike by lay teachers against eight Roman Catholic high schools in the New York boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens.

Six schools in strike-bound McArthur, Ohio, remained open, but attendance was light. McArthur School Supt. Kenneth Christopher, who fired 87 striking teachers, has rejected an offer for federal mediation of the contract dispute which has kept teachers on picket lines since Sept. 21.

School board negotiators in Detroit expressed hope that the teachers strike against the nation's fourth largest school system could be ended by Saturday.

State Mediator Edmond Phillips said both sides have cooperated in an effort to settle the strike.

"We're still trying to resolve very many issues that have to be resolved but the parties are working very hard. They're very cooperative," he said.

While teachers have manned picket lines, Charise Jenkins, 11, Genine Bigham, 9, and Veronica Thomas, 10, left with nothing to do since the strike, have opened their own school. Children, ages 3 to 7, flock to the school to learn reading, writing and arithmetic. The three "teachers" are aided by 10-year-old Arthur Wilson, the school's "principal."

Elementary schools in Yorktown, N.Y., and Harrison, N.Y., serving a total of about 8,000 students, were on modified schedules due to teachers strikes.

North, South Viet edge close to war

SAIGON (UPI) —The phantom Vietnam peace edged closer to admitted war Thursday, both on the battlefields and in the Saigon conference rooms.

A top South Vietnamese official said he was "sure" the United States would reenter the fighting if the Communists "continue their military activities at the current intensity."

The government launched an operation by 350 of its toughest American-trained troops in an attempt to recapture Plei Djering, a Central Highlands base 230 miles north of Saigon overrun by the Communists last weekend. The Communists called the operation "landgrabbing."

A government - supported "people's demonstration" against the Communists near their Saigon Tan Son Nhut airport headquarters was scheduled for Friday morning. It was sure to inflame propaganda attacks on the government.

South Vietnamese officials serving on the Communist-government Joint Military Team (JMT) supposedly negotiating peace walked out of Thursday's meeting to protest the overruuning of Plei Djering.

Women molested

Jail official says hostages attacked

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) —The head of the city jail said Friday physical examinations of 14 women held hostage for six hours by seven inmates indicated several of them were sexually assaulted.

"We made an investigation of the women as a routine matter and did find assaults, possible rapes," said Edward Tripp, city welfare director. "We have strong evidence that the women were molested. The women didn't make any statement, but the matron who also was held hostage said she did see cases of assault."

Tripp said the matter has been turned over to the circuit attorney's office. He said warrants charging attempted escape will be applied for, and rape charges may be pressed.

The seven men barricaded the door to a section of the women's cellblock with metal cots shortly before midnight Thursday. They demanded to speak with Tripp and a newsman so they could air their grievances about jail conditions.

Tripp agreed to try to meet the demands but promised amnesty only if the hostages — one prison matron and 13 women inmates—were released unharmed. The inmates eventually surrendered under those terms.

However, Tripp said later "We are fairly certain the men did not carry out the trust put in them. They will not be granted amnesty if the evidence proves the women had been assaulted."

Norma Crane, actress, dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Norma Crane, who played in Broadway productions, in movies and on television, died of cancer Friday at Beverly Glen Hospital. She was 42.

Her last movie was "Fiddler on The Roof," in which she played the part of Goldie. She made her movie debut several years ago in "Tea and Sympathy."

Humphrey raps selection plan

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said Friday the method of selecting candidates for national office needs to be reformed.

Humphrey said a regional presidential primary, proposed earlier this week at the Southern Governors' Conference by Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, has merit and might be an answer.

Humphrey, who conducted two national campaigns for president in 1968 and 1972, said by the time a candidate has campaigned in all the states that have primaries, "the people get tired of you, you get tired of yourself, and most of all you just get tired.

M. Moreland, Charlie Chan 'butler,' dies

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Mantan Moreland, the bug-eyed comedian who played the black chauffeur "Birmingham Brown" in the Charlie Chan movies, died Friday at the age of 72.

Moreland, whose total of 310 screen appearances included 45 of the Chan films, had suffered several strokes recently. He was admitted to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital last week.

Moreland specialized in what he called his "indefinite" routine which he performed in the Chan films with the late Benny Carter.

One would begin a sentence, the other would interrupt and the exchanges would lead into mental brick walls. Nothing made sense to the viewer, but it did to them.

Moreland's trademarks were his pop-eyed expression —"like he just sat on a wet flounder," one critic said—and his line, "Feets, do your stuff."

Born in Monroe, La., Moreland ran away with a circus at age 14, later joining a comedy vaudeville act.

Boxer Joe Louis got Moreland his first film role, "Spirit of St. Louis," Subsequently he worked in the "Frankie Darro" movie series for Monogram and then moved on to the Chan detective whodunits with Sidney Toler and Roland Winters.

Memorial services will be held Wednesday.

Under the authorized plan, the company will submit specific projects to the PUC for approval. Later, the company will request increases for the approved project by letter.

Wilson said alternative sources of energy include a new method which is "cryogencis," the science of supercold.

In essence, the techniques is to take natural gas and liquefy it at a temperature of 260 degrees below fahrenheit. Since liquefied methane occupies a space only 1-1600th of that occupied by menthane in the vapor state, it becomes economincally feasible to ship it in massive sea-going tankers.

Untapped coal

Another alternative is energy through the gasification of coal. Wilson said the greatest reserves of fuel in this country are in the massive and largely untapped deposits of coal in the Western states. Nuclear sources is another alternative.

He said the gas company has no immediate local crises in gas supplies to customers but the firm is also under the PUC regulations.

Dr. John Cobb, of the Claremont School of Theology who is active in the ecology movement, said that any solutions to the present energy crises are only temporary.

Large world problem

Dr. Dobb said people think the problem is temporary but it isn't. He hopes people will gain a broader perspective of the total problems facing the world including over population, food storages and the unsolvable problem of wood shortages. He said cutting down our forests will not solve the wood shortage.

The theologian said solutions could be found to many of the existing problems if society would look at the total problem instead of isolated ones like the present power shortage. He said this just increases the pressure to build more atomic plants.

He said attitude and life styles must change and there must be good public leadership, not crash programs and temporary solutions.

Kosygin arrives for Tito talks

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived on the Northern Adriatic island of Brioni Friday for a meeting with President Tito, a government spokesman said.

Tito was at the quay to welcome Kosygin and his party when they sailed in aboard a yacht from Pula, the nearest mainland port to Brioni, the Yugoslav leader's secluded retreat.

Vandals behead many figures at wax museum

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Someone hid in the Hollywood Wax Museum overnight and decapitated or mutilated the likenesses of 27 persons, police discovered Wednesday.

Death penalty means killing person: Moretti

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti said Friday he believes that for a criminal facing execution the manner by which death is administered "doesn't mean that much."

"You're still kidding somebody," Moretti said.

At a news conference, he was asked his reaction to Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposal that "more humane" methods of execution be investigated. The governor suggested a lethal tranquilizer might be one alternative.

"I suspect that for a man who knows his life is going to be snuffed out, the manner or method really doesn't mean that much," Moretti said.

Moretti, a foe of capital punishment, also said if elected governor he wouldn't grant blanket clemency to Death Row convicts. He said he would study each case individually before making a decision.

Another gubernatorial contender, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, said recently if elected he would grant blanket clemency.

1973 looks like a vintage year for grape harvesting in the West End

By ED PRATHER
P-B Staff Writer

CUCAMONGA — The wine grape harvest is in full swing in the vineyards of the West End and of San Bernardino County according to officials, it will be a very good year.

"We have a real good vi..tage this year. The crop is excellent," explained Philo Biane of Brookside Winery.

According to Biane, the unusually cool weather during August and September this year has helped the local grape crop.

"Cool weather is good for the grapes grown in this area. They are fine for dry winemaking," he said.

The cooler than normal weather slows the maturing of fruit, however, and has slightly delayed the harvest.

"Crush wise we've just completed the white and are starting on the dark," said Biane, who predicted that Brookside alone will produce between 4.5 and 5 million gallons of wine this year.

For the entire West End, Warren Burr of the San Bernardino County Department of Agriculture predicted a crop of about 50,000 tons of grapes this year, up slightly over last year.

"The harvest is now in full swing, although the grapes have not reached full maturity," said Burr.

Most of the grapes grown in the West End are sold directly to local wineries, although several thousand tons are shipped out of state to the midwest and Rocky Mountain states.

The largest demand is for Zinfandel grapes, a dark variety which is the area's premium crop. The Zinfandels are used to make a dry red table wine and the grapes bring growers more than $200 a ton. Other dark varities grown in the West End are sold for about $130 a ton, while white varities bring about $100 a ton.

The harvest season is expected to last through the end of October and possibly into November this year. As of now, only about 25 per cent of the crop has been picked.

West End vineyards cover about 13,000 acres. About 500 acres were put back into production this year in a reclamation effort. According to local officials, however, most of the old vinyards cannot be rejuvenated if they have been neglected longer than one or two years.

The California Department of Human Resources Development has reported that the labor force for the grape harvest is short about 200 persons at present, although the shortage is not threatening the crop.

"Last year about 800 pickers were used in the harvest," said Vince Jeluso of the state employment office. "We still need about 200 people."

Pickers, said Jeluso, earn anywhere from $2 to $3 an hour for a 6 or 7 hour day. Most of the labor are local residents although some people do come to the valley especially for the grape harvest.

"There are about 500 people working in the vineyards right now," he said.

HARVEST TEST

John Sneed of Upland, a sugar tester for Brookside Winery, takes a sample of grapes picked in West End vineyards. The grape harvest is now about 25 per cent complete and is expected to last through the end of October.

Testimony in 2nd trial

P.D. studied, dismissed burglar-slaying theory

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Pomona Police Department Sgt. John Ellenbecker testified Friday that investigators ultimately abandoned the theory that 19-year-old Cheryl P. Brown had been murdered by a burglar.

Ellenbecker appeared as a prosecution witness in the second murder trial here of Lee Donald Lakey, a 22-year-old bus boy charged with strangling the young woman who had just moved into an apartment near his residence at 759 E. San Francisco Ave.

The theory that Miss Brown was slain by an intruder was advanced during Lakey's first trial here. That hearing ended in a mistrial when the jurors could not agree on a verdict. The policeman was questioned again Friday about that theory by defense attorney Joseph A. Dolan.

Ellenbecker said that investigators abandoned the theory because they didn't find enough evidence to support it. The basis for the theory was the discovery that a screen had been removed from a window of Miss Brown's apartment.

Dolan also won from Ellenbecker the admission that police do not know what it was that the slayer used to garrot the young woman the first night she was to have spent in her new apartment.

But Ellenbecker testified that neither Miss Brown's brassiere nor any electrical cords or wires found in the apartment showed evidence of having been used to garrot her.

The victim's body was discovered by her 21-year-old sister who went to the apartment to find out why Cheryl hadn't arrived at their mother's home when planned. The young woman's clothing had been disarranged, apparently by the slayer, leading police to believe she had been the victim of a rape-slayer.

Test deadline near for Chino High students

CHINO — Monday is the deadline for Chino High School students to register for the American College Testing Program (ACT) to be given Oct. 20 at Chaffey High School.

The Oct. 20 test is the first of five national test dates on which the ACT assessment will be offered for students planning to attend college.

The student fee remains $6.50 even though the program has been expanded to include additional information. Completion of the test takes approximately 3½ hours.

The other test dates with registration periods in parenthesis are Dec. 8 (through Nov. 12); Feb. 23, 1974 (Nov. 5-Jan. 28); April 27, 1974 (Jan. 21-April 1) and June 15, 1974 (March 25-May 20).

It is recommended that students take the test which consists of four standardized series on English, math, social studies and natural sciences in the junior or early senior year.

Tougher license test ahead for motorcycle riders here

POMONA — Motorcycle riders in the Pomona Valley and throughout the state will face more intensive license testing in the future as the result of a new program announced this week by Robert C. Cozens, state director of motor vehicles.

Under the program the five examiners at the Pomona office, along with examiners around the state, will undergo special training to better evaluate motorcycling skills.

"There are presently more than 600,000 motorcycles registered for on-highway use in California," Cozens said. "About 120,000 riders are licensed every years. This proliferation of riders makes it mandatory that our licensing procedures be scrutinized and tightened where necessary."

California has been issuing special licenses for motorcyclists since 1968, but DMV examiners have never had the opportunity before to evaluate riding skills in depth.

"Motorcycle safety demands that the driver possess critical skills above those of the average automobile driver," Cozens stated. "And only an examiner who is thoroughly familiar with these skills can evaluate the cyclist to insure that he does, indeed, possess them."

In addition to providing training for examining personnel, the program will enable special motorcycle testing equipment to be installed at selected field offices throughout the state. The testing equipment will include pylongs, stanchions and paint striping.

Chinoan will compete today in hand-milking competition

POMONA Pete Vander Zwan, 16305 Euclid Ave., Chino, winner of a hand-milking contest in his city's community fair early this year, will be among the competitors at the Los Angeles County Fair today at 4 p.m. in the Southern California eliminations for the world championship hand-milking contest later this year.

The contest is open only to professional dairy people or people who have been in dairy production during the past three years.

Manuel Dutro of Stockton is reigning world champion after producing almost 20 pounds of milk in a three-minute contest.

Milkers are allowed to wear the uniforms of their companies. Three cows are provided and each milker has a minute on each animal.

Democrat Club against Reagan tax initiative

The Eleanor Roosevelt Democratic Club voted unanimously at a recent meeting to oppose Proposition 1, the Reagan tax initiative, on the November 1974 ballot said Mrs. Leisa Bronson, club president.

The club will work actively with other organizations opposing the constitutional amendment such as the League of Women Voters, California Teachers Association and the American Association of University Women. The club represents the Pomona Valley.

"The public should be informed," Mrs. Bronson said, "that the measure will not lower taxes. Instead, it will inevitably mean an increase in property taxes, as well as cuts in programs of vital importance to the less fortunate segment of our society."

The club also voted unanimously to help secure signatures to qualify for a place on next June's ballot the campaign reform initiative being sponsored by Common Cause, the citizen's lobby.

POMONA — Rudolph J. Gregory was installed as president of the Kiwanis Club of Pomona Wednesday night in an installation banquet highlighted by the presentation of the club's man-of-the-year award.

C. Douglas Ferry was honored with the Kiwanian of the Year Award. A past president of the club, Ferry has been a member of the Kiwanis Club since 1945. He is the owner of Ferry Heating and Air Conditioning.

Gregory has been a member of the club since 1966 and previously served as first and second vice president, and as program chairman. He is a partner in the firm of Kearney, Ballman and Gregory.

Other officers installed were Benton S. Gaskell, first vice president; Robert C. Gustaveson, second vice president; John Michael Arrambide, secretary; and Fred Scrimes treasurer.

POMONA — The Pomona Moose Lodge receied the "best informed" trophy at the California-Nevada Moose Association's 40th annual convention held recently in Sacramento.

The Pomona lodge also received a parchment award for its contribution to the California Epilepsy Society and a miniature silver crown in lieu of the silver crown membership trophy the lodge has held for two years.

Fellowship degrees were bestowed on Robert M. Lawson and Donald L. Savoie for their outstanding service to the local lodge.

U.S. isolated on issues at IMF meeting

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The United States found itself isolated on issue after issue at the International Monetary Fund (IMF) session that ended its annual meeting Friday.

If the experience bothered U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, leader of the American delegation here, he did not show it. U.S. officials said that, even after the decline in the overseas value of the dollar, the United States is still so dominant in world economics that it can act as a majority of one.

"Some people came with the hope that this meeting would produce a blueprint for monetary reform," Johannes Witteveen, IMF managing director said. "This was never my hope. But I have no doubt that this important objective can be reached in months ahead. The sense of urgency shown this week must be sustained."

The meeting produced no visible progress toward resolution of the deep differences blocking reform, most of them between Washington and the rest of the world.

But the nations did agree to work out these differences by next July 31, a deadline greeted with wide private skepticism by many delegations.

Witteveen noted two hopeful signs in international finance, that the soaring inflation in commodity prices "may have passed its peak and that the U.S. balance of payments deficit, a serious impediment to monetary reform, may be righting itself.

"We are still only in the middle of the negotiating process," Witteveen said.

IMF governors passed a resolution drawn up earlier asking the nations to reach reform "as soon as possible."

After the meeting's close, U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz left for Tehran and Russia for trade talks with Soviet leaders. Before he left he said that the U.S. dollar must stabilize itself before effective monetary reform can be established.

The American also said that though the United States publicly seemed to be isolated during the meeting on several issues, Washington in fact had lots of "invisible support" among delegates.

On almost every major issue raised here, the United States has been either alone or close to it. For instance:

—The United States opposes building special advantages for underdeveloped nations into world monetary reform. Japan says it has not made up its mind on the issue but Europe, Africa, Asia and Latin America almost unanimously favor linking reform and aid.

—The United States, admitting it was in no hurry to get reform because it wanted its balance of payments in surplus first, said it is satisfied with the present system of floating exchange rates and opposes returning to fixed rates before the entire reform package is adopted. Other major nations, plus IMF officials, consider floating rates inflationary and destabilizing and want them ended as soon as possible.

—The United States wants firm rules that would make adjustment in exchange rates almost automatic for any nation whose reserves went too high or too low. But it wants new rules on currency convertibility to be fairly flexible. The other nations argue the opposite —flexible rules on adjustments, rigid requirements on convertibility.

Washington also incurred third-world anger here because it is one year in arrears on its payments to the International Development Association (IDA), a World Bank branch that gives low-interest loans to the poorest nations.

Europe has accused the United States for months of slowing up monetary reform. European officials said the United States, because of its strength and central position in any monetary system, can go at its own pace and there is not much Europe can do about it.

No-fault insurance to debut

DETROIT (UPI) —No-fault automobile insurance will be mandatory for all Michigan motorists Monday after a last-ditch attempt by a group of state trial lawyers to get a court order delaying the law's effective date failed.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Horace Gilmore refused to grant a preliminary injunction sought by the Michigan trial lawyers association, a group of 21 law firms opposed to he innovative insurance reform.

"If preliminary injunction were issued the entire automobile reparations system of the state of Michigan would be thrown into utter chaos," Gilmore said.

Gilmore agreed to conduct a full hearing on the constitutionality of the no-fault law on Nov. 19.

Under the new law, auto insurance become mandatory for all state drivers, including the estimated 600,000 motorists who did not have insurance earlier this year.

Failure to obtain insurance could result in a $500 fine, one year in jail and a loss of drivers license and plates.

The new law is a radical change from previous systems for collecting money for injuries or damages suffered in auto accidents. Under no-fault, the individuals insurance company must pay him for his injuries and damages within 30 days.

Under the old state law, the individual who was not at fault in an accident was forced to file a lawsuit against the other driver and his insurance company, and often took as long as two to four years to settle.

Gilmore said the MTLA filed its suit too late to get a full hearing on no-fault's constitutionality before it went into effect.

"If the injunction is granted it would turn the whole system into a voluntary system and defeat the purpose of the bill," Gilmore said.

Yellowstone's grizzly down in the dumps

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The grizzly bear population in Yellowstone National Park may be faced with extinction because of a new government policy to shut down garbage dumps inside the park, an animal protection group has charged.

The Fund for Animals Inc., a privately financed organization, alleged that the National Park Service has attempted to suppress a study which "refutes entirely the present National Park Service program and predicts dire consequences for the grizzly if it is continued."

Dr. John Craighead, an authority on grizzly bears from the University of Montana who helped head up the study, confirmed to UPI that it was submitted to the government in July and that it projects a "pretty dim" future for North America's largest land mammal.

A Park Service spokesman, while not denying existence of the report, said he had no direct knowledge of it. He also said the latest survey indicates the grizzly bear population in Yellowstone National Park is "very healthy" and that the population apparently increased this year for the first time in several years.

The Park Service policy attacked by the report involves the decision to close down garbage dumps in Yellowstone and to remove, and eventually kill, any bear which persists in returning to campsites. Craighead and his brother, Dr. Frank Craighead, had recommended a 10-year phase-out of the dumps in order to wean the bears away from a source of food to which they had been accustomed during the past century.

How spending goes in tax limit fight

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Supporters of Gov. Ronald Reagan's Nov. 6 tax limitation ballot measure have put nearly $800,000 behind their effort and are outspending the opposition roughly 25-to-1, campaign finance reports indicate.

In simultaneous reports to the public and the secretary of state, Reagan's campaign organizations—Californians for Lower Taxes—reported $676,651 in contributions and expenditures of $793,899.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the group spent between $357,000 and $380,000 since the measure qualified fo ra special statewide election, with the remainder used to assure it a ballot spot.

Opponnts of the plan—Californians Against Prop. 1—reported raising $40,210 and spending $31,607, Brown said.

The lower taxes group said their largest single contributor was the Fluor Corp. of Los Angeles, which donated $25,000.

Retired oil industrialist Henry Salvatori of Los Angeles gave $3,000 and dog food maker Jack D. Wrather Jr. of Beverly Hills donated $5,000.

The group's statement said 23,462 donors were not classified as "major coontributors." They were listed as having given $358,077 for an average of $15.26 apiece.

Other major contributors in support of the proposition included Earl M. Jorgenson Co., of Los Angeles, $10,000; Beverly Lincoln-Mercury Inc., of Beverly Hills, $5,000; Ray P. Crocker of Los Angeles, $5,000; Southern Pacific, $5,000, Greyhound Lines West, $3,000; and Grant Oil Tool Co. of Los Angeles, $3,000.

Major expenditures by the group included $101,198 for advertising, mailing and consultation paid to Larson, Bateman Inc., of Santa Barbara; $60,000 for telephoning and phone banks paid to the Krupp Organization of Los Angeles; and $39,622 for polling and consultation to Decision Making Informatin, Santa Ana.

Included in the contributions was a $100,000 loan from Community Bank of Los Angeles, a spokesman said.

The opposing campain committee reported receiving contributions from only two sources, Brown said, the California Teachers Association which gave $40,000 and the China Lake Education Association which chipped in $210.

Michael Deaver, campaign coordinator for the Reagan initiative, said in a prepared statement, "We are delighted by the continuing grass-roots support the tax reduction program is receiving from the people of California."

Both groups were praised by Brown for having filed "detailed reports which appear to fully comply with legal requirements.

"I am pleased thet the voters will have a clear picture of the financial interest on both sides of this measure long before they go to the polls," he said in a statement.

Police capture two escapees

ARVIN (UPI) —Two men who escaped from a minimum security unit at the California Correctional Institution at Tehachapi were captured by Arvin police Wednesday.

Officer Dave Floriano said he spotted Delbert D. Smart, 39, and Edward L. Henry, 39, hiding in an alley about midnight.

Police said the pair apparently had walked down out of the Tehachapi mountains on a sheep trail after fleeing from the prison on foot Tuesday.

Smart was serving time for robbery and rape and Henry was serving a term for possession of narcotics for sale.

Police said the men were still wearing their prison clothing when they were apprehendvd.

Police object to listing of home phones

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The City Personnel Department has to come up with a new means of listing city employes seeking to participate in car pools.

Police officers objected to listing of their addresses on computer printouts posted in some city buildings recently.

George Deal, president of the Los Angeles Police Protective League, said it has been a longstanding Police Department policy to keep the addresses and home phone numbers of its officers confidential.

A personnel analyst said the list did not specify the departments in which the employes worked. He said, however, the department would work with police officials to establish a better means of listing policemen who want to participate in the car pool program.

Garey students get opportunity

By LUAN HARDCASTLE
Garey High School

Garey High School is on the go again with a community careers program, a new idea to introduce students to career opportunities. Students will either do volunteer work in a career of their choice for credit, or work for pay and no credit at an existing job.

The program is to run on Monday and Friday schedules. Each student has his choice of a career which determines what schedule he will be on. Thus, half of the students will be on campus Monday thru Thursday and the other half Tuesday thru Friday.

The one day the student is off campus, he is working in the community with his selected career. Teachers follow the same four day schedule, putting in a fifth full working day in the career program.

Some of the most popular careers chosen by the students include: law and law enforcement, medical assistance, nursing, stewardess, mechanics, dental assistance, forestry, secretarial work, and oceanography.

In order to implement the program, students will be asked to select a career and register for it through the scramble system on Wednesday, Oct. 3.

All 10th thru 12th grade on the Monday scheduled will scramble in the gym. Those on Friday's schedule will register in the cafeteria at the same time. There will be a special time schedule that day.

AFS student at PHS likes desert, sports

By KEN SWART
Pomona High School

Automobiles, make-up, after school activities, airplanes, and the desert all have combined to make Christine Boogaerts a very bewildered yet excited young lady.

Christine, our American Field Service exchange student here at Pomona High, is from Wilsele, a Dutch section of Belgium. She is now living here in Pomona with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weis, Peggy, a senior at PHS, and Bob, a junior. "They've been very nice," Christine says about her American family. "But she (Peggy's Mom) is always worrying about me."

CHRISTINE BOOGAERTS

Christine's most immediate reaction to PHS was that, "The students are so much more open here than in Belgium.' Back in Wilsele, Christine went to an all-girl Catholic school, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. She is visibly surprised at the atmosphere here at PHS. "In my school." Christine explains, "There was only one girl who drove a car; about 50 girls rode motorbikes as I did. And the rest all used bicycles."

Many cars

"Everybody here has his own car," she says with wonder. In Belgium, cars are unusual. Those families who have cars very rarely have more than one.

"There's much more discipline in our schools," Christine adds. "If a girl came to school with make-up on her face or eyes, she was made to go home and wash it off."

Are there any school activities or sports for the girls in Belgium? "No," says Chrsitine positively, "We don't have anything like that."

Christine is involved, however, with quite a few community clubs. She has her own Cub Scout group, and loves working with the small boys. She is also in a Judo club, and is "sports leader" in her own youth group.

After five years of studying English, Christine almost speaks like a native, and claims that no problems with communication have arisen. English and French are both studied in Belgium as foreign languages.

Christine adds that classes are assigned to students, and unlike here, she remains with the same class of students for the entire twelve years. There is no such thing as a "mid-term" graduate.

Uniforms were required at Paridaens, the Belgium school from which she was graduated. Make-up in not allowed at school, nor are stockings or high-heeled shoes.

Christine is further amazed at the number of people who have jobs. "I didn't know a single girl in Belgium who had a job," Christine says.

The one thing that Christine really enjoys talking about is the nationally eaten food in Belgium. Christine says that hot dogs are as popular in America as French fries are in Belgium. She explains further that these large French fries are bought in stands, as our hot dogs and hamburgers are, and that most people eat the French fries with mayonnaise or tartar sauce.

Christine has made the Belgium-style French fries for her American family, and Peggy says they're very good. Peggy does recommend, however, that mayonnaise or tartar sauce be used rather than catsup.

Since she has been here, Christine has visited the mountains, the desert and the beach. She insists that the desert was the most exciting place. "It's really something special," Christine exclaims happily, "Because there are no deserts anywhere in Europe." Christine is looking forward to a trip to Disneyland, and she and Peggy (her "American sister") plan to spend a week in San Francisco.

Having already been graduated from her Belgium school, Christine plans to become a gymnastics teacher. Gymnastics are very popular in Belgium, and classes are taught regularly in schools.

Christine is very athletic, and holds a green belt in Judo. She is also a ballet dancer, enjoys swimming, and has skied in Switzerland.

Because she is so interested in sports, Christine is enrolled in two P.E. classes here at PHS: racquet sports and dance. She is also learning Latin and drama, and has an honor's English course.

Christint has recently joined the Tennis Club on campus, and is naturally interested in the AFS club.

White House scene of dinner bash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon danced. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew smiled and looked carefree. And Mrs. F. Donald Nixon said she did not mind being wiretapped by the Secret Service. It all happened during a Thursday night dinner party at the White House.

To top it all off, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was bragging about the crown his overworked White House staff gave him as a farewell gift after he was sworn in as a cabinet officer.

Somewhere lost in the shuffle was Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand for whom the President and Mrs. Nixon hosted the dinner dance.

The President's sister-in-law was unaccompanied by her husband who was not feeling well enough to attend the White House dinner party.

Asked about reports that the President tapped their phones, Mrs. Nixon, who resides in Newport Beach, Calif., said she didn't mind, adding, "I have no comment. We love our wonderful brother. He is the most fantastic man and the greatest leader the country has ever had we dearly love him."

Agnew was showing none of the strain of the past few days and wore a perpetual smile on his face. Asked how he felt about Speaker Carl Albert's rejection of a House inquiry into allegations the Vice President participated in a kickback scheme, Agnew said, "I don't regard the decision as being permanent."

Instead of the usual musicale in the East Room, there was dancing in the Grand Hallway. Although the President never dances on such occasions, he broke his own tradition, and took his wife Pat on the floor to encourage other guests to dance. After twirling to "The Sound of Music," the Nixon's headed for the private family elevator.

The most happy fellow of the evening was Kissinger, the swinging bachelor, who quipped that he would have hostesses for his diplomatic parties "on a rotating basis."

Nixon backs end electoral vote proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A proposal to abolish the Electoral College and let the people decide who is elected President has won support from the Nixon administration.

But at a Senate hearing Thursday, assistant attorney general Robert G. Dixon Jr. warned that a proposed emergency provision allowing Congress to decide the outcome of a multi-candidate race would undercut the "independence of the presidency."

The proposal before the Senate consitutional amendments subcommittee would change the Constitution to allow the popular vote, instead of the Electoral College tally, to elect the President and Vice President.

Part of the proposal would allow Congress to select the President if none of the candidates gets 40 per cent of the vote. Each member of congress would have one vote.

Dixon said such a provision could "place the President under obligation to those members of Congress who voted for him." Any contingency proposal, he added, must "maintain the independence of the presidency."

"...We should hesitate before turning the selection of the President over to Congress, even on a contingent basis," he said.

Dixon said a runoff election has more merit.

He said a state-by-state proportional plan of computing the electoral vote seemed "statistically fairer on its face" than a simple nationwide tally. The proportional plan, which President Nixon supported when the House debated the issue in 1969, would give each candidate a share of each state's electoral vote in proportion to his percentage of the state's popular vote.

USC, Oklahoma battle in 'Coliseum Bowl'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It all depends of which way you look at it to determine how big tonight's battle between USC and Oklahoma, last year's top-ranked college football teams, really is.

For Oklahoma, it is the big trip of the year. The Sooners, who are inelgible for any bowl games for two seasons, are treating tonight's game at the Coliseum as their 'bowl' contest of 1973.

But Trojan coach John McKay is trying his best to downgrade the game.

"We want to win," says the silver-haired USC mentor, "but we've got to beat Oregon State more than Oklahoma. Our goal is the Rose Bowl."

No matter what McKay said, more than 80,000 fans including at least 18,000 from Oklahoma will be on hand for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

But McKay is proud of his team's defense in not allowing a touchdown and is quick to point out how graduation losses have hurt his national championship team, especially on blocking.

LOCAL - NATIONAL
Sports

For instance, Heisman Trophy favorite Anthony Davis has been held to 167 yards in 48 carries.

"Davis is not getting the blocking he got last year so he's not getting the yardage," McKay explained.

For that reason, Ganesha High product Dean Lingenfelter will be in the starting lineup tonight at tight end ahead of Jim Obradovich.

"So far Lingenfelter has been the better blocker," McKay added.

The Trojans will be led as usual by junior quarterback Pat Haden and his Bishop Amat buddy, end John McKay Jr., plus Lynn Swann, who is regarded as USC's top athlete.

On defense, safety Artimus Parker is the big man after he picked off three passes last week at Georgia Tech to set a Trojan career record with 15.

But Parker probably won't get much of an opportunity tonight. Oklahoma stays mainly on the ground with its Wishbone offense.

The Sooners rolled up 480 yards on the ground in their opening 42-14 whipping of Baylor with three players quarterback Steve Davis, halfback Joe Washington and fullback Waymon Clark all gaining more than a 100.

"They run the fastest Wishbone I have ever seen" McKay said about his Big Eight opponents.

Washington, a sophomore, is considered more than an adequate replacement for the graduated Greg Pruitt. "He was absolutely phenomenal," said Texas coach Darrell Royal after the Baylor performance. "He has the best acceleration I've seen."

Barry Switzer is the rookie coach of the Sooners after serving as an assistant under the departed Chuck Fairbanks for six years. He has the task of keeping a winning tradition. OU has lost only two of its last 27 games.

As usual, Switzer has kind remarks about the Trojans. "Whew! What's there to say. They have a super, super team. For us to win we'll have to play a perfect game."

Bearcats fall to Temple City ...grudingly

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

TEMPLE CITY — The Amazing Green Upset Machine will have to wait a while longer for its next big catch.

Bonita High, coming off a 14-0 stunning of arch-rival Claremont a week ago, came within seven points of the biggest killing of all Friday night.

Temple City, a squad that figures to make history every time it takes the field, didn't put the lid on its 45th straight victory until mid-way through the fourth quarter when quarterback Rich Johnston took an eight-yard keeper over to complete the scoring in a 27-20 victory over the Bearcats.

Before Johnston's heroics, it was the efforts of running back Rick Brown that kept the defending 2-A champs in the game.

An unofficial tally gave Brown 155 yards rushing en route to three touchdowns— his final score coming on a 15-yard dash.

Richard Ortega, the man who provided most of the fireworks a week ago, gained 156 yards on the ground, and broke off a pair of spectacular touchdown runs reminiscent of the Bonita attack of a few years back.

With his team down 14-6 in the third-quarter, Ortega took a handoff from quarterback Harold Drake and ran 59 yards with it for a TD. Late in the quarter, Ortega again stunned the Ram defense with a 55-yarder.

Moments later, Drake carried the ball over for the two-point conversion and a tie score.

In the first quarter, Ortega got the Bearcats a 6-0 lead with a 15-yard run.

Bonita held the lead until well into the second period when Brown pulled off the first of his trio touchdowns.

After halftime, the Rams scored quickly on a long drive on the first possession of the second half. Johnston ran the ball 57 yards on one carry during the drive.

Late in the fourth quarter, the Bearcats fumbled a Temple City punt on their eight-yard line, but then held on four downs to maintain the close final margin.

Bob Rees, Bonita running and defensive back, sustained a knee injury during the first half and was removed from the stadium at halftime in an ambulance.

The extent of Rees' injury was not immediately diagnosed.

Wolfpack calls on its defense

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

But as it turned out, the Wolfpack didn't need much of an offense against Glendora in the second and final nonleague game of the 1973 high school football season.

Two big plays and a little bit of stubbornness by the Claremont defense gave the Wolfpack its first victory of the young campaign.

Defensive back-quarterback Kent Stalwick picked off a Glendora pass and ran it back 55 yards to set up the 'Pack's first touchdown, and then Dan Thomas sprinted 76 yards on a punt return to score the winning touchdown as Claremont nipped Glendora, 13-7.

On the Tartans' first series of plays in the second half, Glendora quarterback Harold Hopkins dropped back and launched a wobbly pass which was intercepted by Stalwick on the Claremont 44-yard line. He broke through the scattered Glendora offense (now the defense) and legged it out down to the Tartan one-yard line, where he was bumped out of bounds.

On the next play, Kent cashed in on his defensive gem with a quarterback sneak from the one yard out with 9:09 remaining in the third quarter.

Both teams were halted on their next set of downs, and after Glendora was forced to punt on its second set of downs Thomas became the hero.

He fielded Tom Reck's boot on the Claremont 24-yard line, busted to the left side of the field, raced down the sidelines and found daylight at midfield to complete his 76-yard jaunt. Dean Erickson added the extra point after missing after the first touchdown, and Claremont led, 13-7.

Glendora threatened to score in the late stages of the game when the Tartans moved from the Claremont 40-yard line down to the 'Pack's one with 50 seconds remaining in the game.

An illegal procedure penalty against Glendora moved the ball back to the six, and halfback Craig Sapp picked up a yard on the next play.

With only 30 seconds remaining, Hopkins went to the air. His first pass was deflected by the on-rushing Claremont defensive line, and his second—under a hard rush—fluttered into the end zone and was knocked down by lineback Joe Hillstock.

And that was all Claremont needed.

Glendora took the lead in the second quarter when Sapp capped a 54-yard drive with a one-yard plunge. Jim McCadden added the extra point to provide for the Tartans' 7-0 halftime edge.

That doesn't mean Claremont never came close, though.

The 'Pack, who only gained 27 yards on the ground and 21 yards in the air all night, took the kickoff after the Glendora touchdown, started a drive on its own 41-yard line, and rambled down to the Glendora two-yard line.

But on a third-and-one situation from the two, Stalwick was dropped for a five-yard loss. An incomplete pass on the next play turned the ball over to the Tartans.

Idle Mets lead in East by 1½

By United Press International

Montreal edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in the hectic National League East pennant race Friday.

The loss dropped the Pirates 1½ games behind the idle New York Mets while the Expos moved to within three games of the lead. The Mets-Cubs game was rained out and the two teams will play season ending doubleheaders today and Sunday.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 on the two-hit pitching of Mike Thompson and Diego Segui. Joe Morgan hit his 26th home run in a losing cause as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3 in 14 innings.

Ganesha celebrates trip by shutting out Oxnard

By BILL CLARK
Oxnard Press Courier

OXNARD — A band of hard running Giants from Ganesha High of Pomona, who had never played here before, arrived safely at Oxnard-Houser Field Friday night and immediately fell in love with the Greensword.

Oxnard wasn't so fortunate, coming up on a short end of a 27-0 battle with the polished, experienced Giants who are now 2-0 on the season in tune-up for a shot at the San Antonio League crown.

It wasn't exactly the Giants's safe arrival as much as their running, a game that stung the Yellowjackets and new coach Pete Clark, prompting Clark to charge somebody with removing the detour sign he had set up a along the Ventura Freeway.

"I figured if they didn't show up in time, we might be awarded a forfeit," said sneaking Pete, still doing an admirable job considering a great lack of talent.

What Oxnard couldn't cope with in suffering its second loss in as many starts, were the long distance breakaways of Ganehsa back Jeff Lambert, soph Ron Jacques and cool quarterback Tracey Cowger.

Jacques scooted off the same spot, broke a pair of tackles, and went 55 yards with the second TD with 2:30 left in the half.

A fumbled pitch out turned out to be a grievious error for Oxnard deep in their on territory in the third period. Calvin Mitchell scooping it up from nine yards out for the TD.

Cowger had completed Ganesha's only pass in its only attempt all night for one yard, proved it was not a factor in the victory by cutting back over the middle for 20 yards to score with a keeper in the final period.

Lambert rushed for 55 yards in five carries while Cowger gained 17 yards on five totes. Kevin Braxton netted 75 yards on eight carries. Jim Maniaci rushed for 64 yards on 14 carries and Jacques gained 92 yards on four carries.

The Ganesha defense held Oxnard to 85 yards rushing and 83 yards passing for a total of 168 yards.

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — If it had been a bullfight, the matador would have been killed. After the officials had tossed 250 yards worth of red flags, Montclair parlayed three touchdowns by Filbert Gonzales to a 27-19 win over Ontario Friday at Chaffey High.

The Cavaliers and Jaguars spent the evening battling their own errors and a seemingly endless string of infractions, but it was the inspired running of Gonzales and a big night from quarterback Brett Jetton which decided the outcome. In addition to three TDs, Gonzales, wound up the action with over 100 yards rushing while Jetton connected on 9 of 16 tosses for 180 yards and one TD.

Gonzales 30-yard return of the Jaguars opening kickoff got the Cavaliers in business at the Ontario 48, and from there Montclair marched in seven plays, Gonzales powering into the end zone from one yard out. Rick Tomas' PAT was true and Montclair drew first blood, 7-0.

Ontario, after an uneventful first quarter, tied things up midway through the second. Joe Jefferson took a David Warren pitchout and swept right end for a 53-yard TD run. Steve Bell booted the conversion and the score evened at 7-7.

Montclair went on top again with a score late in the first half. Taking the kickoff after Jefferson's TD, the Cavaliers got a key 33-yard scamper from fullback Jack Surby, which placed the ball on the Ontario four. Montclair punched it in in three plays, Gonzales carrying the final yard to place the Cavaliers ahead 13-7.

Ontario came out of the locker room in the second half and looked like they meant business as they took the kickoff and drove 67 yards to pay dirt. Marty Verdusco raced over from the 12, and the blocked PAT left the score knotted again at 13-all.

A 50-yard TD pass, Brett Jetton to Larry Milton, got the Cavaliers ahead to stay in the third quarter. Jetton found Milton behind his defender and lofted it in, Milton using his speed to go the distance. Tomas PAT was good and Montclair led 20-13.

Mounties win third in row

By MIKE RAWLINSON

WILMINGTON — In a game decided on mistakes, Mt San Antonio College emerged Friday night with its third victory in a row, 21-12, over big and rugged L. A. Harbor.

The Mounties outslugged the winless Seahawks in almost every department. The outcome was decided, however, on who made the fewest mistakes. And MSAC won it here, but barely.

A total of 18 penalties were called during the course of the evening's activities, but Harbor was on the long end in yardage lost, 99 yards on nine penalties. The Mounties were guilty on nine also, but they avoided the mistakes in crucial situations, and were penalized "only" 61 yards.

When the officials weren't calling penalties, Mountie quarterback Steve Myer filled the warm night air with passes. Myer, a sophomore who led the nation's community college passers a year ago, reverted to 1972 form by completing 15 of 26 for 221 yards and two touchdowns. It wrecked the Hawks.

Flanker John McIntyre caught six for 181 yards and two touchdowns. The first one came on the fifth play of the game, when Myer hit him at the 20 yard line and he ran it in on a play which covered 66 yards. Tom MacKenzie, who has made 11 out of 11 extra points, booted the Mounties into a 7-0 lead.

Harbor came right back late in the period to score on a two yard run by Dave Garasic, which culminated a 48-yard drive. But the point after try was wide right.

Myer used just three plays—all passes—to get the Mounties six more points. This time he hit McIntyre in the near-corner of the end zone from the 27, and that was all MSAC would need, after MacKenzie's boot.

Tailback John Huston returned Harbor's punt 45 yards, to set up the Mounties at the Hawks' 35. And then, it took only three plays with tailback Teddy Farmer carrying the ball for gains of 15, 16 and 4 yards for a touchdown. MacKenzie made it 21-6 with his third extra point of the night.

Farmer, a sophomore, who gained more than 300 yards last year, is closing in on those totals. Friday he carried 17 times for 80 yards to run his rushing total to 301 in three games.

Harbor put the final points up on the board in a desperation drive late in the final period. Quarterback Gary Cragin, the third Hawk QB of the night, engineered the drive that started at the Harbor 46. Cragin finally punched it in from the one yard line with 24 seconds left to play.

UCLA has yet to win in Mich.

EAST LANSING, Mich.—UCLA takes the field this morning (10:30 PDT) for its game with Michigan State rated from 10 to 13 points better than the Spartans.

The Bruins have never won a football game in the state of Michigan. The Uclans lost to the Spartans in 1965 at East Lansing (13-3), and three times to Michigan at Ann Arbor, 42-13 in 1956, 29-6 in 1961, and 38-0 in 1971.

That gives UCLA teams a total of 22 points scored in four games in Michigan against 122 points by the opposition. Hopefully, the spell will be broken today.

Mark Harmon will start at quarterback with the brilliant John Sciarra in reserve. Sciarra leads the Bruins in total offense with an average of 88.5 yards per game to Harmon's 27 yards.

Heat, wind bother cycle hopefuls

ONTARIO — Paul Smart stepped into his garage, immediately peeled his leather suit down to his waist, grabbed a towel to wipe his sweating face, picked up a cup of ice water, sat down, and took a deep breath.

He had just taken about a dozen laps around the Ontario Motor Speedway's 3.5 mile road course under 95 degree heat and a brisk easterly wind.

That's the kind of day it was on the opening day for the Third Annual Champion Spark Plug Motorcycle Classics.

Smart, the defending Classics champion in the Expert division, was one of more than 100 riders who took to the Ontario course Friday afternoon for the first day of practice.

The practice session gave the Expert, Junior and Novice riders a chance to feel out the OMS road course and also test their machines under the California heat.

There was only one main casualty of the day when John Hateley of Van Nuys took a tumble in sixth turn of the 20-turn course after his engine had locked up on him.

Dave Smith, following Hateley in close pursuit, tangled with the fallen machine—sending Hateley to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland for x-rays and treatment.

He was released a few hours later suffering from multiple abrasions, particularly of the right elbow, arm and hip. Smith was treated at the track first aid station and released.

Gary Scott, currently ranked as the No. 2 rider in the nation, also took a spill during the morning session, but did not require treatment.

The top speed for the day, as clocked by American Motorcycle Association timers, was a two minute and nine second lap by Gary Nixon on a Kawasaki. His average speed for the lap was 89.134 miles per hour. Yvon DuHamel, fresh off a victory at Charlotte on a Kawasaki, turned in the next fastest lap of two minutes and ten seconds.

The track will open this morning at 8:30 for one hour of practice. Then starting at 10 a.m., eight five-lap qualifying races will get underway with the Experts taking the track first.

Each division will have two qualifying races, with all the qualifying due to end at about 12:45.

At 2 p.m. a 76-mile Novice race will be held, with a 125-mile Expert-Junior Combined Lightweight race to follow at 3:30 p.m.

CLASSIC NOTES: Newly crowned AMA champion Kenny Roberts was on the track in the early afternoon carrying the No. 1 plate on his motorcycle. Just sporting for brief filming purposes, Kenny will actually wear his No. 80 during the races. He'll be able to wear the No. 1 plate for real next year . . .

Jim Coughlin, Bell Helmet representative, announced a company prize for the top dirt and road race riders for the season. Roberts has clinched the dirt track title with 1097 points to Scott's 713. He closely trails Gary Nixon in points accumulated on road circuits. Nixon leads with 639 points, a mere 13 more than Roberts, and they will decide the issue Sunday in the Expert race, the final road event of the season.

Pomona neglects pass again in dropping 25-8 decision

FONTANA — The Pomona Red Devils, who open play in the San Antonio League next week against Montclair, might have to develop a passing fancy for the game if they are to go anywhere this year.

This was evident once again Friday night as the visiting Pomona crew dropped a 25-8 decision to a tough Fontana Steeler 11.

The loss was the second of the pre-season for coach Mike Clifton's squad and the Red Devils, who possess last season's all-SAL quarterback in Steve Taylor, couldn't get any kind of offensive attack going against Fohi, as Pomona stuck mostly to the ground in the opening half.

In the first 24 minutes, Fontana ran up a 12-0 lead, but the game wasn't really that close, as Pomona could only manage two first downs. With Taylor completing only one of this three attempted aerials.

One of the main troubles for Taylor was the lack of time to throw the ball, as his offensive line protection was not the kind necessary to develop a strong passing game. But the line was not able to open up consistent holes for running backs Garry Honest or Jim Price either.

The main problem for Pomona was a Steeler running back named Terry Henderson who shocked the visitors early in the first period by scrampering 27 yards to a Fohi touchdown, the first time the hosts had the ball.

This TD was set up by a bad snap from Pomona center Delfino Serna on a punt ttempt, as Fontana recovered the ball on the 27-yard line.

It was 19-0 before Pomona was able to get on the score board, and it did that by having no Red Devil touch the ball. The Fontana center returned the earlier favor by snapping the ball over the head of the Steeler punter and through the end zone for a safety—the first points llowed this season by Fohi.

Pomona did get a touchdown in the fourth quarter as Price barreled over from the nine on a well executed draw play. In fact, this play, using Honest and Price, was the most successful for Pomona all night.

Henderson was by far the star in the game as his late 62-yard scoring run gave the hard running senior 216 yards in 26 carries. Pomona was led by Price, who netted 63 yards in 10 carries while Honest had 58 in 13.

Taylor was only four for 11, gaining 29 yards as he was dropped four times for losses of 26 yards. Back-up quarterback John Souza completed two of his eight attempts for 28 yards.

Alta Loma's Juggernaut stuns Scots

UPLAND — The Alta Loma Braves are picking up steam and rolling like a juggernaut. The Braves demolished the Upland Highlanders 40-7, Friday night at Upland.

Six different Alta Loma players scored touchdowns, and the Braves' defense would have had a shutout except for an offensive fumble. Upland was held to only 93 total yards.

Alta Loma ran for 269 yards and had 119 yards in the air. Kula Kuresa ran for 136 yards and caught one pass for 24. Jamie Broecker, Brave QB, passed for two touchdowns and 112 yards.

Dan Chalfant opened the scoring in the first quarter by hauling in a Broecker pass for 34 yards. The kick was blocked giving Alta Loma a 6-0 lead.

The Braves started the second period with a 62 yard drive culminating in a one-yard plunge by Kuresa. On a fake kick, Broecker ran in for a two point conversion.

Split end Ted Pedvin was the next player to get in the scorebook for Alta Loma, catching a Broecker pass in the flat for a six yard tally. Broecker finally kicked an extra point to give the Braves a 21-0 halftime lead.

At the half, Alta Loma had 246 total yard to 51 for Upland. Of the 51 yards, Mark White had rushed for 31 and quarterback Jim Christensen had the other 20.

Steve Robinson opened the fourth quarter with the Braves' fifth touchdown of the night, by hitting over left tackle for three yards. By this time, Alta Loma had a comfortable 34-0 edge.

Upland's lone score came when defensive cornerback Corey Chapman picked up a losse ball on the Braves 27 and took it in. Dean Kawasaki kicked the extra point, and it appeared that the Braves were almost going to match last weeks score of 35-6 over Montclair.

Walnut needs rally to beat Rowland

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

LA PUENTE — The Walnut Mustangs, down 14-0 at the half, rallied behind quarterback Lance Parrish to defeat the Rowland Raiders 24-20 Friday night at Nogales.

The winning score came with a little under three minutes remaining in the contest. Rowland had just scored on an one-yard run by Flavio Garcia to go ahead, 20-18.

The ensuing kickoff went to Bob Fausel on the 15, who promptly ran it back 45 yards to the Rowland 40.

Parrish hit split-end Kirk Christ for a nine-yard gain and a four-yard run by Doug McDermott gave the Mustangs a first down.

Parrish hit Christ again and also Mike Pfeil to put the ball on the five yard line. Three attempts at running the ball in proved of no use, so the fourth down saw the ball put into the air.

Parrish hit Jim Vallandingham who was alone in the end zone for the winning score.

It looked like Rowland was going to run away with the game in the first half, as it outplayed the Mustangs in every department.

Running backs Al Emeterio and David Pearce, who gained 120 and 106 yards, continually shot through the Mustang defense for valuable yardage.

Rowland outgained the Mustangs 198 yards to 53 yards, and went into half-time leading 14-0.

The second half proved to be entirely different. Walnut took the opening kickoff and marched for a touchdown; the score coming on a six-yard run by Parrish.

The Mustang defense, led by linebacker Linton Nolan, stopped the Raiders on their next series to force a punt.

Pfeil returned the punt to the Raider 34-yard line. The score came two plays later, after Christ had caught a 25-yard pass, on a nine-yard toss from Parrish to Vallandingham.

Mustang quarterback Parrish completed 11 of 19 passes for 146 yards. He also ran for 16 yards. Most of his yardage came in the deciding second half.

The difference in the game was the ability of the Mustang defense to get tough when they needed to. Nolan and Charlie Knoepfli continually led the Mustang charge that kept the Raiders from scoring late in the game.

Twins cinch third place, down Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)— Righthander Dan Fife hurled a six-hitter and Steve Brye cracked a two-run homer Friday night as the Minnesota Twins clinched of third place in the American League West by dumping the California Angels 7-1.

Although he walked six batters, Fife yielded only an unearned run in the fourth inning as he went the distance for the first time in his major league career.

The Twins made Fife's job easier by scoring five times in the third inning, twice more in the fifth in eliminating the Angels from finishing any higher than fourth.

Brye's sixth homer of the year started the third inning explosion off loser Rudi May. May, a winner of only one of his last 12 decisions, was touched for all five runs in the third. May's record fell to 7-17.

Saints beat Nobles

San Dimas recovered from an opening drive that fizzled, scored quickly anyway and then went on to a 20-0 win over visiting Nogales Friday night.

In other games, Webb dominated Ontario Christian in a 28-8 game, and Royal Oak rolled over Monte Vista 22-6.

Perez Shoemaker took Nogales' kickoff on his own 22 and returned it 23 yards to the 45. The Saints then marched 50 yards in seven plays only to lose the ball on the Nogales five when Jeff Horton fumbled.

But the Nobles fumbled two plays later and the Saints took over again on the Nobles' 20. A running play lost a yard and then quarterback Dave Maloof passed 21 yards to John Brahs for the score. The Saints fumbled again late in the period on the Nogales 20, but there was no more scoring until the final quarter although the Nobles held following a 64 yard pass play from Maloof to Kent Williams in the third period.

Running from the tailback position, Shoemaker scooted 70 yards for a touchdown. Following a pass interception and 30-yard return by Tim Brown, the Saints scored on a nine yard pass from Maloof to Brahs to finish the scoring.

The Saints, now 2-0, play Royal Oak at Charter Oak High next Friday.

Quarterback Clyde Christenson completed 15 of 21 passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns as the Romans of Royal Oak beat Monte Vista. Rick Hall carried 12 times for 50 yards.

Fullback Kurt Zischke and tailback John Baer led Webb's Gauls over OCHS. Each scored a pair of touchdowns as the Gauls outgained the Knights 256 to 137. Ontario was held to only 19 yards total in the first half.

Webb is now 1-0 while OCHS is 1-1. The Gauls host Esperanza of Anaheim at 3 p.m. next Friday.

Citrus sinks in polo match

AZUSA — Citrus college dropped its second Mission Conference water polo match Friday, 15-9 to Southwestern.

The Owls were led by John Hobson's three goals. Three other Owls, Jim Currier, Bob Gladell and Bob Schneider tallied two each.

Citrus will host an invitational tourney today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bronco poloists rout Oxy, 8-5

POMONA — Rob Morell and Bruce Cleeland scored two goals each to pace Cal Poly to an 8-5 water polo win over Occidental.

It marked the Broncos first win of the season. Poly visits Pomona College this morning for a 10 a.m. match.

Dodgers top Padres, 5-2 on 15 hits

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night marked Walter Alston's reniring for a 21st season with a 5-2 win over the San Diego Padres.

Tommy John, with seventh inning relief help from Charlie Hough, got the victory to put his record at 16-7 and bring him lifetime win No. 111.

John and Hough spaced 13 hits while the Dodgers picked up 15 off three Padre hurlers, one of them a home run by Vaughn Joshua in the fifth inning. Mike Corkins, 5-8, was the loser.

The Dodgers got a run in the third on singles by Dave Lopes and Joshua and Tom Paciorek's infield out. Joshua hammered out his second home of the year in the fifth inning to make it 2-0 before the Padres countered with a tally in the bottom of the fifth on singles by Dave Roberts, Nate Colbert and Fred Kendall.

Successive singles by Bill Russell, Rookie Jerry Royster and pinch-hitter Willie Davis increased the Dodger lead to 5-1 in the seventh inning.

Doubles by Ivan Murrell and Leron Lee in the eighth narrowed the score to 3-2, but in the ninth Paciorek popped a double behind first base to score Lopes and Joshua to assure the victory.

CURTIS FRICK . . . . . La Verne fullback

CMC Stags host Whittier today

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — The limping Stags of Claremont-Mudd take on powerful Whittier at 1:30 p.m. today in the first of three games involving SCIAC teams to be played locally.

Two non-conference tilts are slated tonight. La Verne hosts USIU at Bonita High's field and Pomona-Pitzer takes on Azusa Pacific at Alumni Field, both at 7:30 p.m.

Star halfback Billy Nash, who rushed for 69 yards in 15 carries against San Diego last week, has a badly bruised leg. He is one of several C-M players shaken up in the bruising battle.

Quarterback Jaime Opatrny was able to complete only two of 10 passes for just 14 yards and had one intercepted in the opener, but coach John Zinda has confidence in the 6-1, 195 pound soph.

"Opatrny looks like he can throw the ball well if he's given some protection," said Zinda.

Whittier, the defending conference champion, has switched from an offensive minded team to a defense oriented squad. In defeating Azusa Pacific (16-6) and La Verne (20-7), the Poets intercepted seven passes and recovered five fumbles.

Head coach John Godfrey admitted he saw signs of a revitalized running game in beating La Verne. Junior fullback Jim Root, 5-11, 210 pounds, gained 100 yards in 16 carries against the Leopards.

Quarterback Jim MacDonald leads conference passers with 23 completions in 46 attempts for 300 yards and two touchdowns. He has had one intercepted in two games.

While Whittier and Redlands have each played (and won) two games, the local schools have only played one each.

The Leopards, strictly a ground team last year, tried to go to the air against the Poets with a spectacular lack of success.

Quarterback Marty Mercurio completed only nine of 27 passes for 64 yards and had five intercepted. This caused Ortmayer to remark, "Our players forgot what color jerseys we were wearing."

USIU, a 9-6 winner over Southern Utah, had the NAIA National Lineman of the Week in 6-5, 240 pound Lem Burnham who was in on 20 tackles and sacked the quarterback three times. "His performance was the best I've seen in 19 years of coaching," said Don Turner, the Westerners' new head coach.

As if having to face Burnham, whose nickname is "Madman" isn't enough, the Leopards defense will have to contend with a 6-1, 210 pound fullback whose real name is Sampson Horne.

Meanwhile, frustrated Pomona-Pitzer will try to do better than a tie against tough APC. Although the Sagehens managed only a 14-14 tie with Whitman last week, their statistics were impressive.

Walt Ambord's team rates first among SCIAC teams with 309 yards total offense per game. The 'Hens passed for 163 yards and ran for 146.

On defense, the Sagehens are second having allowed 111 yards rushing and 170 passing for a total of 281 yards. Most of the passing yardage by Whitman came on two long "bombs" of 60 and 40 yards.

Quarterback Larry Cenotto got off to another good start by completing 15 of 25 passes for 146 yards and a touchdown. Cenotto added another 23 yards rushing and leads in total offense with 169 yards.

But John Tully and Jim Farmer of the Cougars are even more impressive than the P-P duo of Cenotto and Tony Soter (84 yards on 15 carries.)

Against Occidental last Saturday, Tully completed 10 of 13 passes for 101 yards and a touchdown. In two games, he has 27 completions in 40 attempts for 377 yards.

Farmer, 6-1, 195 pounds and a transfer from UCLA, carried the ball 13 times for 110 yards against Oxy. His two-game total is 228 yards on 30 carries for a 7.6 average per carry.

The Cougars have won the last two years by scores of 26-0 and 48-14.

Poly tests new offense

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Valley sports fans can look for a few surprising changes tonight when Cal Poly hosts Cal State Los Angeles at Kellogg Field in the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Some astonishing offensive maneuvers could make the Broncos as explosive as the school has ever seen.

Naturally there are a lot of ifs.

In the initial three games Poly's rushing game has been far from impressive. Lettermen running backs Greg Cruz, who gained 625 yards for a 4.1 yard average, and Rick Robinson, who netted 159 yards for a 4.0 average last year, have been slow to get untracked.

In '73 Cruz has totaled only 116 yards in 33 totes for a 3.5 average while Robinson has only 42 yards on 28 rushes for a 1.5 yard average.

The surprise has come from quarterback Jim Zorn who has netted 140 yards on 31 carries for a 4.52 average.

In a move to make the Bronco offense more explosive, Anderson will sit Robinson out and go with three wide receivers and one running back.

Joe Fabian, who was the College Division Player of the Week for grabbing eight passes for 199 yards and three TD's in the 31-17 win over Sacramento State last week, now has 12 receptions for 289 yards.

Ron Tatum has caught nine passes for 168 yards and four scores. The other receivers will be Don Hairston, a defensive back with sure hands.

Cruz will be the lone runner in the backfield with Zorn. Cruz was shaken up in Wednesday's practice but should be ready tonight.

CSLA's offense is rated as good or better than any of the three teams Poly has faced thus far in the season.

The Bronco front four of Gary Bockman, Bill Embree, Joe Echeverria and Collin Bromley will have a busy night trying to contain the running of CSLA quarterback Rick Holoubeck and running backs Larry Watkins and Buford Ransom.

The Diablos run out of an effective option-type offense. A sort of combination Houston Veer and Wishbone.

Poly's linebackers of Joe Diaz, Dave Chapman and Lonnie Mahi should be in on more than their share of plays.

Besides reading the offense and trying to stop the Diablos running game, this trio will also be doing a great deal of pass coverage. Holoubeck, besides being rated as an excellent runner, also has pinpoint accuracy from the roll-out as a passer.

The Bronco secondary of Paul Russell, Dennis Amador, Rod Hiatt and Louie Perez will have ample opportunity to display their wares.

The two teams may not be considered arch-rivals but the two coaches are just that — rivals. They both have the same last name.

CSLA enjoys a 7-4 series edge including three straight wins.

Top college teams may run up scores

By United Press International

Seven of the nation's top 10 college football teams figure to run up the score today but top-ranked Southern California and No. 9 Tennessee must be sharp to remain unbeaten.

USC hosts No. 8 Oklahoma tonight in the Los Angeles Coliseum while Tennessee is at home in Knoxville to take on arch-rival and No. 13 Auburn. Both the Trojans and the Vols are one touchdown favorites.

No. 2 Nebraska, No. 3 Ohio State, No. 4 Michigan, No. 5 Alabama, No. 6 Penn State, No. 7 Notre Dame, and No. 10 Louisiana State all figure to romp.

Nebraska takes on Wisconsin, Ohio State plays Texas Christian, Michigan hosts Navy, Alabama meets Vanderbilt, Notre Dame takes on Purdue on national television, and LSU plays Rice.

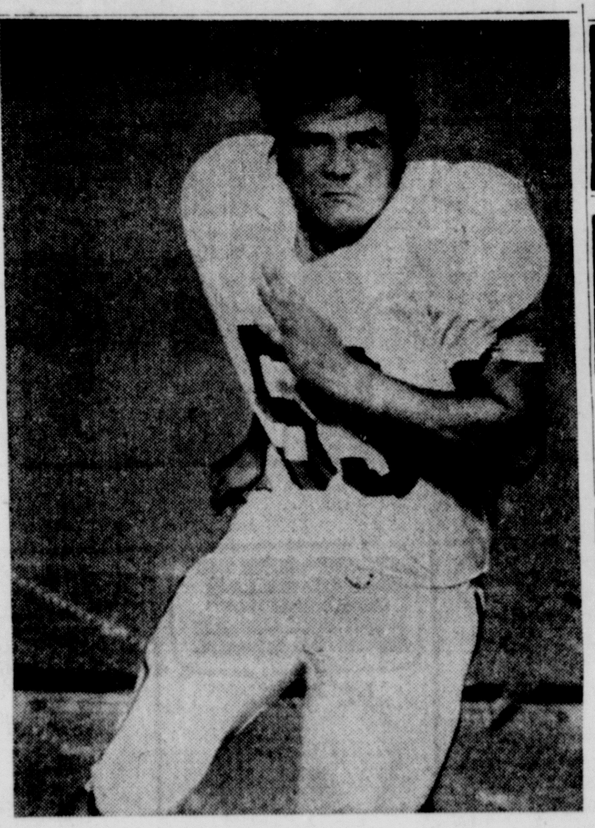
But Southern Cal's winning streak of 14 and unbeaten string of 19 are in jeopardy. Coach John McKay has watched in amazement as the Trojans struggeled to win their first two games against a young and inexperienced Arkansas team (17-0) and last week against stubborn Georgia Tech (23-6). USC's star running back, Anthony Davis, has been slow to get started this season and the overall offensive production has been far below expectations.

Oklahoma crushed Baylor 42-14 two weeks ago and the Sooners have been working hard since then for their confrontation with USC. Oklahoma's vaunted wishbone T has got McKay worried and although the Sooners have been put on two-year probation by the NCAA, they appear to have a very talented and aggressive football team.

Tennessee, 2-0 this season with hard-earned victories over Duke and Army, faces a much stiffer challenge today in Auburn, the Tigers have beaten Oregon State and Chattanooga and are looking forward to downing the Vols for the fourth straight year, it is the Southwest Conference opener for both schools.

"We are looking forward to another chance to beat Auburn, something we haven't been able to cash in on during my previous three years as head coach," said Tennessee's Bill Battle. "We need to play an error-free game against a team that is deadly at converting other teams' mistakes into scores, Auburn is an exceptionally well balanced team with a tough defense and great kicking."

Other important games include; UCLA at Michigan State, Missouri at North Carolina, North Carolina State at Georgia, Minnesota at Kansas, West Virgina at Illinois, Iowa State at Arkansas, Baylor at Colorado, Syracuse at Washington, Texas Tech at Texas, Florida at Mississippi State, and Boston College at Texas A&M and California at Army.



KEN BROWN . . . . . now at New Mexico

Former Ganesha star now a Lobo lineman

Brown, a sophomore from Ganesha High, started four games last year as a freshman for the Lobos and lettered. This season, there has never been a doubt about who the New Mexico center would be. He was a sophomore, but line coach Jerry Hardy had no qualms: "Ken has shown he can hub our offensive line. He isn't experienced yet, but he does have the ability to be an outstanding center—maybe All-Conference."

Brown came to New Mexico as a tight end, but was switched over to center in the fall of his freshman year. His quick development and his promise prompted coaches to move the starting center, Western Athletic Conference honorable mention honoree Curtis Akins, to defensive tackle last spring.

New Mexico's offensive line has their work cut out for them in the next four weeks. They whipped up on New Mexico State in the opener as Brown and the offensive line blasted open enough holes for 379 yards in rushing for the Lobos.

Owls fight for Mission supremacy

It's only the second week of Mission Conference play, but the title may be on the line tonight at 7:30 when defending co-champions Citrus and Saddleback square-off at Citrus Stadium.

The teams battled to a tie a year ago at Saddleback and both are coming off victories last weekend. The Owls topped Palomar, 20-7, and Saddleback beat Chaffey, 35-21.

Owl coach John Strycula sees it as a game that can go either way, but Saddleback, with its No. 7 ranking on the community college grid poll, has to be the favorite.

Strycula hopes to balance his offensive attack with more passing from his quarterback son Bill. In the rushing department, tailback Doug Hopper has been good for 281 yards in two games, including 188 last week.

While Citrus and Saddleback battle for what may be the championship, Chaffey just hopes to remain in contention. The Panthers face San Bernardino at Chaffey Stadium in a 7:30 p.m. game. The loser is almost assured of being out of the title picture this year.

Progress-Bulletin
PREP PREVIEW

Garey at Ramona, 7:30 p.m.

Even thought they had to settle for a tie last weekend against Brea-Olinda the Garey Vikings have proved that they can put together an exciting and successful football team.

And the fact that Ramona lost its opener to Victor Valley, 24-14, last weekend makes the Vikings a slight favorite to claim their first victory since upsetting Claremont last year in San Antonio League play.

By some strange coincidence, Garey has a streak of its own, but its doubtful that the school will brag about it. The Vikings have a two-game tie streak going after finishing last year with a tie with Montclair and opening with a tie this season.

Charter Oak vs. Covina at Covina Stadium, 8 p.m.

Seasonal records will have no effect on the outcome of this rivalry. Althought they're not arch-rivals the closeness of the schools geographically makes this game different than others.

Both teams are hungry. Covina has lost 10 straight and has beaten the Lancers just twice in the past six years.

Charter Oak will be more hungry. They will be mean. Last week's 24-0 blanking by Royal Oak has had an effect on the team. It has on coach Wayne Fetters.

Lancers fans can look forward to the players hanging on to the ball in this game. Three of the four Charter Oak fumbles last week led to touchdowns for the opposition.

Chaffey vs. Mater Dei at Westminster, 8 p.m.

Chaffey's Tigers opened with a tight 15-14 victory over always tough Anaheim last week and it looks like their football fortunes are on the upswing. The Tigers foe this week is Mater Dei in a game slated for tonight at Westminster High.

Mater Dei, a school long on football tradition, is going through a rebuilding year this season and was held to a 7-7 tie by Santa Ana last week. Chaffey will have their hands full trying to contain Mater Dei running back Jim Garden, however, as Garden was virtually the entire offense against Santa Ana with 239 yards rushings.

Handicap ends Fair racing

POMONA — Headed by the Elwood Johnston-owned entry of Balcony's Babe and Imaginative, the largest field since 1957 — 10 horses — is set to contest the $30,000-added Pomona Handicap, highlight of the closing-day program today at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The Johnston family, most successful owners in the Fair's history and already the winners of three stakes this season, will need a lucky lady or lady luck to earn the Pomona Handicap Trophy Saturday.

Balcony's Babe, fresh from an easy win in the Las Madrinas Handicap Tuesday, is the only mare in the field. Imaginative, runner-up as the heavy favorite in the Afflerbaugh Handicap last Saturday, drew the extreme outside post position and will need good fortune to gain a contending position without being forced wide on the first turn.

Heading the list of challengers in the mile and one-eighth Pomona Handicap is Elmendorf's Harbor Prince, upset winner of the Afflerbaugh. The evenly-matched field is completed by Tallyman, Sound 2nd, Forward Admiral, Rhett B., Knightlander, Olymbrose and Specialamente. With 10 starters the gross purse will be $33,150 including a winner's share of $19,650.

Fernando Toro was named on Balcony's Babe and Imaginative, but is expected to ride Imaginative. Toro has seen limited action at the Pomona oval in recent years but performed well when he was here.

Balcony's Babe won the Las Madrinas by 10 lengths. She also won her only other start at Pomona — it was three years ago — and her obvious fondness for the racing strip combined with her good current condition encouraged the Johnstons to try her against the males. The Johnstons won the 1966 Pomona Handicap with Fleet Treat, then a three-year-old filly.

Imaginative, now seven years old, was beaten almost four lengths by Harbor Prince with no apparent excuse, but he will carry one pound less in the Handicap while Harbor Prince picks up three pounds.

Alvaro Pineda again will ride Harbor Prince who was making his Pomona debut in the Afflerbaugh. The Kentucky-bred handled the turns well and was timed in 1.45 2-5.

Another seven-year-old, Tallyman, will be trying for his third win in the Pomona Handicap. He took the 1970 and '71 runnings — the race was then at a mile and one-quarter — and earned a shot at this year's renewal by taking a high-priced claiming event in 1.46 4-5 last Saturday.

L. J. Durousseau will be aboard Sound 2nd, an Argentine-bred who ran a mile in 1.34 4-5 in his best American effort. He was sixth after setting the pace in the San Joaquin Handicap, a Bay Meadows race in which Imaginative was second.

Knightlander, who lost all chance in the Afflerbaugh when he had to take up sharply on the final turn, will try again with Jerry Lambert in the saddle. The four-year-old stretch-runner was second in a pair of races, one of them the Pomona Derby, at the County Fair last year.

$2.1 million held fair price for airport site

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A Superior Court jury has set $2,112,175 as the fair market value the city of Los Angeles must pay a Palmdale couple to purchase their land on the proposed Intercontinental Airport site.

The jury also ruled the city must pay $150,000 in damages for delay in buying the 325-acre parcel.

Businessman Martin Stone and his wife, Elaine, claimed they had been denied the use of their land since 1969 when the City Council announced the intended site for the airport.

The land was expected to be condemned and bought by the city so the owners could not develop the property or sell it. But no action was taken and the owners continued to pay taxes on the land.

Jerry Fadem, attorney for the Stones, said the case was the first in which a jury awarded damages for delay in the Palmdale condemnation and the first valuation trial of any large land parcel within the proposed airport site.

Puppeteer and magician

By ANITA MARIE LAPHAM

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) —A wizard lives here in a small, stucco house cluttered with dangling puppet heads and cobwebbed figurines.

An alchemist - artist - actor-magician, Jim Crosthwait spins fantasy almost as fast as his house spiders spin webs while his brown pet goat, Ramona, trims the foliage.

"I guess I love puppets because, unlike people, puppets are what they appear to be," he says. "A dragon has to be a dragon all the time—whether he's ferocious or chicken. He can never be Snow White.

Crosthwait has performed his puppets at art academies, universities, elementary schools and art festivals in 14 states in the Southwest and Midwest. He plans to join a theatrical group in Chicago for six weeks this fall, but will return to Memphis between engagements.

Scraggily-haired and scrawny, Crosthwait lives and works with the clutter of his craft. Books, including "Horror Library of the 1950s," "Fairytales of the World," studies by Oriental mystics and The Bible, lie strewn throughout the house.

"I want to keep a little magic in a world which is rapidly being stripped of magic," he says, fumbling with marionette strings and describing plans for a 14-foot, helium filled fat lady puppet intended to walk and talk and magically consume children.

With sleight of hand and mind, Crosthwait concocts fairy tales with tangible characters to match. His elements include putty and wood, electrical wires and lightbulbs, plastics, woods, cloth and sometimes chemical gases.

"Puppetry is kinetic (energized or moving) sculpture, only I'm the machine," he says, swinging his arms in wooden soldier fashion.

"For children, I take my art and make it entertainment. For adults, I use entertainment and make it into art. My art."

Plans for the big fat lady are still developing but dabbling with the sciences should bring results, smiles the wizard.

Thoughts

As I stared at all of this, I saw four wheels on the ground beneath them. The wheels looked as if they were made of polished amber and each wheel was constructed with a second wheel crosswise inside. They could go in any of the four directions without having to face around. The four wheels had rims and spokes, and the rims were filled with eyes around their edges. When the four living beings flew forward, the wheels moved forward with them. When they flew upwards, the wheels went up too.

Ezekiel 1:15-21

Balk at stripping

Movie search reveals males more modest

MIAMI (UPI) —The toughest thing about making this movie, said Jack McGowan, is finding two of the main characters: A handsome male actor with straight, hairless legs and a girl with a perfect bosom.

McGowan is determined to solve the problem. Already he has assembled one of the most unusual movie-making companies ever put together and raised the money to finance its first venture.

McGowan and friends put together Union Artists Productions, Inc., which intends to film a $750,000 motion picture on a $302,000 budget with a cash outlay of only $100,000. A neat bit of organizing.

They're now casting for the zany murder mystery story, under the working title "The Artists and Models Ball Cruise Caper." Despite pointed attention on the female bosom, the movie will be rated PG, McGowan said.

The story calls for a male actor who can play both the part of a he-man cop and a female impersonator symmetrical enough to win a beauty queen contest. He's supposed to be the last desperate ploy of the feds to identify a dope smuggler who has been using beauty queens and murdering undercover narcotics agents.

"We need an experienced professional actor for the part," McGowan said. "You'd be surprised how many of the candidates have horrible legs."

Casting and producing a movie is a new experience for the 52-year old McGowan, who has been photographing and directing the camera work on major motion pictures around the world for 25 years.

"I must have looked at 30 bosoms on really good looking girls in the past week," he said. "You know, there wasn't a perfect set in the bunch."

But the biggest surprise, McGowan said, was that the girl prospects "dropped their tops without batting an eye but the men all balked at taking off their pants and showing their legs."

Union Artists Productions and its first film is the result of four years of planning by McGowan and Sandra L. Ulosevich, a movie script supervisor. They discovered that many of their union friends, who live here and are tired of traveling to find work, believed with them that a good motion picture could be produced here with local talent.

"More than 200 union technicians and 1,000 members of the Screen Actors Guild live in south Florida, but a good movie hasn't been made in Florida in many years," he said. "A lot of bad ones have and their reputation has rubbed off on us who live here even though the producers imported most of the people who did the work.

"We have the finest technicians in the world down here and we're going to prove that we can make a first class picture right here where we live," he said.

But first Union Artists must find the male lead and a perfect bosom from which to fashion a set of real looking falsies for him.

"I think I can help," said Max Wolkoff, a canny Miami publicity man who never takes himself seriously.

So Max dreamed up the "Miss Perfect Bosom International Queen" contest, to be held at a Miami Beach hotel before the film production begins. Cash prizes and a part in the movie will be awarded the five best endowed young ladies.

HE TRIES — Mike Jones knows only success and claims he always keeps a positive attitude. Mike lost both legs in a house fire when he was six months old, but that hasn't stopped him with anything he has tried to do. He rides a motorcycle and wrestles on the school team, finishing second in the 95-pound class. He said, "I met a lot of kids who were really negative about things like this. I never could understand that." Mike here performs a maltse for which he received a standing ovation at his first school meet. The Sprague High School (Salem, Ore.,) student now wants to try water skiing.

Cali coed is Chino senior

Fabiola Salcedo, 18, of Cali, Colombia, is attending Chino High School as an International Fellowship, Inc., exchange student.

She is a member of the senior class. She is living with the Leonard Dykes Family at 15600 Pinto Way.

Miss Salcedo, who has a mother, Graciela, and six brothers and sisters at home, has completed one semester pre-med studies in Colombia. She plans to become a doctor.

She arrived in Chino Sept. 2. She is learning to speak English and enjoying being shown the sights of Southern California by her host family.

The Dykes are the parents of Margo Dykes, who spent last year as an exchange student in Lima, Peru. She now attends Chaffey College in Alta Loma.

Cultural complications

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

But in Europe the problem goes deeper. Western Europe has been swept by a vast tide of immigrant labor, probably the greatest in its history. As Turks and Yugoslavs have flooded into Germany, North Africans into France and huge numbers of others into the labor-hungry industrialized nations of western Europe, the result has been not only a new kind of labor relations problem but also sharp clashes between widely divergent cultures.

Altogether their numbers run into many millions with but one common denominator—the hope for a better way of life.

Tiny Belgium alone has an estimated 800,000 foreign workers who are indispensible to Belgium's industrial boom. Included among them are Greeks, Portuguese, Spaniards, Moroccans and Turks.

Among the 2.3 million immigrant workers in Germany are an estimated 600,000 Yugoslavs and an equal number of Turks.

The total in France is 3.5 million, of whom 750,000 come from Algeria. Included also are many blacks from West Africa. It is estimated that immigrants make up 11 per cent of France's work force.

Britain has three million foreign workers.

Switzerland's labor force is 30 per cent foreign.

Italy, traditionally a supplier of labor to western Europe, has exported an estimated two million workers to France, West Germany and Switzerland and now is running short itself, notably in low-paying menial jobs in the south.

Most of the workers flocking to the north from Mediterranean countries are unskilled and therefore work the least interesting and most menial jobs.

In France, some 370 foreign workers at the Boulogne - Billancourt plant walked off an assembly line, creating stoppages that led to the loss of more than 30,000 cars.

At the Ford plant in Cologne, West Germany, Turkish workers went on strike because 300 of their number were dismissed for being late in returning to work after their annual four weeks vacation.

But whatever the outward cause, wages, hours, status, the real cause is declared to be the assembly line.

A commission of the European Common Market in Brussels proposed after a study that assembly line operations be abolished "because it causes serious psychological damage" to workers.

Algeria has stopped immigration to France because of racial outbreaks there against Algerian workers and a number of unsolved killings.

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Several days recently the U.S. Senate was in session from 9:15 a.m. until early evening. The House, meanwhile, met from noon until mid or late afternoon.

A reporter newly assigned to Congressional coverage asked me why it was the Senate consistently worked longer hours than the House.

As of Sept. 5, the Senate had spent more than 665 hours in session this year, compared to 480 hours logged by the other body.

If the Senate passed a lot more bills he could understand it, he said. But such was not the case.

The Sept. 5 compilation showed the Senate had passed only two more measures, 412 to 410.

I pointed out to the newcomer that the House greatly outnumbered the Senate. When you've got 435 members pitching in to pass a piece of legislation, you obviously can do it quicker than if you've only got 100 members to do the same job.

"Many hands make light work," I said.

My colleague thanked me for clearing this up and hastily backed away. But I didn't stop thinking about it right then.

I kept thinking what a shame it was that the Senate had to work such long hours and how badly it needed reinforcements.

Unfortunately, under the Constitution as presently written the only way the size of the Senate can be increased is by adding more states to the union.

An effort was made to ease the workload by bringing in Alaska and Hawaii in 1959, but frankly those four extra senators, while admirably industrious, haven't enabled the Senate to pass bills much quicker than before.

There has been talk of statehood for Puerto Rico and possibly New York City, which might help some. However, a hardnosed assessment of the territorial situation casts doubt enough new states could be acquired to put the Senate on a work schedule comparable to the House.

The logical alternative, then, is a Constitutional amendment increasing the number of senators each state sends to Washington. Eight apiece should be about right.

That would give the Senate 400 members, enough to pass most bills in a single afternoon if everyone did his part.

It also would help the legislative branch regain power parity with the executive branch. For with 300 additional senators, there would be at least 275 additional presidential candidates to challenge the White House incumbent.

Project aims to reduce auto thefts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A $2 million program to beef up auto theft squads in state and local law enforcement operations was announced recently by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger.

The program, made possible by a federal grant, already has resulted in hiring 50 new California Highway Patrolmen, Younger said.

In the past, he said, auto theft was not a high priority with lawmen, but declared the new program would mean an all out effort to stop the thieves. He predicted a five per cent reduction in the number of stolen cars next year.

The attorney general said more than 130,000 vehicle thefts occur in the state each year at a loss of $100 million.

Hazing at West Point ends youth's service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Fairfax, Va., youth has charged that intensive hazing by upper classmen forced him to resign his commission at West Point, the Washington Star-News has reported.

Mark Brown, 18, claimed that while recuperating from acute dehydration this month, he was kept awake by hazers and allowed only a minimal amount of food during a three-month period.

He told the Star-News that because of the vigorous hazing he endured after being released from the military academy hospital, he suffered a relapse and was advised to leave the school for health reasons.

MARK BROWN

The Star-News quoted Lt. Col. Thomas Garigan, public information officer for West Point, as saying: "We are still a mean bunch of bastards. We never promised him a rose garden."

Garigan also told the Star-News he didn't believe Brown understood what constituted hazing and that the academy would make sure anyone "in need of chewing out" gets it.

Brown was sworn in as a cadet July 2 and underwent the academy's military indoctrination program at Lake Frederick, N.Y., near West Point.

He said that after a march from Lake Frederick to the campus and two days of parades and formations, he collapsed on Aug. 30 and was hospitalized for dehydration. According to the youth's account, he was released from the hospital on Sept. 5 and suffered the relapse six days later.

Brown returned to his suburban Washington home on Sept. 14.

He told the Star-News: "The problem with the academy is that upper classmen have become egomaniacs and once a plebe has gone through the hazing, he seems to say the next year that he is going to give what he got."

$9 million of estate goes to the dogs in court fight

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) —Seventy-three pampered dogs, pets of an oil company heiress, received $9 million Thursday as a five-year court fight over the woman's estate was settled.

The settlement, made last year and reaffirmed last month, allots $123,287 to each dog.

When all the dogs die, the remaining money will be given to the Auburn University Veterinary School for Small Animal Disease Research.

Miss Eleanor Ritchey, a Quaker State Oil Corp. heiress, died Oct. 14, 1968, and left her entire $4.5 million estate to a pack of 150 strays and show dogs.

While her two half-sisters and a half-brother, all Pennsylvania residents, fought the will in court, the estate grew to $14 million, and some of the dogs died.

The relatives were awarded $2 million to split among themselves by Broward County Circuit Judge Leroy Moe and the remaining $3 million went for taxes, attorneys and executors.

The dogs will be kept in a modern, air conditioned kennel west of Deerfield Beach, Fla., north of here, eating heartily and receiving weekly medical checkups.

Mugging of the President

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

It was comforting to observe the Secret Service seizure Wednesday of some 2,000 coffee mugs in a San Francisco gifte shoppe, shows the government is still in operation, that the hand is still on the tiller. In view of Watergate and the ensuing chaos, the public had begun to wonder who was minding the store, but the federal crackdown on illicit coffee mugs brings us all reassurance.

The coffee mugs bore a facsimile of a $3 bill and an "uncompliemntary picture" of President Nixon. (What's a complimentary picture of Nixon?) The Secret Service dragnet and said, carried out, I presume, with sirens blaring and red lights flashing, daringly broke up an international ring of coffee-mugs-with-uncomplimentary-pictures-of-Nixon smugglers. It reaffirmed the nation's confidence that the government still has a sense of duty, if not a sense of humor.

Horace Gibbs, tilght-lipped, set-jawer agent in charge of those Secret Service agents in San Francisco not assigned to busting into Watergate, said the coffee mugs violated federal laws governing "similitude" of paper money. He was not concerned by the fact that the "paper money was in fact an earthenware mug, that the U.S. has not got a $3 bill, and that the picture of Nixon was a mug shot.

As a public service, I appeal to those who have hot mugs in their possession to turn them into the local police. And bring your toothbrush.

Casual counterfeiters are also warned that attempting to cash a coffee mug in banks will arouse suspicion. Tellers have been alerted not to accept $3 bills on coffee mugs, with or without two lumps of sugar.

Mr. Gibbs is understandably enraged over what a flood of $3 bills on coffee mugs will do to the national economy. He's a Horace of a different choler.

The mugging has not sent the rest of the nation's law enforcement to the panic button. U.S. Attorney James Browning declined to prosecute. "This doesn't sound like the most serious violation I've ever heard of," he yawned. Gibbs meanwhile, was probably on a barge out in San Francisco Bay, dumping overboard crates of confiscated coffee mugs for the benefit of America and the TV cameras.

The mugs turned out to have been manufactured in Japan, ahso! Gibbs done right to confiscate them. If anyone is going to sell uncomplimentary coffee mugs of the President, it should be people who voted for him. Buy American!

So, while drugs pour into the country, the Mafia reigns unmolested, crime runs rampant in the streets and corruption in the capital, SS Agent Gibbs can sit back happily in his swivel chair, complacent in having throttled the insidious coffee-mug-with-$3-bill-and-uncomplimentary-picture-of-Nixon combine.

Time for boy 17, to live a fuller life

By JEAN ADAMS

NOT AFTER DARK: (Q): I am 17 and very interested in a girl. I've known her a year and a half and talked to her, but never dated her or anything like that.

The reason is my parents. They trust me but do not want me to be out late. I do not go to dances or parties. I do not smoke, drink or take drugs. I try never to give them cause to worry. I am always home before dark, summer or winter, and never go out after that.

I am afraid because of all this that if I tried to be friendlier with this girl she would find out and think I was pretty square. She is really wonderful and I would not want her to think unfavorably of me. What would you do? — Obedient in Ohio

(A): Ask the girl to go out with you on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon. After a couple of afternoon dates, take her by your home to meet your arents. When they see what a fine girl she is, maybe they will also see that it is time for you to start a life of your own.

It is time, you know. With this girl, or other friends, you owe it to yourself to start living a fuller life — your own life.

WHIRL GIRL: (Q): I met Kenny skating. He liked me and gave me a ring a week later. But by then I had met Jim and liked him more than Kenny. Kenny asked me for his ring back but I had on Jim's. Kenny's was at home. Kenny tripped Jim up while he was skating and Jim broke his ankle.

While Jim was in the hospital I met Wes. I really like Wes. But Jim is out now and says I have to choose between him and Wes and Kenny. I don't know what to do. — Undecided in Pennsylvania.

(A): You sound very young and very fickle and very inconsiderate of your friends. I am afraid you have, consciously or unconsciously, been trying to make them jealous of each other.

Tell Jim the truth — that you are too young to go steady with one boy but would like to be his friend if he can forgive you for being foolish. Give him his ring back. Give Kenny his ring back. If Wes has given you a ring, give it back, too.

Then try not to be foolish again.

'Things are different' in Spain

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

visit can hardly qualify one as an expert on a people and a country — but the month has certainly pointed up the poles-apart philosophies that control Spain and the United States.

It would be presumptuous to try and choose one as the "better" — but interesting to compare their differences.

It is very unpleasant to be poor in Spain. No one is starving, few are unemployed. But unlike in the United States, the professional bleeding hearts and the career social service workers have been unable to brainwash the producers into thinking poverty is an honorable estate. Very few of the so called good things of life are handed to the Spanish paupers, or welfare clients as they are termed on the other side of the Atlantic. As a result there is a tremendous self-interest drive to improve themselves; and second and third generation hand-outs don't exist. Again, I'm not saying this is the "better" way — merely the Spanish way.

Another great difference is the attitude toward youth. Americans hate to mature. No longer is the adolescent pushed out of the next as soon as he is able to fend for himself, but rather enshrined on a pedestal and worshipped as though he could do no wrong. Can you conceive of a draft dodger's protest march in Franco's Spain! Again, no effort to select one way over another, but merely to report on the differences.

In he 16th century, Spain was the greatest country in the world. Columbus discovered the New World, an Italian, but with Spanish backing. During this Golden Age Balboa would discover the Pacific Ocean, Cortez would begin his march through Mexico and Pizarro would conquer Peru. In 1898 the United States brought an end to the Spanish Empire when Spain was forced to abandon Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines.

For the last 75 years Spain has been slowly recovering. They sat out two world wars and lived through a revolu-

MADRID, Spain: A 30-day tion. This makes for a tough nation of survival-sharpened men and women.

In the United States we push a button and the elevator operates, throw a switch and we have a selection of television and radio programs, pick up a newspaper from our front porch and read of the problems our President is having with Watergate. These things we take for granted. But you will be disappointed if you expect them in Spain.

Opening lead—♠5

In spite of this unfortunate situation, South found a way to make his contract after West was kind enough to open a trump, rather than a club.

East took his ace and led trumps back. South won in dummy and decided to attack diamonds right away. The normal play would have been to lead the deuce and go up with his king, but South had a slightly different idea. He led dummy's jack!

If East just played low, South would still have played the king, but East covered the jack with the queen. A bad play, but the sort of bad play that even the best players are going to make nine times out of 10.

Now South held back his king. This left East on lead. He couldn't do any good by playing a club and did lead a heart to dummy's ace. A second diamond was led and now the king lost to the ace.

West led a club, but it was too late. South went up with dummy's ace; ruffed a diamond and eventually discarded his losing clubs on good diamonds.

The doctor comments

There is some help for hypoglycemics

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please write an article on hypoglycemia — low blood sugar? A friend of mine has had it for over a year and even though he is on a sugar fee, high protein diet, he feels no better. He sleeps only three or four hours a night and feels so drained of energy he can hardly move. Do you publish any material on it? Is there any hope for his recovery at all? He is ready to try anything. He cannot go on much longer feeling so bad.

Dear Reader — Yes, I have written several columns on this subject. Perhaps it would be helpful to point out that there any many other factors that cause low blood sugar (glucose) besides the diet. The blood glucose level is kept within narrow ranges by the action of the liver, which is a kind of blood glucose thermostat. Wheever the blood glucose gets too low the stores of animal starch (glycogen), or even body protein from muscles and other cells, are simply processed to form more blood glucose. That is why a person in a starvation situation doesn't collapse or die immediately from low blood sugar.

Through the action of the liver and fat cells excess amounts of blood glucose are converted to fat. If the build-up or absorption of sugar is faster than the body can process, the excess of eliminated through the kidneys. All of these mechanisms are then controlled by other glands in the body.

Whenever the liver is damaged there may be a low blood glucose level. Simply put, the liver loses its ability to release glucose into the blood. Any factor that causes liver damage can be responsible for this.

Other people have true hyperinsulinism where the pancreas regularly forms excess insulin unrelated to the food they eat. Rare individuals with disease of the adrenal glands, sometimes called Addison's disease, also have a tendency to low blood sugar.

Add to that the point that fatigue is a symptom of many things, not a diagnosis of low-blood sugar. It can be caused by anemia, tuberculosis, and a host of medical problems as well as being caused by psychological factors. Because many of the symptoms of low blood sugar are the same as those caused by anxiety reactions, many individuals with psychological problems end up being told they have low blood sugar or thinking that is their problem when they really need help in the psychological area.

You can see why I can't really tell you what to expect for your friend. If he has faithfully followed a proper diet — which may include more than avoiding sugar—then it is hard to see how his problem could be a diet related one. If he is still eating lots of starches (breads, rolls, potatoes) he should stop these and limit his carbohydrates to bulky vegetables and use tomatoes to replace citrus fruit. He could also try eating small meals at more frequent intervals.

To this I would add eliminating tobacco, coffee, alcohol, and developing a good fitness program. That could help him—unless he has some problem more complicated than simple low blood sugar related to diet.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Low Blood Sugar" booklet.

Bamboo grass is harder than oak when dried, and intricately carved bamboo buttons have been in use and imported from the Orient since 1900.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS VICTIM — Deborah Bone, 9, has her cast autographed by Angelo Pantrell, principal of South Range School, Derry, N.H., the school she attends Tuesday and Thursday mornings. Attending school is a major undertaking for a girl who must spend three hours a day and all of the night lying in a cast. Debbie has rheumatoid arthritis, a disease of the joints that affects 250,000 children in the United States.

Debbie's only 9, but she is arthritis victim

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

DERRY, N.H. (UPI) —When three o'clock in the afternoon rolls around, 9-year-old Deborah Bone doesn't cry any more.

This year she can go to school two mornings a week—a major undertaking for a girl who must spend three hours a day and all of the night lying in a cast.

Debbie has juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, a disease of the joints which affects 250,000 children in America. Some 20 million adults suffer from the disease.

The crippling disease kept Debbie out of school in second and third grades. She was tutored for 90 minutes a day and kept up with her class, but it wasn't the same.

"Three o'clock would come and she'd cry because she had no friends. She'd see them during the summer but when school came naturally they spent their time with other people," said Debbie's mother, Mrs. Norman Bone.

One-level school

Debbie still sees a tutor, retired teacher Alice Follansbee, daily, but her life revolves around those Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the South Range School. It's a new school outside her district. Authorities arranged for a taxi to take her there because it is built on one level without stairs.

She says simply "the kids" when asked what she missed most about not going to school before. Now she is with them, "studying math, the times table —we're up to the nines."

Her mother said Debbie started limping just a few days before her first birthday. "It took us four months to pinpoint the disease," she said.

Debbie was hospitalized each year for tests, and several times spent weeks in the hospital. The worst time was 1971, when she spent 10 weeks in Robert B. Brigham Hospital in Boston, the only arthritis hospital in the United States. It has only 96 beds, but there is a large research center.

"She had an awkward gait. Her legs seemed to be going outward," Mrs. Bone said. Debbie spent six weeks in traction in the hospital, more time in casts, and came out on crutches, months before the doctors expected her treatment to be completed.

Extra loving care

The hospital gave extra care and love to the blue-eyed, blonde little girl. "An example of this is that while Debbie was in traction, so was her favorite doll, Mrs. Beasley. When Debbie had her cast made, so did Mrs. Beasley. Mrs. Beasley goes back when Debbie has to go back and they both have new casts made," Mrs. Bone said.

At first both Debbie's legs had to be in casts. Now only her left leg and right hand must be in casts at night, and for another three hours during the day.

Rheumatoid arthritis is a disease of the synovial fluid, which cushions the joints. The fluid eats away at cartilege until the bone ends rub against each other. It affects people in degrees varying from morning stiffness to complete crippling. The cause is not known, nor the cure.

Dr. J. Sydney Stillman, Debbie's doctor at Robert B. Brigham, said that although she has a serious case, her outlook is hopeful, as nearly half of all juvenile rheumatoid arthritis victims eventually have total remission of the disease.

"Her own determination has made her progress possible," he said.

Police horse power reducing crime rate

Every time members of the six-man mounted patrol move into a high-crime neighborhood, burglars disappear "almost instantly," according to Maj. Julian Spence.

Spence said the quarter-horses have chased down suspects many times by taking off through back yards, jumping hedges and fences and threading their way between houses.

He said the horses can "go anywhere a man can go—and a lot of places a man wouldn't want to go."

The mounted patrol was instituted two years ago at Piedmont Park to drive out drug pushers and control unrest. Later, it was moved to Grant Park, and the success story was repeated.

When residents of the Grant Park area began complaining of as many as nine burglaries a day, the horse patrol detoured out of the park and into the streets.

In a matter of days, the burglary rate dropped to zero.

"They know they can't carry a television set and outrun this horse," one patrolman explained.

Spence said he plans to expand the patrol and use it in other areas—parking lots at Atlanta Stadium and at the Civic Center, for example—as soon as money is available.

Lack of freedom cited by Czech playwright

VIENNA (UPI) —Czechoslovak playwright Pavel Kohout, joining the ranks of dissidents in the Soviet Union, broke a long silence today and protested what he termed a lack of freedom in his country.

Kohout, a supporter of former Czechoslovak liberal party leader Alexander Dubcek, remained in Prague after the 1968 Soviet invasion. He has been silenced ever since by the Czechoslovak Communist regime.

In an interview granted in Prague and carried by Austrian radio and television today, Kohout protested "the military coup" in Chile and the lack of freedom in Czechoslovakia.

"I am protesting against the junta in Chile," he said, "But I am also protesting against the situation in our country. I cannot remain silent because the same things happen here in our system.'

Kohout, 45, was one of the most ardent partisans of Dubcek's "socialism with a human face" that was crushed by Soviet tanks in August 1968. He happened to be in Italy during the Soviet invasion but later returned to his home country.

Kohout, in his interview, pleaded for release of all imprisoned writers and intellectuals in Czechoslovakia.

Nearly 70% of 200,000 jobs now restored

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nearly 70 per cent of the 200,000 jobs slashed by California manufacturers two years ago have been restored in the current spending boom, Wells Fargo Bank said Tuesday.

Harold L. Buma, vice president and manager of the bank's economics department, said many manufacturers now have a growing backlog of unfilled orders.

Buma said gains have been particularly noticeable in non-defense areas such as apparels, textiles, auto assembly, machinery, electronics, metals, furniture and lumber.

Reasons for the comeback, he said, were expansion in the domestic and international economy, the recovery in the state's aerospace-electronics industry and the boom in consumer spending and housing.

Progress Bulletin

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

WONDER WHERE TO BEGIN LOOKING?

Worry no more . . . most folks have found that the best place to shop for that new or lived-in home is in the Classified Real Estate columns of the Progress-Bulletin. It's here (and only here) that each day you'll find the very latest offerings of homes 'for sale' . . . advertised by the area's leading real estate firms and builders. Check the want ads today—and every day—to find the home that satisfies all your needs.

Mitchum pleased with latest role

By DICK KLEINER

Hollywood (UPI) — It doesn't seem too long since Robert Mitchum was Hollywood's enfant terrible. The years roll along, even for film stars, and now he's one of Holywood's elder statesmen.

Gradually, he's gotten the recognition as an actor he always deserved but never received. Like the great stars of the past — Tracy, Bogart, Gable — Bob Mitchum is always in there, doing a great acting job. He'd be the last to admit it.

In common with most of those old-time greats, Mitchum is given to undue modesty, when it comes to his acting. He never likes his own things or hardly ever. One exception is his new release, "The Friends of Eddie Coyle." This one he is enthusiastic about.

"It's the best thing I've done in a year," he says, which may sound like high praise, except it happens to be the only thing he's done in a year. Even when he's immodest, the modesty shines through.

Scripts continue to pour in to him but he's grown more selective lately.

"I use two criteria in judging what films I'll do," he says. "The first is — is it a picture that I can damage too badly? And, the second, will it be comfortable and convenient?

"I don't like doing things which involve too much work. Yet, curiously, I enjoy working — when I'm working. It's just that I hate thinking about working."

He has gotten himself trapped in some dreadful films in the past. He says he's often been working on a picture and goes off by himself, sits on a rock and asks, plaintively, "What am I doing here?"

That probably won't happen as much in the fuure. He's being more careful, more choosy and it seems to be working. As Eddie Coyle, he gives a brilliant performance, even speaks with a Boston accent. I didn't think the picture worked too well but he did.

"The Friends of Eddie Coyle" was filmed entirely in and around Boston and the locations help. Mitchum, surprisingly for one who is away from home as much as he is, says he doesn't like to travel.

"It's funny," he says. "I just don't like to travel -- but I like being places. I liked being in Boston. Not that I did much there. I holed up in my motel room most of the time. One good thing was that it was cider season so I spent most of my time drinking cider and eating cheese."

He didn't go to the movies much as a diversion. In fact, not at all. He's a confirmed nonmoviegoer. He just doesn't like them.

Ragtime specialist to perform at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — Joshua Rifkin, a young musician active in the return to popularity of ragtime music, especially the intricate harmonies of Scott ("The Maple Leaf Rag") Joplin, will present a concert in UCLA's Pauley Pavilion at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 26.

A well known musicologist as well as musician, Rifkin has devoted a good deal of his career life to the study of the ragtime genre. His UCLA performance will include in its repertoire works performed on the hit recording of Joplin piano rags released by Nonesuch Records.

Ragtime first swept over America at the end of the 1890's, and its popularity seemed to increase along with the excitement engendered by a new century. Nurtured primarily by a large corps of itinerant black pianists in the American Midwest, ragtime seemed to synthesize very diverse musical forms, among them, marching band music, European-American dances such as the polka, quadrille and schottisch, sentimental songs and salon music. These were tied together with the vital syncopated rhythms indigenous to Black music in Africa, the Caribbean and the United States.

Joplin's first rag composition, "The Maple Leaf Rag," immortalized the club in Sedalia, Mo. where the best rag pianists flocked around the turn of the century. Joplin also created the "Rag Time Dance," a folk ballet, and two ragtime operas, "A Guest of Honor" and Treemonisha," neither of which enjoyed the great success of his individual ragtime pieces.

Rifkin's teachers have included David Labovitz in piano and Vincent Persichetti and Karlheinz Stockhausen in composition. He holds degrees in composition from Juilliard and Princeton, and he studied in Europe as a Fulbright scholar. Rifkin's recordings for Nonesuch have ranged from 15th to 20th Century repertoire. For Elektra, he made "The Baroque Beatles Book" and numerous arrangements for Judy Collins. A former musical director of Nonesuch, he recently joined the faculty of Brandeis University.

Scripps publishes letters of founder

CLAREMONT — Ellen Browning Scripps, founder of Scripps College, was co-founder of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain and originator of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, but her writings have never been published except in newspapers.

Now, however, Scripps College has produced "A Sampling from Travel Letters, 1881-1883, by Ellen Browning Scripps." The publication, to be distributed to members of the Scripps constituency, presents excerpts from some of the letters written by Miss Scripps from Europe and Africa.

Dorothy M. Drake, Librarian Emeritus of Denison Library at Scripps, accidentally discovered the letters years ago while doing research on travel. Through the assistance of the Detroit Evening News, she recovered 99 letters published in the News as columns. Miss Drake, assisted by a committee from the Macpherson Society of Scripps College, a group of Southern California women dedicated to furthering the interests of the Macpherson Collection of books by and about women, selected the theme, "Women," and chose excerpts from Miss Scripps' letters dealing with the lot of women in Europe and Africa.

The publication begins with a brief introduction by Scripps President Mark H. Curtis and a personal introduction to Miss Scripps by her grand-niece, Mrs. Roger Revelle, a graduate of the first Scripps College class of 1931.

Many of Miss Scripps' words, written about 100 years ago, ring true today. She wrote, "Many things strike the visitors in Europe with a sense of strangeness and oddity; none more so than the general employment of women in vocations in which in America are filled entirely by men."

"We fell in at Naples with the advance guard of the great army of tourists," she wrote. "I am ashamed to say that I am ashamed of the fraternity especially of that branch of it that I call fellow countrymen. It is not altogether because they wear their old clothes and talk loud, and are self-assertive; nor even because of their ignorance — I am too humiliatingly conscious of my own to assume the office of critic — but chiefly because they so flaunt this ignorance in the face of the world and are seemingly so little conscious of it and have no little regret for it."

Mrs. Farley O'Brien of Studio City, who sponsored the publication, dedicates it to Miss Drake who, like Miss Scripps, graduated from Knox College. Mrs. O'Brien, a Scripps alumna who served on the Scripps board of trustees from 1963-1968, has been a radio and magazine feature writer.

Football fans who prefer their game at home on TV have an opportunity to analyze the fine points of the game to a greater extent than the average man in the stands. Instant replays, in slow motion, show exactly how each player carries out his assignment.

Sophisticated fans are apt to watch the interior offensive linemen. They get little publicity or glory but they often decide whether or not a play succeeds. Watch to see if the guards pull out to lead blocking for a running play, move downfield to block for a pass receiver or fall back to protect the passer.

When you buy a new TV set, your best protection is the integrity of the dealer. That's why so many folks in this area put their trust in us. They know we're saving them money with our competitive prices and they know we stand behind the sets we sell with the SERVICE that has made us famous.

"I don't want anyone else to hear," one iguana seems to say as they gather to "discuss" the day's latest activities.

An affection for reptiles

Located in the foothills just north of here, the couple's spacious home and its adjoining property has become "home" for no less than 75 turtles and tortoises, 10 iguanas and a lizard.

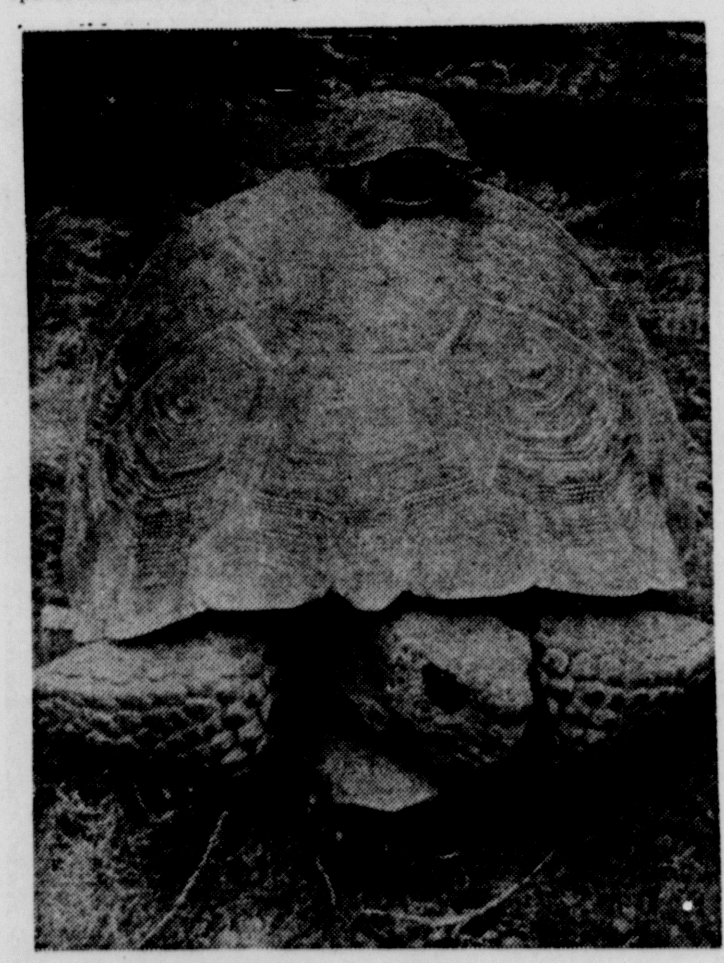
"There is something very agreeable about turtles and tortoises which can't easily be put into words," Bill said during a recent interview.

Bill and Diane began collecting their chelonina friends about five years ago. It was Diane who first suggested the idea.

"Bill got conned into it," she said. "I just thought it would be nice to have a tortoise in the yard. I've always been interested in reptiles since I was a little girl."

Of course, Bill obliged, but, as Diane said, "once we got one, another always seemed to come along."

"It always seemed that somebody had a turtle or tortoise they didn't want, and we would take them."



Whether Caroline, the box turtle on the top, will get wherever she wants to go any faster on the back of Pokey, her California desert tortoise friend, only time will tell. Pokey has been in captivity for 20 years.

They also bought them in pet shops and often stopped on highways during their travels in the East to pick up the slow, clumsy reptiles.

"The only time we'll stop and pick up a tortoise is if we see one crossing the highway," Diane said. "We feel like we are saving their lives by taking them off the roads.

"We never go into the streams or fields to get them. To do so would be a violation of conservation ideas."

The Sracks' collection ranges from domestic chelonians, such as the California desert tortoise and box turtles, to exotic leopard turtles.

The latter type orginated in Africa, and is so named because it sports the black and gold spots of a leopard. Its shell is also distinct from other turtles, featuring a high-dome shape like an igloo.

Leopard turtles are also expensive because they are very rare, Diane said. "A full-grown leopard will cost about $90," she said.

Whereas the leopard turtles and some of the box turtles are kept in glass cages in the house, most of the Srack's turtles and tortoises stay in a temporary enclosure in the backyard.

But Bill is in the process of building a permanent yard which will feature a pond for the aquatic-minded turtles and a desert-type environment for the tortoises. The yard will have a perimeter of 180 feet.

The pond, Bill said, will be deep enough (two feet) for the turtles to hibernate, but will be shallow at the outer edges of the pool so a young tutle that is not a good swimmer will not drown. The pool will also be stocked with leaves, mud and sticks like the turtles use for hibernation in their regular environments.

Desert soil from Joshua Tree National Park will be brought in to give the tortoises soil native to them. Bushes will also be planted for shade.

"We may spend about $2-$3 a week," Diane said.

Most of the reptiles are vegetarians. Besides eating the vegetation in the backyard, the animals are fed lettuce, cantaloupes, spinach and bananas, and supplemented with vitamins for added, nutritional value.

The box turtles, which are meat-eaters, live off bugs, snails and Purina dog chow, which Diane says they "really like."

One food the reptiles are never exposed to is the kind sold in pet shops. Says Diane, "It's like trying to feed humans sawdust."

In an attempt to learn more about turtles and tortoises, the Sracks joined the California Turtle and Tortoise Club shortly after they began their collection.

The club, which was formed over 11 years ago, is designed primarily to "assist in the

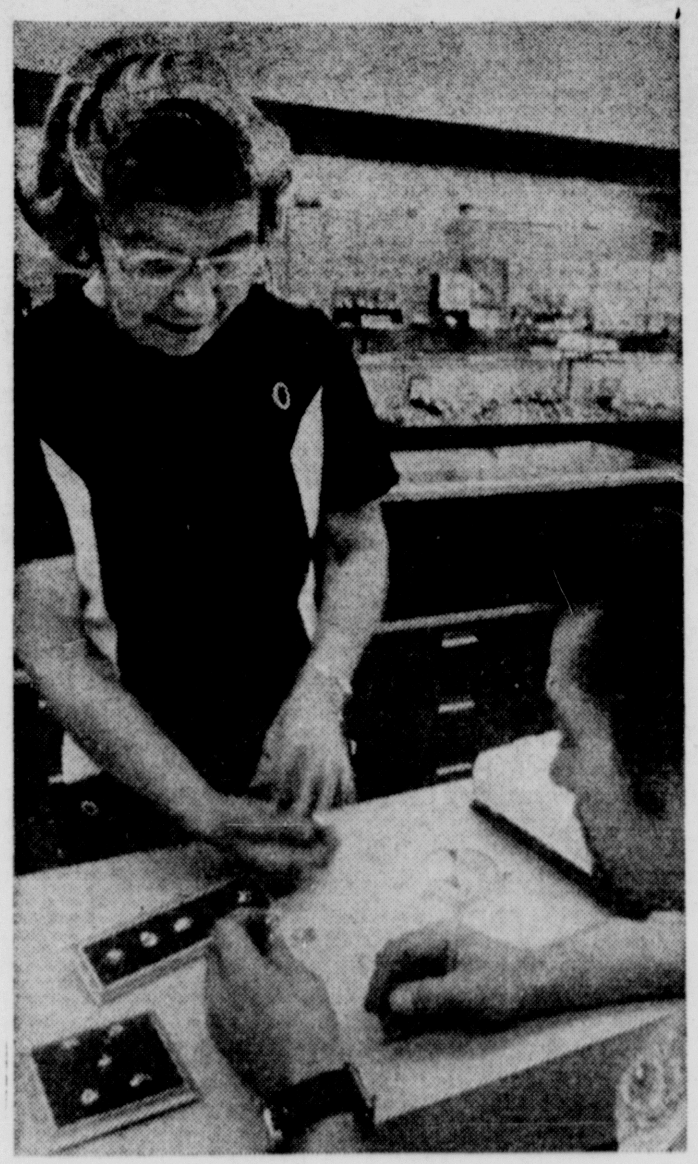
Personalized service and fine jewelry are featured at Bryant and Co., 215 Pomona Mall East. The jewelry store is Pomona's oldest.

Design-it-yourself jewelry

Local store will translate your idea

POMONA — Customers are given the chance to design their own jewelry at Bryant and Co. Jewelers, 215 Pomona Mall East, where custom-made pieces are a specialty.

"Most jewelers don't do custom designing of jewelry," stated Alan Thomas, owner and manager of Bryant's, "because it takes a great deal of time or they don't have the training and knowledge. The only way to get really good at it is to do it a long time."



Iva Uribe, a member of the Bryant's staff, helps a customer choose from a selection of diamond rings. Mrs. Uribe has been an employe at Bryant and Co. for 25 years.

Custom-designed jewelry may be made from stones that have been inherited, are loose from other settings, or are in other pieces of the customer's jewelry. Bryant's has a variety of custom settings available in the store or a customer may sketch the design he wishes made. The jewelry is then made by hand.

The service is also used by persons desiring an original, one-of-a-kind jewelry piece of their own design with a new stone.

"I think custom designing is the most interesting aspect of the jewelry business," Thomas said. "Many of the things we sell we make ourselves."

In addition to custom jewelry, Bryant and Co. carries a complete ready-made inventory, specializing in fine jewelry and gems. The store carries fine diamonds, features genuine stones and imports many of its jewelry from Europe. In stock in the jewelers is Chinese jade and opals from Australia.

A fine line of watches is also available at Bryant's from such makers as Omega, Accutron, Tissot, Bulova and Seiko.

Bryant and Co., Pomona's oldest jewelry store, boasts a staff of professionally trained jewelers. Thomas, whose father, the late Martin R. Thomas, bought Bryant and Co. in 1955 from its original owner, began working in jewelry stores owned by his father at an early age. His mother, Florence, with many years of jeweler's experience works in the store along with Iva Uribe, a 25-year employe also of Bryant and Co.

Thomas received his jeweler training at the Gemological Institute of America, Los Angeles, where people from throughout the world study appraising and gemology.

As well as selling fine jewelry, Bryant and Co. also handles the professional end of the jeweler's business by doing appraising along with designing. Fine watch and jewelry repair service is also featured.

"We give personalized service and people always come back," according to Thomas. "We grow every year —so of course, this is our best year. Our business is thriving."

Henry II—a view from the bedroom

By NICHOLAS C. POLOS

Margaret Butler's strange alchemy of history and fiction of 12th Century England, and the court of Henry II (who reigned from 1154 to 1189), has produced an exciting tapestry of Henry's sexual exploits on a one-dimensional plane.

The novel revolves around the relationship of Henry himself, to Eleanor of Aquitane, his wife, and to complete this

Oh yes, to this colorful dramatis personae one should also add a fourth, the "faery woman" Hikenai, a pagan English whore who charms Henry, and who is in turn herself charmed by the "savage deities and primitive rites of the old Saxon gods."

This combination broadens the possibilities of the ordinary eternal triangle, and inevitably sows the seeds of tragedy and conflict not only between Henry and his archbishop, but with the royal Eleanor who is a bit of a medieval shrew herself.

Although the story takes as its historical backdrop the harsh but colorful events of medieval England and France as well as the decline of paganism and the ultimate triumph of the civilizing effects of the Normans (and the author captures this brilliantly), the author's bolts of lightning are reserved for Henry's youthful lust and sexual passion.

The title of the book is somewhat misleading. "The Lion of England" could easily be taken for a bull!

True, Eleanor the royal wife, is painted a "promiscuous conniving bitch of record," and Becket as the understanding ecclesiastical friend and advisor, my basic quarrel with the author is that in her drawing of Henry's character as "a cardboard lover," she is reflecting Ogden Nash's sentiments when the latter wrote: "Let the love-lorn lover cure insomnia; By murmuring Amo Vincit Omnia'."

Primarily, the author's sins are sins of omission rather than sins of commission. This novel is divided into 12 parts, from September 1152 up to May 1160, and in this period of time the author is silent about Henry's many important governmental reforms such as his overhaul of the country's financial system (the establishment of a central exchequer court), the revision of the "curia regis," and the many reforms in the area of judicial procedures.

Indeed many historians of this period consider the latter Henry's most significant contribution to English history.

What we have here is fictional history as seen through a married woman's eyes, something like trying to understand the American Civil War by reading Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind."

Like Thucydides she describes the intricacies of the politics of the royal court, life in the barren castles, the English countryside, and the people on the streets of the medieval cities, by putting speeches in their mouths.

However, unlike the "Great Greek," this dialogue is not Periclean; it revolves around mundane petty matters such as childbirth, the issue of profitable marriages, marital quarrels, and the raising of questionable children.

Some of the quasi-gems of marital wisdom found in this novel derive their source from the eternal conflict of what some have called holy deadlock, and they do have a glint of humor in them.

For example, when in a fit of pique, Sir Richard the baron turns to his wife Lady Maud, and says to her: "A kind husband makes a saucy wife," the reader must smile knowing that the human condition has not changed too much.

And familiar to many modern women caught in the debatable throes of the search for some form of liberation is Ysabel's plaintive cry: "Oh, you men. What you will have you will have and that which you will do we poor women must endure!"

In all fairness to the author the novel is well-researched, and the style of writing has a mellifluous flow which is captivating.

One cannot fault the author because the scenes of the story are couched in the bedrooms rather than in Froissart-like fashion on the tournament fields with fife-and-drum accompaniment.

However, my "caveat" is not without foundation. Many years ago John Aubrey wrote: "How these curiosities would be forgott, did not such idle fellowes as I am putt them downe."

If you want high-noon sexual entertainment with a brilliant but crude historical background then this book will take you back in time to a fascinating period of medieval history.

But if you desire true history may I recommend George M. Trevelyan's, "History of England."

THE OTHER ONE by Julian Green. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $6.95.

This first novel in a decade by the French-born American writer who last fall became the only foreign member of the French Academy is a story of sin and redemption.

Although set in 20th century Copenhagen it has the tone of a Medieval passion play, relentless in its progress toward a cruel salvation.

The main actors are a French youth who seduces a fey Danish girl on the eve of World War II, then leaves her so shattered that she becomes the mistress of the Germans who occupy her country.

After the war he returns, transformed from a young libertine to a grim and saintly ascetic, to seduce her away from the flesh to his stern God.

The girl, Karin, grown to a lonely and tortured woman, ostracized by her neighbors as "the German woman" for her wartime acts, is a singularly vivid character in contrast to the narrow, single-faceted Frenchman, Roger.

It is her agony and her martyrdom that make the novel so compelling, even haunting.

The style — it is a translation from Green's French — is simple, a narrative first by Roger and then by Karin, and the structure, which sandwiches their stories between an account of Karin's death, is designed to heighten the drama that led to her death.

Capt. Bligh was the hero, author's documents reveal

The writing of this book is the result of a month recently spent on Pitcairn Island by Arthur Ball, his wife and three small children aged 4 to 9.

However, Ball had long studied the aftermath of the Mutiny on the Bounty, researching it in many libraries, and visiting personally all the

Ball is a writer, a prominent newspaper correspondent for London papers, and a keen student of historic events which titillated his imagination. Nordhoff and Hall first documented the Bounty mutiny and its consequences in three books published between 1932 and 1934. These are the fictionized accounts which were adapted for the motion picture screen in 1935.

The picture starring Clark Gable and Charles Laughton, was such a success that after two dozen years a second movie was issued with Marlon Brando and Trevor Howard in the leading roles.

Sympathy in all these dramas centered on the underdog, Fletcher Christian, who led the mutiny. Captain Bligh was depicted as a brutal and sadistic leader, who brought upon himself the penalty of being cast adrift in mid-ocean, with little chance of survival.

Author Ball declares this to be completely in error. Bligh was the hero and Christian the villain, he says. He documents this with voluminous pages of proof which I, for one, found quite convincing. This makes up the first half of the book.

The second half recounts the tragic history of Pitcairn Island after Christian and his crew of mutineers and Tahitian camp followers landed and tried to settle down. (The name Pitcorn, incidentally, is derived from the name of the sailor who first cast eyes on its rocky outline, long before the Bounty arrived there in 1781.)

The mutineers deliberately chose this distant, out-of-the-way haven, hoping they would never be found and forced to stand for their misdeeds. For not only had they engaged in mutiny on the high seas they had thwarted the costly plan of the British Navy to transport numerous breadfruit trees from Tahiti to areas in the Carribean where it would serve to provide cheap food for the plantation slaves of British commercial tycoons.

As they landed on Pitcairn, there were nine of the Bounty's mutinous crew, (the rest had chosen to stay in Tahiti). There were also six Tahitian natives, and 12 Tahitian women.

The Tahitians, by the standards of that day, were servants, brought along to obey the orders of the white men. Since there were more males than females, a bitter dispute erupted which eventuated in murder. Before it was over, Christian and all but two of the whites, as well as all the Tahitian men, were dead.

Thus the subsequent population of the Island was fathered by two men, principally by John Adams (the name he chose to hide his identity. On the ship he was known as Alexander).

As time went on, the Pitcairn residents twice petitioned the British government to move them all to more civilized regions. In 1831 and 1836 this was attempted, but a few chose to remain, and a few chose to return to Pitcairn's isolation and poverty.

Today there are but 58 of them still on Pitcairn Island the more vigorous ones have gone to Tahiti or Australia. Those 58 who remain exist without much ambition or effort to improve their lot. They have exchanged their allegiance to the Church of England for conversion to the Seventh Day Adventist faith, with its strict Old Testament regulations as to behavior and diet.

The author also explores the heritage of murder they all share and asks "Did the people descended from these mutinous founders nurture a belief that they would never achieve real contentment on the soil of a constricting island which had been wet with blood?"

His answer is "Yes, It is only a conjecture, but even today I think there exists between the Pitcairners and their island a love-hate relationship." He concludes, "Will there be a third migration? (Their island is in the French atomic fall-out area.) If it occurs it almost certainly will be the final chapter in the Pitcairn saga."

This is a myth-debunking book. As a study of human behavior under far-fetched circumstances it is fascinating. It will prove extremely enlightening to all whose interest in the "Mutiny on the Bounty" did not end with the MGM screenings of that historic event.

Play Ball! It's the World Series Time of Year!

The first World Series was played in 1903, in Boston, Massachusetts. The Boston Americans beat the Pittsburgh Nationals. During the series, the games were interrupted several times when fans broke through the police lines around the field.

October is the World Series time of year. Baseball fans all over the country are waiting to watch the American League champions play the National League champions in the annual best-of-seven games series. The first team to win four games will be the new world champion. This contest marks the end of the season that began back in April. Each professional team was scheduled to play at least 162 games.

The first World Series was played in 1903 at the Huntington Avenue Baseball Grounds in Boston. In this series, the Boston Americans won when they defeated the Pittsburgh Nationals. The World Series has been played every year since then, except for 1904, when there was no contest.

The leagues take turns when it comes to the opening games of the series. The 1972 Series opened in Cincinnati, the home of the Cincinnati Reds, a National League team. This year the series is scheduled to open in an American League city.

The teams play two games in the first city, then move to the other team's park for the next two games, and also for the fifth game, if one is necessary. If more than five games are necessary, the teams go back to the opening day park.

In order to make certain that the Series gets prime TV coverage, the opening games will be played on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Then the teams will have a day off. The following three games will be played at night. If one or two more games are necessary, they will be played on the next Saturday and Sunday.

Last year's winning team was the American League's Oakland Athletics. Each member of that team received $20,705.01 prize money. The losing team was the Cincinnati Reds. Each member received $15,080.25. The 1972 Series made more money than any in baseball history, with a total of nearly four million dollars. The first series held in 1903 made $50,000.

Twenty-six year old Gene Tenace, a catcher for the Oakland Athletics, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the 1972 World Series. He is one of the few people in baseball history to hit four home runs in one series.

Roberto Clemente led the Pittsburgh Pirates to a World Series title in 1971, and was elected the Most Valuable Player. To become a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, a player must have been inactive in baseball for at least five years. The Baseball Writers Association decided to bypass this rule so they could elect Clemente as soon as possible.

Super Sport: Roberto Clemente

Roberto Clemente was born in Puerto Rico. As a young boy, he hit tin cans with broomsticks to practice baseball. He started playing professional ball when he was 17. In 1945, he signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Clemente was known for "giving his all." He was often injured, but continued to play. His salary rose as high as $150,000 a year. He married and started raising a family.

Last year, an earthquake struck Managua, the capital of Nicaragua. Clemente had many friends there. He raised money for the victims and decided to fly to Managua along with a plane load of supplies. The plane went down and Clemente was killed.

Roberto Clemente had dreamed of a Sports City for the children of Puerto Rico. Already, many thousands of dollars have been raised to help make this dream come true.

CHS serious, lively

By DAVID NIMMONS
Claremont Reporter

By now, we've all pretty much gotten over our initial confusion with teachers, bells, schedules and the deluge of IBM cards, and are settling down to the more serious business of learning. But not all this year is going to be so terribly "serious", and as a matter of fact, things look like they're going to get pretty lively pretty soon!

But, before getting on to what's ahead, we've got to get caught up on what some of the Claremont students have been up to lately!

Two groups from school have been particularly active this past summer. The first consists of a group of 25 kids from the vocal music program who were invited to attend an intercultural music camp in Hawaii.

The camp, held in co-operation with Citrus College and the University of Hawaii in Honolulu, gave the participants an opportunity to study and perform the music of Hawaii, as well as other classical and contemporary music.

While in the camp, students had a chance to learn some native dances and songs, and to get to know many Hawaiian students.

The camp also included time to see many of the sights in Hawaii, and to learn about the Hawaiian culture. All the kids greatly enjoyed the camp, and many hope to participate in the program again.

Others who had a busy summer were the CHS flag twirlers. They went to a flag camp held at Loyola University this August. The girls involved in the camp were: Robin Bennet, Janet Bills, Teri Bovett, Cheryl Ford, Elaine Uribe and Joanne Tobin, who served as the head flag twirler.

During the camp, the girls participated in many competition events, and came away with an impressive list of honors: first place in class competition, fifth place in camp spirit and their "Hello cheer", second and third place for afternoon camp competition, and first place for major competition!

The team plans to perform often during the year at halftime shows and parades.

As is usual about this time of year, many of the organizations and clubs around campus are starting plans and activities for the year. Briefly, here are a few of the activities on tap:

AFS In addition to the two exchange students we have with us this year, our AFS chapter is hoping to sponsor a Claremonter overseas, under the Americans Abroad program. The student representative from CHS will be chosen through a series of interviews, after which he or she will be placed in a home abroad by the American Abroad headquarters in New York.

The program gives the student a chance to live and attend school in another country, and to serve as a representative from Claremont in other parts of the

Injured girl back at O.C. as a senior

By ROBERT JACOBS
Ontario Christian

After more than a year's absence, Jane Brinkman has returned to Ontario Christian High School to join her classmates as they begin their senior year.

Jane was forced to drop out of school when she was seriously injured in an automobile accident during the summer following her sophomore year.

Although almost 14 months as an invalid have left her in a wheelchair, she has not had any problems navigating the campus and declares, "I get a lot of help from my friends." Nor does she have any trouble adjusting to her school work.

During rehabilitation for paralysis at Rancho Los Amigos in Downey, she was able to continue her studies with the help of a tutor and received P.E. credit for physical therapy exercises.

Resuming her studies this year will enable her to graduate on schedule next spring.

By PAT BASE
Damien High Reporter

On Tuesday, Sept. 4, Damien High School opened it's doors to 180 new freshmen. The freshmen students were given an opportunity to adapt themselves to the new campus environment by meeting as a single group at the school for a freshman orientation.

Introduced to the freshmen were key members of the Damien faculty, the principal, Father Martin O'Loghlen, the dean of studies, Father Barry, the dean of discipline, Father Cronin, the guidance director, Father McCarthy, and the student body president, John Schiro.

Along with having normal faculty turnover this year, there has been expansion to the Damien curriculum necessitating new instructors. Therefore, nine new teachers including three coaches have been added to the Damien faculty.

From Bishop Amat High School comes Miss Kay Ayres to join Damien's English department. She is also handling the journalism class and the school newspaper. Also from Bishop Amat is Fr. Michael Barry who is the new dean of studies, a position he held at Bishop Amat for the past four years. He is also teaching two social studies classes. Mrs. Barbara Busse who formerly taught classes at Loyala University is teaching English and Speech.

The new head coach of the speech department is James Caforio who is also instructing some social studies classes. His previous teaching assignment was at St. Boniface Junior High School in Anaheim. A new ethics teachers, Father Phillip McGovern, is also instructing math classes this year. He, too, has had several years experience at Bishop Amat.

Two of the expansion classes are band and choir. These are taught by Steven Morgan who is beginning his first year teaching. He has just received music and English classes at the University of Redlands. Morgan is also a member of the Damien English department.

Three new coaches this year are teaching academic classes as well as holding positions on the Damien coaching staff. One is Thomas Carroll whose teaching assignments are reading and physical education. The second new member of the coaching staff is Ralph Godfrey. He is teaching physiology and P.E. The third new coach is John Prior whose teaching assignments consist of general science courses.

Coach Carroll and Coach Godfrey both came to Damien from Matre Dei High School. Coach Prior is beginning his first full year as a coach and teacher.

Father O'Loghlen, Damien's principal, foresees that this school year will be one of the most outstanding ever in academic achievements. The reasons for this are many. The Damien faculty is the most qualified and experienced in the history of the school. Also, the student to teacher ratio is at the fantastic number of only 21 to 1.

Finally, to increase this years academic achievement potential to an especially high level is the fact that parental participation has exceeded, and hopefully will continue to exceed all expectations. The only question remaining is: can the Damien students do their part?

(The California tortoise, as ell as its cousins from Texas and Florida, are protected by law in California nd cannot be bought in pet tores. Furthermore, it is illegal to take them from the desert.)

For three years, beginning in 1969, and with the blessing of the Department of Fish and Game, club members helped relocate several tortoises from the California City area, where their habitats were being destroyed by building construction. Some were even reportedly being shot.

They were moved to Joshua Tree National Monument and areas of Death Valley.

The club is also dedicated to educating man, who seems to be the creatures' worst enemy.

In this effort, the club prints and distributes instruction sheets detailing the proper care that turtles and tortoises in captivity require. Diets, the incubation of eggs, hibernation, and the care of hatching torttoises are some of the topics covered.

"You would be surprised to see what people will feed reptiles in captivity," said Bill, who is currently serving a two-year term as vice president of the club's foothill chapter. "Water turtles, for example, must eat under water, but we come across people who don't know this." (Most turtles must be fed directly in the water, otherwise they cannot swallow.)

Tortoises are also very susceptible to respiratory ailments. More tortoises die from pneumonia than any other cause.

Another means used by the club to spread awareness of chelonians is its annual California Turtle and Tortoise Show.

"If people do not want their turtles or tortoises, we will take them and give them a home, or we will give them to club members who can give them a home," Diane said.

Certainly not forgotten amidst the overwhelming number of chelonians are the iguanas, which appear to be Diane's favorites.

Like the tortoises, the iguanas are vegetarians. They are also non-poisonous. When they are young, their skin is a torquoise color, but it turns to a bright green as adults and eventually to a desert brown as they grow older.

All of the iguanas are kept in a large wooden cage on the back porch with one exception. The exception is Tyrone, who measures almost four feet from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail, and who has established territorial rights to the inside of the house where he stays.

"He is a very aggressive male," says Diane. "That's why we keep him in the house."

The oldest of the iguanas is Mrs. Iguana. She has spent most of her 15 years in captivity. Three of those years have been with the Sracks.

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

'Good news' is no news

For the information of those of you who are forever complaining that your newspaper is filled with little else than reports of crime, violence, war, scandal and corruption, I am happy to be able to point out that once, right here in Pomona, we had just the sort of good-news reporting that you claim you would much prefer. And so to add that touch of sweetness and light, that breath of freshness for which you clamor, I now go back nearly 70 years and quote you a sample of purity in news reporting at its very best.

Cherries are cheaper. '

"Thirty or forty people spent the week-end at the beach.'

"Here are some of the things that may be found in our local markets today: Grapes and cucumbers from the desert, black figs from Fresno County, cherries from Sacramento valley, also blackberries, loganberries and strawberries galore and new apricots, string beans, tomatoes, cantaloupes squash and red currants."

I could go on and on, for that Pomona Daily Review editor was a past master at giving his readers all the good news that was fit to print; but enough is enough. Now go back to today's recital of murders, muggings, corruption in high government circles and the latest on obscenity, nudity and women's liberation. Regardless of your protestations, it should be a lot more interesting than:

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rosie is (we have been told) half Irish setter and half Great Dane. She is six years old, very friendly but big enough to be a watchdog. Because we are elderly that is what we need. We have been offered Rosie free because her present owners want to get two smaller dogs instead of the one big one We would like to have her but she doesn't know any commands or respond to a single thing except food. My husband is afraid you can't teach an old dog new tricks Is he right? —S.O

Dear S.O.: The very fact Rosie's present owners are willing to dump her after all these years for the reasons given should be a warning. Anyone who has loved and properly cared for a dog for that many years wouldn't even consider such a switch You should also weigh the fact that if she is a heavy eater her food bill can be substantial As far as old dogs and new tricks are concerned the answer depends mostly on whether that dog has any old tricks to its credit. Apparently Rosie has never learned any.

If she has never been taught anything in her life she can't be expected to be a very apt pupil now. Also it may be that she actually is an old dog physiologically speaking; a six-year-old Great Dane is certainly getting up there. One advantage could be that she might be slowing down a bit. This could be a big advantage if you considered her a house dog. When bursting with enthusiasm and energy she could be as useful in the house as a runaway bulldozer.

If after all of this you are going to give her a go anyway at least have Rosie checked out thoroughly by the doctor to see if she's likely to be around long enough to make the challenge worth the taking.

DEAR DR. MILLER: One of our ornamental plants happens to be a flowering tobacco. Our cat Spitty seems to like it. Could chewing on it be hazardous to his health or would he have to smoke it? —KP.

Dear KP.: Spitty wouldn't have to smoke it Chewing Nicotiana tabacun the flowring tobacco plant would. be hazardous enough. If he nibbled enough it could kill him. Not surprisingly the toxic ingredient of this plant is nicotine.

Gutters can outlast it all

By MR. FIX

Gutters and downspouts have a life expectancy in direct proportion to the care you give them. Galvanized metal may last eight or 10 years without care and aluminum will survive somewhat longer.

But the care, there is no reason the metal gutters on your house shouldn't be there long after the mortgage is retired.

Aside from the long-range benefit that proper maintenance provides, there also is the very important short-range consideration — helping the gutters do their job.

Gutters and downspouts filled with dirt and debris will not carry off the water that runs down from the roof. Instead, it will overflow, drenching anyone below, washing away the earth around the foundation, accumulating around the foundation and possibly leaking into the basement.

During the winter the water will freeze, causing an extra strain on the gutters and possibly tearing them loose. The ice also may back up on the roof, under the shingles, and when it melts, leak through the roof or down into the sidewalls.

Gutters should be cleaned at least twice a year, spring and fall, and oftener if there are many trees around.

Sweep out dirt, leaves and seeds. Mud that has caked up should be scraped out. If the downspout is clogged, use a plumber's snake. A strong stream of water from a garden hose may do the trick. Flush out the gutters with the hose.

Use a strainer at the top of the downspout and clean it out often. Gutter guards — screen-like covers that go over the guter — are a debatable item.

They are fine for keeping leaves out of gutters. But smaller seeds and dirt tend to filter through and then the entire guard must be removed for a thorough cleaning. They tend to work best where debris is lightest.

Once gutters are clean, they should be inspected for rust and damage. Use a wire brush to clean up rust. Follow up with standing or a rubbing with steel wool.

Coat the bare surfaces on the inside of the gutter with asphalt roof coating. Bare metal on the outside should be painted with a rust preventive primer, then with a finish coat of house trim paint

Very tiny holes can often be blocked with nothing more than roof coating. Make sure all rusted metal is cleaned away. If the hole is too big for sealing with the asphalt, apply a patch. If you use metal, it should be the same as the material of the gutter. Coat the gutter with asphalt, apply the patch and then more asphalt, sealing all the edges.

No corners cut on this one

By HIAWATHA ESTES

This home has been planned for the builder who prefers a design in which corners have not been cut to achieve false economy in construction. Here is a home where one is assured of obtaining a maximum of comfort for his money.

Storage space galore has been provided. The private dressing room off the master bedroom has walls completely lined with wardrobes and the other bedrooms have ample size wardrobes. The two main baths have pullman lavatories with storage below. There are two linen closets. An oversized guest closet, an additional clothes closet, a telephone table, plus a water heater and furnace closet are all located in the entry and off the bedroom hall. Storage for special linens and china is adjacent to the dining ell and an extra large pantry PLUS general storage close is in the kitchen. In addition to a broom closet in the service area, there is wall space available for more storage, a freezer or a sewing table.

Although the garage has been attached to the side of the living room, for smaller lots it could be removed and attached to the front wall of the bedroom wing.

The stone used in the chimney and planter harmonizes very well with the vertical siding to enhance the appearance of this handsome, contemporary home .

This same basic exterior is also available with other floor plans, but at different price structures. These designs are illustrated in our books mentioned below.

Complete working drawings for plan 41082 can be purchased for only $11.61 for the first set and $6.36 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until January 30, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.33; Hallmark Homes — $1.33; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.33; Town & Country Homes — $1.33; Prize Homes — $1.33; Ranch & Modern Homes — $2.12. All six books — an $8.75 value — for only $6.89. Orders for less than threee books, please add an extra 20c per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, California 91324.

New book tells all about weeds

"Weeds," published by Golden Press, is the perfect identification guide to a wide range of readers—young and mature, country and city folk, gardeners and lawn owners, hay-fever victims, agronomists, and nature lovers. In short, anyone bothered in any way by weeds—and who isn't?

What are weeds? The usual definition of a weed is a "plant out of place" but actually, in truth, pest plants are out of place only in terms of man's purposes. In nature's scheme, they often serve useful functions, e.g., some plants provide a protective covering over the ground which reduces erosion, and also acts as indicators of soil quality. Some plants such as the leaves of wintercress, pokeweed, and others, are sources of drugs, medicines and dyes. Songbirds, gamebirds and other kinds of wildlife depend to a very large extent on weed seeds for their existence. In contrast to their usefulness, however, weeds cost the American farmer an estimated five billion dollars annually in crop yield and control measures. In addition, there are millions of people who suffer from hay fever and other respiratory ailments, which are either caused or aggravated by weed pollens.

"Weeds" author Alexander C. Martin is an authority on plants used by wildlife, and on the identification of plants by seeds and fruits. Author of two other guides, "Trees" and "Flowers," Martin was for over 30 years research biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in the Department of the Interior. In addition, he has written many books in the field of natural history, including a manual on seed identification.

Containing full-color illustrations of the most common weeds, plus some of lesser consequence, "Weeds" was illustrated by Jean Zallinger, illustrator of numerous juvenile books, as well as a contributor to Encyclopedias and textbooks. Mrs. Zallinger also illustrated the science guide, "Botany."

HEART OF THE HOME — This attractive, U-shaped kitchen affords adequate space to make sure that all major work centers function well. It is effective in conjunction with breakfast or family rooms.

Most homemakers agree that the kitchen is where they invariably spend a great deal of their time. And they want it to be as modern, pleasant and convenient as possible.

Ideally, the sequence of work in the kitchen moves from storage and mixing, on to preparation, then to cooking and serving and finally back to the sink for cleanup.

Kitchen planners have these comments on each of the centers:

REFRIGERATION: Obviously built around the refrigerator, this center should be located near the door where the supplies enter and should have sufficient drawer, shelf, and counter storage to handle the numerous kitchen utensils, food-stuffs and small appliances common in today's kitchen. There should be a minimum of 15 inches of work counter at the opening side of the refrigerator.

Today's modern side-by-side refrigerator-freezer combinations can be used more efficiently with work space on both sides of the appliance, which also allows both its doors to open to their stops.

CLEAN UP: This center handles chores performed in the kitchen during preparation of daily meals and the subsequent cleanup. It is best when located between the range and refrigerator, and should have at least 24 inches of counter space on each side of the sink—whether the sink is double-or single-bowl.

In addition to the dishwasher, space should also be planned to store detergents, cleaning equipment and utensils and to dispose of trash. A low-cost highly efficient food waste disposer is recommended to take care of most "wet" garbage, while a trash compactor is an effective means of handling solid wastes such as empty milk containers, egg cartons, cereal boxes, bottles and the like. Used together, a waste disposer and compactor can help provide a neater, cleaner kitchen.

COOKING: The best location for the cooking center is near the dining room and breakfast areas. A counter at each side of the range is important for efficiency as well as safety. There should be a mimimum of 12 inches of counter at the side away from the sink, and 24 inches minimum between the sink and range. A large amount of storage also is required in this area for pots, pans, trays, utensils, dry foods and condiments.

Most kitchens will contain one or more minor work centers, so plan ahead to make them work best.

A planning and message center is an essential in today's modern kitchen. It can be as large as needed, or as small as an 8x10-inch shelf with telephone and recipe racks. If space permits, a bulletin board and intercom can be included.

An all-purpose bar is a handy addition that can be used for homework, buffet, snacks, serving and many other functions. It can be an extension of one of the kitchen counters, part of a pass-through or a shelf along one wall with added storage underneath as a useful option.

Another work center can be built around a home food freezer. A complete freezer center can be rather spacious, with storage for necessary packaging materials and utensils, plus a place to sit and work at a sink. The freezer center can be located in the kitchen, a utility room, breezeway or wherever space permits.

Cold frames indispensable for gardener

Cold frames are indispensable in all-weather gardening. They keep plants growing all winter in mild climates, and perform well in colder regions with auxiliary heat from light bulbs or buried cable.

A box is easily built of four western cedar 1x12s over a bed of gravel or wood shavings for drainage. Lumber should be preservative treated.

Diagonally cut 1x6s atop 1x12-inch side pieces hold sash at an angle for maximum use of solar heat and light, trapped when rays penetrate transparent glass or plastic roofing.

Size depends on space available and need, but using standard 3x6-foot sash is convenient. Space for starting seeds and rooting cuttings can be estimated based on standard flat sizes.

Lightning explanation

Forked lightning is a chain of brilliant zig-zag light that follows a winding path such as a river and breaks into several forks or branches.

Sheet lightning is a bright flash that lights up the sky. It is made up of flashes of chain lightning that take place beyond the horizon.
